SHOPPING AT 103.

TYRONE MAN STILL ABLE TO READ AND WRITE.

Mr. John Blee, aged 103, of Altishahane, Strabane, farmer and surveyor, visited Strabane last Saturday to do his shopping and to see his son who resides in Strabane. Mr. Blee, who enjoys splendid health, is still able to read and write without the use of spectacles.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.

Wesley Chapel, Cork, owes much to the generous gifts of its members, past and present. At a special meeting of the trustees which was held last week it was reported that Mr. John L. Musgrave had kindly offered to provide a complete new set of electric shades and fittings of the latest design to the church, and that his brother, Mr. W. P. Musgrave, would meet the cost of the new wiring involved. It is expected that the work will be carried through in about a fortnight's time.

The friend of the retired ministers of the Methodist Church who signs himself "A Layman," and whose publicity campaign has given the Supernumerary Ministers' and Ministers' Widows' Fund of the Church a new place in the affections of its members, has issued a neat booklet setting forth the claims of the fund. A copy of this booklet will be sent to every member of the Church whose name and address "A Layman" has been able to obtain.

A valedictory Service was held last week in Bluestone Methodist Church, near Lurgan, to wish God-speed to Miss Ella Twinem, a member of the congregation, who is now on her way to Ceylon as a missionary in connection with the Women's Auxiliary to the Wesleyan Methodist Missionary Society. The address was given by the Rev. R. J. Black, the minister of the church. A beautiful Bible, suitably inscribed, the gift of the congregation, was presented to Miss Twinem by Mr. Anthony Bunting, J.P., of Lurgan.

In connection with the Methodist Church, Clontarf, a "Young Men's Own" has been inaugurated. At the opening supper twenty-two members and a number of guests were present. The Rev. C. H. Macartney Clayton, M.A., presided.

The Rev. W. L. Northridge, M.A., Ph.D., having investigated the conditions prevailing in Belfast's underworld, is delivering a series of addresses on the subject in Grosvenor Hall on Sunday afternoons which are attracting widespread interest.

When a three-storeyed house in Shepperton road, Islington, used for factory purposes, was burnt out frost froze the water from the hose pipes.

IRISH LIVE STOCK PRICES AT A GLANCE.

New performance on a definitely higher plane—that is the keynote of this entirely new model. All the old Citroën reliability, on which Citroën fame was founded, is still there, but the sure, silent power, the smooth, silky running, and the remarkable road results of the new "De Luxe" remind one of nothing but a £1,000 automobile! The coachwork is All-Steel, of course, for safety; and the equipment unusually complete. Now look at the price! Then arrange a trial run or send to-day for the new illustrated Citroën Book T.

PRODUCE AND FOOD.

CATTLE

DONCASTER.—Owing to outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease at Loversall, near Doncaster, the market which should have been opened on Saturday has been declared closed for a further period. The whole of the stock on the infected farm has been destroyed.

NORWICH.—Beef was in good supply, and best ranged from 11/- to 12/-, while other sorts realised 10/6 per stone. The market is now open to Irish stores, and business ruled slow, with quotations firm, £14 to £22 being made. Calves were in short supply, with veal in keen request at 1/2 per lb. A fair show of mutton was a shade firmer, hoggets making from 1/1 to 1/3 per lb. A heavy supply of pigs was on show on Saturday, and cutters ranged from 12/- to 13/-, and baconers from 10/6 to 11/6 per stone. Sows were maintained at £14 10/-. A fair demand was experienced for stores. At market—Cattle 1,523, sheep 1,200, and pigs 628.

GRAIN

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES.—BALTIC.—WHEAT cargoes: Steamer, 5,000 tons Rosafe 64lbs. January sold 48/10½, white Pacific February sellers 50/3, No. 3 Northern Manitoba (Pacific shipment) February 49/6, No. 4 Manitoba ditto 47/1½, Rosafe 64lbs. February 48/9, Barusso 64lbs. February 48/6, West Australian January 51/-. Parcels Australian afloat, per Kent, to Liverpool sold 50/- per 480lbs. MAIZE cargoes: Plate steamer afloat, loading, also January-February, sellers 39/-, February 39/3, April 39/3, May-June 33/6, No. 5 yellow African January-February 39/-. Parcels Plate March-April sold 34/7½ per 480lbs.

LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—American cables were hardly as good as expected, and with predictions of heavy shipments for past week forward deliveries of wheat here gave way slightly and finished quiet at the decline. C.i.f. parcels wheat, South Australian afloat sold at 50/-, and soft white Pacific shortly due 48/6 per quarter. C.i.f. parcels MAIZE, River Plate March-April sold at 34/6 per quarter. Wheat on the spot quiet and unaltered. Maize spot parcels quietly steady at 8/4½ per cental for River Plate. FLOUR quiet and unchanged. Official price of straight run 37/6 per 280lbs. ex mill. Graded wheat futures opened ½d. per cental lower, and further receded slightly, the market closing quiet at ½d. to ¾d. percental under last night. Sales: 60 loads at 10/1½, ⅜ for March, 10/1⅝, ¾ May and 10/2 for July delivery. Closing prices: March and May 10/1½, July 10/1¾ per cental. River Plate maize options closed quiet, unchanged, ½d. per cental lower. Sales: 5 loads at 8/5½ for March delivery. Closing prices: January and February 8/4½, March 8/5½ per cental.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL.—BACON—Irish and Continental meets a fair demand at steady prices, Danish exceptionally being raised 1/- to 80/- and 84/- per cwt.; American selections still quiet with sellers easy to approach, but no quotable change made in values. HAMS and shoulders freely offered at the recent decline. LARD on the spot rules quiet but steady at unchanged prices for both prime steam and American refined, with buyers operating merely for their actual needs.—CHEESE steady at late rates for Canadian, while New Zealand is held for 1/- per cwt. advance, white and coloured now quoted 92/- to 96/- per cwt. BUTTER steady and in better request, New Zealand being further raised to 157/- to 161/-, and Australian 155/- to 159/- per cwt. EGGS quiet at 18/9 to 19/9 per 120 for Irish fresh hen.

LIVERPOOL REFINED LARD "FUTURES."—Chicago cables were somewhat irregular and prices here gave way fairly in the business concluded, finishing unchanged to 6d. per cwt. under Friday: January sold at 61/3, May 62/9 to 62/3, with February quoted 61/3, March 61/6, July 64/-, September 65/- cash, ex quay 61/- sellers, and these prices closing values.

DUBLIN VEGETABLE.—Offerings of vegetables this morning were of fair seasonable class and market was readily sold up. Cauliflowers 1/9 to 2/3 and 2/6 doz., sprouts 2/6 to 4/6 per float, etc.; celery not so plentiful, pink 1/6 to 3/6; white 2/- to 4/6 per doz., prime large would make more; carrots 2/- to 2/9 and 3/- per doz. bundles and 4/- to 5/- per bag; parsnips 1/6 to 1/10 per doz. and 5/- to 6/- per cwt.; parsley 1/6 to 1/8 per tray, etc.; Savoy cabbage 15/- to 25/-, 26/-, 30/- and 35/- per load, Yorks 20/- to 35/-, 41/-, and extras 50/- per load; Swede turnips 1/8 to 2/- per cwt., white turnips 6d. to 7d. per bundle, thyme 3d. to 4d. per bunch.

DUBLIN POTATO.—No change to record in trade or values for potatoes. Prime red soil qualities 5/3 to 5/6 per cwt., white quality, according to character and handling, 4/9 to 5/- and 5/3 per cwt. for city delivery; bulk quantities, ex rail, etc., figure as before, but tendency upward.

DUBLIN FISH.—Market offered five chests of lobsters, 30 boxes herrings and small arrivals of country and local fish, for which there was a good sale. First pick lobsters 25/- to 35/- per 13, average, seconds 15/- to 20/-, and others 7/6 to 12/- per lot, average; plaice 25/- to 90/- per half box, codfish 20/- to 25/-, herrings 8/- to 10/- and 12/-.

BILLINGSGATE FISH.—Fair supplies; steady demand. Soles 14d. to 17d., slips 11d. to 14d., lobsters 30d. to 42d. per lb.; live eels 16/- to 28/-, lead 14/- to 26/- per draught; turbot 16/- to 22/-, brill 11/- to 13/-, plaice 8/- to 13/-, halibut 15/- to 18/-, lemon soles 11/- to 16/-, cod 5/- to 7/-, whiting 4/- to 6/-, hake 9/- to 12/-, skate 6/- to 9/-, haddocks 7/- to 10/- per stone.

MISCELLANEOUS

LIVERPOOL COTTON—American futures opened about 10 to 14 points lower in sympathy with the overnight advices from New York, and, although a rather steadier tone followed, selling later in the morning became general, chiefly as a result of lower Egyptian cables, and in the absence of trade demand prices relapsed again. The market closed weak, with this season's crop months about 22 to 23 points down, and next season's crop months about 18 points. Egyptian Futures—Egyptians finally marked a decline of about 35 to 33 points for Sakellaridis and about 32 points for upper. American in small demand; quotations are reduced 22 points. Brazilian quiet; quotations are reduced 22 points. The Egyptian market is quiet, and quotations of Sakellaridis are 40 points and those of upper and pilion 35 points lower. East Indian quiet, and quotations are reduced 15 points.

LEICESTER WOOL.—A slight advance has been noted in the orders for woollen garments last week, the chief feature being the demand for overseas goods. Substantial contracts have been placed for these, and with the home trade also a little better it looks as if the year would start well. The high prices of wool yarns are making things a little difficult, and some classes of yarns are fractionally dearer on the week. The market, however, appears to be settling down to a stable rate.

WOMAN AND HER HOME.

A LETTER TO PAULINE.

DEAR PAULINE,—Many thanks for your letter. I am glad you told me of that new stove polish; it is excellent, and very economical.

No, I have no intention of losing interest in my new home; but, owing to the usual rush of New Year gaieties, innovations have been temporarily abandoned. The only "job" accomplished during the past few weeks was the fitting up of a brass rail about 2" higher than the lowest shelf of my wardrobe. This acts as a grip on the heels of my shoes, and keeps them very steady and tidy. It it very necessary to have such a shoe shelf, especially for dance shoes, which are usually apt to tarnish if exposed to the light and air.

I got a present lately of a complete set of shoe polishers. They all fit in a small leather case, and will be excellent for travelling. How often nice shoes are spoiled by the hotel "boots" using the wrong shade of polish! Black or white are safe enough, but in future I will attend to the others myself. Usually white cream is best for all shades of beige, brown or grey. Of course, the less cream used the better. Magnesia rubbed carefully into brocade shoes brightens them up considerably; and if they are creased they can be rejuvenated by pressing on the hand with a not-too-hot iron. Special cleaning stuff is sold for silver and gold kid shoes, but the longer they can be kept without cleaning the better.

Shoes, to my mind, are even more important than frocks, although the latter are much more exciting! Possibly, with the "Mustard Club" advertisements in mind, fashion decrees that one of the most chic shades for spring wear is to be mustard yellow. I am glad, as I think that yellow, in all shades, is one of the cleanest and freshest colours in the dye-shop. Somehow it suggests springtime and bright days.

Very soon now we may say good-bye to our big winter coats—dismal things at best, sadly reminiscent of dull days and blue noses!

Be sure to choose carefully the accessories of your spring "tailor-made." The most important is the silk umbrella, which should be of a much smaller size than its elder sister of last season, and should at least tone with your hat, bag, scarf and shoes.

Tweeds are still very popular, though many check skirts are set off by plain coats. In tweed we can combine the "useful" with the "smart," although, mind you, the former is, at best, a dull description, and would never act with me as an incentive to purchase. My ideals soar towards suitability, but "useful" clothes have no charm for me.

Striped material is less spoken of this season, and if used at all it is of a much more exaggerated character, either very diminutive or very broad—no medium. Spots of all shapes and sizes are newer for jumpers.

The much-liked coat frock has made its reappearance under the pseudonym of "coat-dress," which can change itself at will into a "two-piece" by donning a three-quarter length coat to match.

By the way, my fur collar of last spring cleaned up wonderfully since I gave it a good dry shampoo (just as I would my hair). Now, there is a really useful tip for you. Springtime throws such a cruel glaring light on every little spot or stain, doesn't it?

I notice that all kinds of fascinating buckles are used on the new frocks; this is accounted for by the fact that many frocks are now "bloused" into hip belts.

In spite of all that we have read and heard of the longer skirts, they are getting no lease of life, except for evening wear. Day skirts should cover the knee, but though, perhaps, a shade fuller, are certainly no longer, which is really very sensible!

Some Dublin shops are stocking waterproof gaiters. These fit right above the knee. They look quite smart with a raincoat, especially if they are of the same shade. It is well, I hear, to buy them on the small side, as they are inclined to stretch in the wearing. Should you invest in a pair, be careful to remove your shoe before putting them on, otherwise your heel may do damage. In London there are beautifully fitting "zip" galoshes, but I don't think they have been seen here yet.—Yours, with love,

MARY.

SOME MARMALADE RECIPES.

Towards the end of January Seville oranges come on the market, and the wise housewife turns her thoughts to marmalade making. Marmalade, being the first preserve of the year, is always highly appreciated by the family, and helps the appetite during the treacherous early spring months. Any of the following tried recipes will be found a success:—

THICK MARMALADE.

Wash the bitter oranges. Cut into four, and then cut in very thin slices. Remove the pips and soak in some of the measured water. To each pound of orange add three pints water. Let it stand all night. Place in a pan with liquid strained from the pips, then boil all till the rind is quite tender, probably from 1 to 1½ hours. Lay away again for 24 hours. Next measure the pulp, and allow 1½ lbs. of sugar to each 1 lb. of pulp. Boil till some jellies on a plate. If liked, a few lemons may be added. Half-stone of oranges makes 52 lbs. marmalade.

LEMON MARMALADE.

Ingredients.—Lemons, loaf sugar.

Method.—Place the lemons in a preserving pan, cover them with cold water, and boil them gently for two hours, during which time the water must be drained off and replaced by fresh boiling water at least three times. Let them cool slightly, slice thinly, remove all the pips, and weigh the fruit. To each lb. allow 2 lbs. of sugar and 1 pint of water the lemons were last boiled in, and boil these together till a thin syrup is obtained. Then all the prepared fruit, and boil until the marmalade jellies when tested on a cold plate. Put into jars and cover.

GRAPE FRUIT MARMALADE.

Ingredients.—1 grape-fruit weighing 1 lb., 1 orange weighing about 6 ozs., 1 lemon, 3 lbs. sugar, 3 pints water.

Method.—Wash the fruit, cut it in quarters and slice very thinly, reject the seeds, and the core of the grape-fruit. Add the water and let it stand 24 hours. Boil until tender, let it stand overnight. The third day boil ten minutes, add the sugar warmed and boil rapidly, giving it an occasional stir until the marmalade is clear and jellies. Pot and cover.

ORANGE JELLY.

Ingredients.—7 bitter oranges, 3 lemons, 8 lbs. sugar.

Method.—Wash the oranges and finely shred the yellow part of the rind. Put the chips into a jelly pan, cover with water and boil ten minutes. Pour off the water, add four breakfastcups of water and boil forty minutes.

Remove the skins from the oranges, break up the pulp and boil with ten breakfastcups of water for one hour; strain through a bag. Add the chips with the liquid they were boiled in to the strained jelly, heat, add the sugar, and boil fifteen minutes. Put into jars and cover.

CLEAR MARMALADE.

Ingredients.—8 lbs. oranges, 9 lbs. preserving sugar, 3 lemons, cold water.

Method.—Wipe and pare the fruit very thinly in ribbons, cut the ribbons across into very thin strips with a pair of scissors. Remove all the white pith from the fruit, divide the fruit into pieces, removing the pips. Soak them in water to cover overnight, strain and add before finally finishing. Put fruit in jelly pan and cover with cold water, add the chips tied in muslin; boil for two hours, skimming carefully and stirring frequently. Take out chips, pour the pulp and liquid through a sieve, and allow to drip all night. Weigh the liquid and chips, put into a jelly pan with rather more than their weight of sugar (the weight of the chips and juice should be about the original weight of the fruit). Boil for ten minutes, or till a little sets. Put into jars and cover with gummed paper.

THE MEDICINE CHEST.

EVERY mother should have a medicine chest in her possession. Not that too much reliance ought to be placed on pills and potions; prevention is better than cure in all cases, and often medicine does far more harm than good. Nevertheless, medicines are sometimes necessary, and when needed are often required hurriedly; then it is a great pity to have to send out to the chemist's, or perhaps have to do without it altogether if the shop is shut or at a considerable distance. Far better is it to be able to go to the medicine chest, where the bottles and boxes should stand all neatly labelled and ready for use.

A medicine chest should always contain some rolls of lint and cotton wool, and a sharp pair of scissors. These come in for cuts, and burns and scalds. For the same purpose a bottle of olive oil should be kept ready, for in case of a burn nothing is so good as lint soaked in oil and laid on the place, and covered with a thick pad of the cotton wool. As, of course, the treatment both for burns and cuts should be instantaneous, the advantage of having everything to hand will be realised.

Another thing which is very useful to have ready is boracic lotion; it is most beneficial in many cases, especially for inflamed eyes and swollen gums. To make this lotion get some boracic crystals, put into a clean bottle, add warm water till the crystals are dissolved then put in the medicine chest till needed. When required for use dilute three parts lotion to one of water.

Children are often distressed by getting something in the eye, and it is not always possible to extract it. In this case the only way is to bathe the eye well, when the grit or whatever it is may generally be removed. An eye-glass is best for the purpose, and this should be kept in the medicine chest. If this convenience is not at hand a small cup should be used. Fill it to the brim with slightly warmed water, and tell the child to look at the bottom of the cup with the eye under the water. If the eye is kept open the water will so thoroughly wash it that the foreign body is sure to be dislodged. Elderflower water is very beneficial in a case of this kind, added to the water, as it takes down inflamation, and a bottle of it should be kept in the medicine chest.

Never wash cups and saucers or china ornaments with a gold pattern in water containing soda.

For burns, an application of carron oil is highly efficacious. It is made by mixing olive oil and lime water in equal parts.

THE MISSING HATCHMAN.

INQUEST ON DUBLIN MAN ADJOURNED.

An inquest was opened last Saturday in Jervis street Hospital, and adjourned till this morning, on the body of James Dagger (19), of Sandwith street, Dublin, who died as a result of being crushed in a steam winch while he was engaged in the discharge of the German steamer Emden at the Alexandra Basin, North Wall, last Friday.

The deceased man's father, Henry Dagger, who was foreman of the gang working the ship, said that at the time of the accident he was working at the other end of the ship, and did not see what occurred.

To the Coroner—Everything was in good working order, and if the hatchman had been attending to his work his son would not have been killed. It was the hatchman's duty, he said, to stand over the hatchway and direct the winchman what to do. Carrick left his place over the hatchway, and went to the front of the boat as he had heard there was an accident there. He neglected his duty to a certain extent by leaving his post.

Answering Station Sergeant Butler, witness said that he had not mentioned during the police evidence that the hatchman was to blame. The hatchman had express instructions to remain at his post while the winch was in operation.

William Weiss, A.B. on board the Emden, gave evidence, which was interpreted by the Master of the steamer, Captain Burmeister, to the effect that he saw the deceased man's coat being caught in the cable of the winch, which drew him into the cogs. He jumped down and shut off steam, stopping the engine. The hatchman was not in his position at the time.

Dr. James Magrath, House Surgeon, Jervis street Hospital, said that the deceased man was dead when admitted to the institution. On examining the body he found that the head was terribly injured, and there was extensive injury to the brain, death being due to shock and hæmorrhage due to the injuries to the head.

At this stage the inquest was adjourned as the hatchman was not present.

Mr. Ryan (Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.) represented the stevedore of the vessel, and Mr. Donnelly, Senior Inspector, and Mr. C. Somers represented the Board of Trade.

PARIS FASHION NOTES.

The cult of the grotesque is the latest fashion phase. No longer does the desire for the beautiful prevail. If you cannot be plain, at least be odd, and, as a consequence, in pursuit of the new ideal, frocks of fantastic design are making their appearance. Women have become individualists, and their desire to be "different" is leading them to adopt the oddest fashions.

The dress designers are having a wonderful time. They are working day and night to satisfy the demands of dressmakers for exclusive buttons and buckles; and the artist who can get as near as possible to the primitive man-scheme of drawing and painting is hailed as a genius. Years ago, all that woman asked was that she should be pretty, at least, and beautiful, if possible.

To-day it is almost a crime to be anything but odd in appearance. Beauty parlours devote half their time to contriving colours that will give the fair beauty something of the dusky skin of the Indian, or South American. If their client is so pale that no powder or rouge will effectively darken her complexion, she goes to the other extreme—bleaches her hair to the palest gold, whitens her face, has her eyebrows plucked to one pale-line, reddens her lips and ears and the insides of her nostrils extravagantly, and then wears a scarlet or black frock to accentuate her make-up.

To be caricatured is every smart woman's desire to-day, miniaturists and painters of portraits are in despair, but these artists who can accentuate women's bad points and make them look absurd on paper are thriving. Even hair dressing grows more and more fantastic. Women are wearing a flat curl of hair over one ear, and leaving the other bare. Or they have one whisker of hair on the right cheek, and two whiskers on the left, one above, and one below the ear.

Hats still continue to be extraordinary. They conceal one eyebrow completely, while revealing the other. Side curls, in some instances, are done away with altogether in these new hats, the felt being so cut up as to take their place. Women who can imitate the wax models of Paris, with their expressionless faces and colourless or gold hair, combed smoothly over a small head, are reckoned very smart.

The brides who have not yet chosen their bridal array—and as it is, for most women, their one chance of being spectacular—have every kind of spectacular frock to choose from this season. At a recent "opening," one of the loveliest seen had ermine tails all round the edge of a short, heavy, ivory-satin skirt, and bunches of these on the train, which was a detachable one. Long faille of satin bodices, allied to skirts of silver or white lamé lace, almost touching the ground in points, and short in others, have been offered. In many cases the pattern of the lace is carried up on the bodice in hand-embroidery.

Close-fitting skull-caps, with a helmet front, made of flat pearls or moonstones, are the newest head-dresses for brides; they have ear-pieces of orange-blossoms, of course. Many of the new bridal dresses, mere slips of things in satin, chiffon velours, georgette, or crepe-de-chine are made with the normal waistline. These have girdles—girdles in pearls, and diamenté, and in the form of ivy leaves or fern fronds.

A striking wedding dress seen at the performance, "Comme le Temps Passe," at the Capucines Theatre, and worn by that charming actress, Mdlle. Jeanne Pierry, was all in lamé. A kind of pinky, silver lamé, most exquisite to behold. The head-piece was a mass of flat, pink pearls, and over it there fell an immense flesh-coloured tulle veil, which trailed on the floor many yards behind her. Long sleeves and a square-cut décolletage completed this one-piece lamé frock.

THE CASTLE SEASON.

OTHER DAYS—OTHER WAYS.

IN a time not so far away, but which now seems a different age, the young ladies of Dublin were much concerned at this period of the year with thoughts of the forthcoming drawingrooms. If the highest ambition of any woman is to be a duchess, it is equally certain that most Irish girls of a social grade looked forward to being presented.

Although not carrying the prestige of the Court in London, the spectacle in Dublin on these occasions was grand enough, and the various military uniforms and Court attire, together with the fine dresses of the ladies, rendered the old Castle full of life and brilliancy, and the ceremonies were carried out with pomp and dignity by those in authority. To enter the portals of the Castle on these occasions various preliminaries had to be gone through for the debutante, a request to be presented suitably authenticated was seldom refused, and when the "cards" came that passed the holders in the question of dress had probably been well thought out, but the minor details and the trying on was the next step.

It was a busy time for the dressmakers: each debutante wore white; but what would the girls of to-day think of having to manage a train six yards long, a bouquet, perhaps a fan, a head laden with their own coils of hair surmounted with plumes? When the eventful evening arrived long lines of carriages converged on the Castle from all directions, and happy were they who had the privilege of the private entry—officials of the Court and those who held positions in the Castle entourage and high military or civil appointments.

It was an anxious moment for the one to be presented when her turn came to pass before the throne and receive her greeting from the Viceroy—time was when he had to bestow "a chaste salute" on the lady's cheek, but the kiss had for many years been omitted! Many stories are told of the difficulties of the wearers of the long train in connection with the necessary curtseys when passing the Viceregal party, but the Aides-de-Camp were always at hand to help, and, it is related, even captured a young lady who tried to escape the Lord Lieutenant's embrace, and was brought back to go through the ordeal. There had been much practising at home beforehand of the whole proceeding, but the reality was a different matter, but it only lasted a few minutes and then the happy maiden was free for the season of such balls, dances or concerts as were given at intervals in the following months.

Dublin society at this time was mostly composed of military and professional folk, with a good sprinkling of country gentry. In addition to those presented (whose names appeared next day in the papers with a description of their dresses and whether they wore pearls or diamonds) a vast number of persons went regularly every year, and the horrid designation of Castle Hack became attached to those who never missed a season. It was a gay old time in its way, but a bit shoddy at times.

COURT HELD IN MOTOR CAR.

UNUSUAL INCIDENT IN WICKLOW.

An unusual incident occurred at the Wicklow Circuit Court last Friday. Teresa Kenna, formerly of Harbour Bar, Bray, appealed against a committal order executed at Bray District Court against her last November, when she failed to appear, respecting a decree of the Circuit Court in an action against her for £146, wages due to Catherine Ryan, Belgrave square, Rathmines, who acted as her nurse attendant for over two years. Mrs. Kenna has been an invalid for the past twenty years, and as she was unable to be brought into court, Judge Doyle offered to go out and hear her evidence.

The judge and counsel went into the market square and "held court" in a motor car.

The judge said that he was satisfied that at present the appellant was unable to comply with the order to pay cash down; but he also was satisfied that the realisation of her property last year was deliberately resorted to by her for the purpose of defeating this claim. In an endeavour to give her an opportunity of co-operating, rather than attempting to defeat the court, especially now as she was in the hands of eminent counsel and solicitor and of meeting the plaintiff fairly, he ordered a stay of the District Court order, and in the event of payment of £10 by April 2nd and £10 quarterly thereafter, the stay to be maintained; but failing which the plaintiff to be at liberty to move in that court to have the stay removed.

CHURCH OF IRELAND Y.M.C.A.

SATISFACTORY FINANCIAL POSITION.

The annual report of the Church of Ireland Young Men's Christian Association states that in the first half-session the Bible class was conducted by Canon Forrester, and members had the privilege of studying the subject of "The Catholic Church" under his able guidance. The Rev. N. D. Emmerson undertook this work in the second half-session. He chose as his subject "The Bible and the Reformation."

The opening meeting was held on October 20th, when the Bishop of Killaloe presided. The Earl of Wicklow gave an address on the duty of young men as citizens. Three prominent supporters of the Association have died during the year—the Most Rev. Right Hon. J. H. Bernard, Provost of Trinity College, a president; the Right Hon. the Earl of Iveagh, K.P., and Sir E. G. Swifte, K.C., vice-presidents, all of whom were subscribers.

Congratulations are offered to Canon Harden on his elevation to the Episcopal Bench, to the Rev. E. C. Hodges, the new principal of the Church of Ireland Training College, and to the Rev. R. S. Griffin on his appointment to the parish of Rathangan. Members wish every success to Mr. D. J. Jones, who has left Dublin to take up business in the Isle of Wight.

The report of Messrs. Ormsby and Rhodes, honorary auditors, shows that the financial position has considerably improved during 1927. The balance sheet for 1927 shows that assets exceed liabilities by £45 15s. 6d. and that the position has improved to the extent of £96 3s. 11d.

The Past Choristers' Union of Christ Church Cathedral was in search of social and gymnastic facilities for its members, and approached the executive with regard to joining in a body. Such an access of young life was heartily welcomed, and about thirty-five are now on the roll of membership. This means that in future the Cathedral choir should be a constant source of supply for this house, and, with such a large body of young men who have the advantage of musical training, it is to be expected that the social and athletic activities of the Association will be very much extended.

DUBLIN HOTEL MAID'S DEATH.

A verdict of "death from heart failure, following pneumonia," was returned by the Dublin City Coroner (Dr. L. A. Byrne), who held an inquest last Saturday in Mercer's Hospital on the body of Bridget Whiston (27), who had been employed as a maid in the Hibernian Hotel, Dawson street, Dublin.

Evidence was given by Christina Purcell that on last Saturday week she saw the deceased girl holding her hand, which was cut, under a water tap in the pantry. A short time before that deceased girl went across the corridor holding a bottle, and witness heard a thud. Subsequently deceased girl told her that she had fallen in the corridor. She was taken to Mercer's Hospital, where she was treated, and was told to return on the following Monday. She did so and was operated on, and died last Friday.

Dr. C. P. Hearty, house surgeon, said that the girl was operated on last Monday. Later pneumonia ensued, and she died last Friday.

Mr. Ryan, of Messrs. James O'Connor and Co., appeared for the next-of-kin, and Mr. Charles Doyle (Messrs. O'Connell, Rooney and Co.) appeared on behalf of the hotel company.

MOTOR LORRY FALLS INTO FIELD.

When a heavy motor lorry was returning from Kesh to Enniskillen it skidded on an incline, rolled over an embankment, and fell into a ploughed field, eighteen feet below the roadway. The lorry landed on its wheels. The driver, Peter James O'Brien, of Enniskillen, was injured, and was admitted to the Fermanagh County Hospital. James Lamb, of Belfast, a petrol pump fitter, who was travelling on the lorry with O'Brien, was treated for shock and bruises in the hospital, but was not detained.

The lorry, which carries 400 gallons of petrol, fortunately had its tank empty at the time of the accident. There was a number of tins of petrol on the lorry and several were burst.

Mr. William Lunn, M.P., who went to Lagos as one of the Empire Parliamentary Association representatives, landed at Plymouth last Saturday. He has returned because he was prostrated by the heat.

£2,000,000	in 2,000,000 8 Per Cent. Cumulative Participating (up to 10 per cent.) Preferred Shares of £1 each	£1,000,000
£250,000	in 5,000,000 Deferred Shares of 1/- each	£250 000

The holders of the Preferred Shares are entitled to a fixed cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, and, after a dividend at the same rate has been paid on the Deferred Shares in any year, to a further non-cumulative dividend at a rate not exceeding 2 per cent. per annum, and, in a winding-up, to priority over the Deferred Shares in return of capital and arrears of fixed preferential dividend, whether declared or not, up to the commencement of the winding-up, but are not entitled to any further right to participate in profits or assets.

Subject to any special terms as to voting upon which any shares may be issued, or may for the time being be held, every member shall upon a show of hands have one vote, and upon a poll one vote in respect of each Preferred Share and one vote in respect of each five Deferred Shares held by him.

The Articles of Association provide that no Debentures or Debenture Stock (except to secure bankers' or other loans incurred in the ordinary course of the business) shall be created without the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the Preferred shareholders at a separate class meeting.

It is proposed to pay the fixed dividend on the Preferred Shares half-yearly on the 1st day of July and the 1st day of January, the first dividend being payable on the 1st day of July, 1928, calculated on the amount paid up on the Shares from the respective dates of payment.

No Directors' fees (save under service agreements) will be payable in any year until the Preferred Shares have received a dividend of 10 per cent. and the Deferred Shares a dividend of 25 per cent.

The business of Beecham's Pills and the 944,010 Deferred Ordinary Shares of Veno Drug Company (1925), Limited, to be acquired by this Company, are being sold to it by the vendor at cost price.

ISSUE OF
1,000,000 8 PER CENT. CUMULATIVE PARTICIPATING PREFERRED SHARES OF £1 EACH AT PAR; and
1,000,000 DEFERRED SHARES OF 1/- EACH AT THE PRICE OF 1/6 PER SHARE.

Applicants for Preferred Shares have the right to apply for and have allotted to them one Deferred Share in respect of every Preferred Share allotted. Applications for Deferred Shares alone will not be accepted.

The vendor, Mr. Philip Ernest Hill, has agreed to subscribe the balance of the Deferred Shares (viz., 4,000,000), on behalf of himself and Mr. Louis Nicholas, in equal proportions, at the price of 1/9 per share, payable in cash, thus providing, together with the premium on the Deferred Shares of this issue, a total premium of £175,000, out of which preliminary expenses and underwriting commission will be paid, and the balance placed to reserve.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS

OBJECTS.—The Company has been formed to acquire the business of Beecham's Pills from the 31st December, 1927, carried on at St. Helen's, Lancashire; Niagara Falls, U.S.A., and Canada; and Melbourne, Australia, together with the Freehold Works at St. Helen's, the Leasehold Works at Niagara Falls, U.S.A., and Melbourne, Australia, and the plant, machinery, furniture and stock-in-trade and stores at the three works, and the extremely valuable goodwill, trade marks and formulæ, and 944,010 of the 1,000,000 Deferred Ordinary Shares of 1/- each, fully paid (being over 94 per cent. thereof), in Veno Drug Company (1925), Limited, this giving to this Company the control of what is claimed to be the largest group of proprietary medicines in the country. A close co-operation of the two businesses should lead to substantial economies and increase of profits.

DESCRIPTION OF BUSINESS.
BEECHAM'S PILL BUSINESS.—Beecham's Pills have held the confidence of the public for 85 years, and is one of the most famous proprietary medicines in this country and throughout the English-speaking world.

The business was founded in 1842, at St. Helen's, under the style of "Thomas Beecham." The English, American and Australian businesses were controlled by members of the Beecham family until the death of Sir Joseph Beecham, in 1916, and afterwards by his executors. In 1924 the world business of Beecham's Pills was acquired by Beecham Estates and Pills, Limited.

The approximate trading results of the Beecham's Pill business, before allowing for income tax, for the 12½ years prior to the death in 1916 of the late Sir Joseph Beecham, according to statements prepared from the cash records of the English and American businesses, as produced to and examined by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse and Co., were as follows:—

VENO DRUG BUSINESS.—This business was formed thirty years ago, and has since 1925 been carried on at Manchester by Veno Drug Company (1925), Limited. Its main products are Veno's Cough Cure, Dr. Cassell's Tablets, Germolene, and Germolene Soap. These commodities, which have been very extensively advertised for many years, command a very large and increasing sale in Great Britain, Ireland and the Colonies. The Company has spent on advertising for some years past over £200,000 per annum.

PROFITS.—The books and accounts of the Beecham's Pill business, as well as those of the Veno Drug business and its subsidiary, have been examined by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse and Co., from whom the following Certificate of Profits has been received:—

To the Directors of BEECHAM'S PILLS LIMITED, 3 Frederick's Place, E.C.2. 24th January, 1926.

GENTLEMEN,—We have examined the books and accounts of Beecham Estates and Pills, Limited, and of Veno Drug Company (1925) Limited, including its subsidiary, as well as the books and accounts of the Beecham's Pill and Veno Drug businesses prior to the incorporation of these Companies in 1924 and 1925 respectively. We certify that the net profits for the periods as stated of the Beecham's Pill business and the Veno Drug business (including its subsidiary), arrived at after making such adjustments as in our opinion were necessary, and after charging all expenses, including Advertising (with the exception, in the case of the Beecham's Pill business of £18,000 estimated by the Directors to have been spent in the year to the 30th June, 1927, on the introduction of Beecham's Powders), Patent Medicine Duty Stamps, and Excess Profits Duty, but before deducting Directors' Fees, Income Tax and Corporation Profits Tax, were as follows:

equal to an average annual Profit for the 5 years and 10 months of £105,054

We are Gentlemen, Yours faithfully, PRICE, WATERHOUSE & CO., Chartered Accountants.

It will be seen from Messrs. Price, Waterhouse and Co.'s certificate that, on the above basis the average annual profits of the Beecham's Pill business for the last 10¾ years were £150,494 and the average annual profits of the Veno Drug business (and its subsidiary) for the last 5 years and 10 months were £105,054

from which should be deducted the dividends on the £300,000 8 per cent. Cumulative Preference and £275,000 12 per cent. Cumulative Preferred Ordinary Shares of Veno Drug Company (1925) Limited, Directors' fees, and the Special Reserve (under the Articles of Association of that Company) of £20,000 and Income Tax thereon at current rate, amounting in all to 85,500 which, subject to the deductions above mentioned, would leave available for the Deferred Ordinary Shares of Veno Drug Company (1925) Limited ... £19,554

of which the proportion applicable to the shares to be acquired by this Company would be 18,459

This sum, after deducting a provision of £6,000 for Directors' Fees and General Administration Charges of this Company, is sufficient to cover the fixed dividend on the 8 per Cent Cumulative Participating Preferred Shares more than twice, and after providing for the additional 2 per cent. participation of these shares, making 10 per cent. in all, to leave a sum equivalent to 25 per cent. on the Deferred Shares.

PROSPECTS.—The profits of Beecham's Pills and Veno Drug Company (1925) Limited were to some slight extent, affected during 1926 by the Coal and General Strikes, but the combined sales of the two businesses for the half-year to the 31st December, 1927, show an increase over the corresponding period of the previous year of upwards of 20 per cent.

The Directors, all of whom have been closely connected with the management of one or both businesses, are satisfied that as the result of combined administration and sales organisation a very considerable saving will immediately be effected in overhead and administration charges, and that a substantial increase of profits should result.

DEVELOPMENT.—After payment of the purchase price and all expenses of this issue there should remain available as working capital a sum of approximately £65,000, which, in the opinion of the Directors, is adequate for the purposes of the business.

It is proposed to utilise the unissued portion of the Company's Capital in acquiring, as opportunity arises, other businesses of a similar nature in cases where such acquisition will effect economies by reducing manufacturing and administration costs and rendering possible the efficient use of a single sales organisation and the economic handling of advertising space.

The Vendor to the Company of the business and assets of Beechams Pills, and of the Deferred Ordinary Shares in Veno Drug Company (1925) Limited, is Philip Ernest Hill, who has contracted to purchase the Pill business from Beecham Estates and Pills, Limited, as at 31st December, 1927, for the sum of £1,117,343, in addition to a sum equal to the fair value of the Stock-in-Trade and Stores at that date according to a stocktaking and valuation to be made and estimated at £35,000. Included in the property were 437,600 fully paid Deferred Ordinary Shares in Veno Drug Company (1925) Limited. These shares have been taken over by Mr. Hill, and the shares form part of the 944,010 Deferred Ordinary Shares below referred to. The consideration for the said 437,600 shares amounts to £82,050. The said Philip Ernest Hill has agreed to sell to the Company (a) the said business and assets on the same terms and conditions and for the same consideration (the amount payable under this Contract for Goodwill, Formulæ, and Trade Marks is £938,789, of which £800,000 is for Goodwill; and (b) 944,010 Deferred Ordinary Shares of 1s. each in the Capital of Veno Drug Company (1925) Limited for the sum of £183,694 18s., being the cost price to him of such shares. The Company takes the profits of the Beecham's Pill business from the 31st December, 1927, subject to payment of interest on £1,205,000 from that date to completion at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. It also takes all dividends on the 944,010 Veno Deferred Ordinary Shares in respect of the year ending 31st January, 1928.

In addition to the capital duty and registration fees of £22,550, the underwriting commission and brokerage, and the sum payable to The Charterhouse Investment Trust, Limited, the preliminary expenses, estimated at £40,000, are payable by the Company.

If no allotment is made, the application money will be returned in full, and if the number of shares allotted be less than that applied for, the balance will be credited towards the amount payable on allotment, and any excess will be returned to the applicant.

Interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum will be charged on instalments in arrear.

Failure to pay any instalment will render the allotment liable to cancellation and previous payments liable to forfeiture.

Share Certificates will be ready for issue in exchange for fully paid Allotment Letters on or after the 15th May, 1928.

A brokerage at the rate of 3d per share will be paid by the Company on all Preferred Shares allotted in respect of public applications bearing the stamp of a Broker or authorised Agent.

Copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company and of Veno Drug Company (1925) Limited and of the Contracts and Certificate can be inspected at the Office of Messrs. Clifford-Turner Hopton & Lawrence, 81-87 Gresham Street, E.C.2, between the hours of 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. on any day on which the subscription list is open.

Application for shares, which will be accepted only on the terms of the full Prospectus, may be made on the accompanying form, and lodged with Coutts & Co., 440 Strand, W.C.2, or Branches, or Midland Bank Limited, 5 Threadneedle Street, E.C.2, or Branches, with a remittance for the amount payable on application.

Prospectuses and Application Forms can be obtained at the Offices of the Company, and from the Bankers, Brokers or Solicitors of the Company, or from The Charterhouse Investment Trust, Limited

This Form may be filled up and forwarded to COUTTS & CO., 440 Strand, London, W.C.2, or any Branch, or to MIDLAND BANK LIMITED, 5 Threadneedle Street, London, E.C.2, or any Branch, together with a remittance for the amounts payable on application.

LONDON STOCK MARKETS FIRM.

INFLUENCE OF MONEY RATES.

TALKING MACHINE GROUP ACTIVE.

FROM OUR COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, Saturday.

Although operators for the time being have abandoned the idea of an early reduction in the Bank rate, it should not be taken that we shall not see such a change in due course. The recent flurry in money will probably prove to be only temporary. It was largely due to heavy tax collections, and, although these will continue for the rest of the current financial year, the Government must disburse at least part of the funds in time, and thus ease the situation. That the Chicago and Richmond re-discount rates have been advanced is probably not important, unless, of course, the movement is followed by a general increase in Federal Reserve rates in America; but even now London is ½ per cent. above Chicago, and it is also 1 per cent. above New York. The idea at present is that with the uncertainty surrounding the probable attitude of France, it is necessary for the Bank of England to improve its position still further, strong as the present figures are; but when the desired augmentation of the reserve has been effected, we may then look for a reduction in the official minimum. The impression seems to be that such a movement may be expected about April next.

NEW LOANS.

The recent appreciation in Gilt-edged and other first-class investments has made it still more difficult to obtain trustee securities yielding a clear 5 per cent. The South Australia Loan, of course, fills the bill, but it must be confessed that there is a prejudice against Australian borrowing, and a good many investors, if they can only get, say, 4⅞ per cent. on a British Corporation Stock, would rather take the latter than subscribe to the new Colonial Loan. This prejudice may possibly cause the new security to be largely left with the underwriters, in which case the scrip will be obtainable for a time at a discount on the issue price, but that discount is not likely to hold for long, because the demand for sound 5 per cent. yielding issues will soon absorb the amount available. The terms upon which the South Australia Stock is offered unmistakably show that Australian credit has suffered through over-borrowing in the past, for no British Corporation would have to pay about 5⅛ per cent. for money in these days. This is indicated by the terms fixed for the coming Stoke-on-Trent Loan—5 per cent. at 101.

BENGAL-NAGPUR RAILWAY.

In view of the difficulty of obtaining trustee securities to give a good yield, attention may be directed to Bengal Nagpur Railway Capital Stock. There is no doubt that trustees are authorised to invest in this. The Secretary of State for India guarantees 3½ per cent. interest on it, while it is not repayable within 15 years, and it is not quoted at above par. Beyond the fixed guarantee of 3½ per cent., the Stock is entitled to a share of the surplus profits, and for the last three years this participation has raised the full dividend to 5 per cent. The Stock has been lately dealt in at under 96, at which price the yield is £5 4s. per cent. As the quotation is a few points below par, there is little chance of capital depreciation, while if the surplus earnings should permit of a somewhat bigger dividend in the future, the Stock would certainly be cheap at the present figure.

GRAMOPHONE SHARES.

Last week witnessed further activity in what is known as the talking machine group, but it mainly centred upon Vocalions and Duophones. Vocalions reached the new high record of 51s. 9d., with business at 52s.; but the most spectacular rise was provided by Duophone Ordinary. These shares were only introduced on Tuesday in last week, and on that day the business was at from 15s. to 16s. 3d. By Friday a quotation of 30s. had been touched. The price relates to the shares of 10s., so already a very substantial premium has been established. It would seem, from the rapidity of the rise, that this premium was due to the fact that the Ordinary Shares are entitled to 75 per cent. of the surplus profits, and not to the prospects of the company being able to earn sufficient to justify such a price. The company was registered in June, 1926, and in July, 1926, made a public issue of 8 per cent. Participating Preference Shares. That issue was not at all well received, and for a long time these shares, which are also of the denomination of 10s., stood at a substantial discount. Now, however, they command at least 50 per cent. premium, although no interest has yet been paid on them.

NEED FOR CAUTION.

There can be little doubt that the price has been hoisted on the strength of the great activity and rise in Vocalions and, to some extent, Columbia Graphophones and Gramophones, and the market has every appearance of having been manipulated by a clique of speculators. It is also said that a certain proportion of the 170,000 Ordinary Shares, for which permission to deal was received, has been pooled. In that event we may easily see a further sharp rise. Ultimately, however, the professionals will take their profits, and then perhaps the public will be left with shares which are unsaleable at the price now ruling. The market for Duophone Ordinary Shares, therefore, is not one which the ordinary speculative investor should touch, for he is up against people who are able to do pretty well what they like with the price. The market valuation of such a share is not ruled by intrinsic merits, but by the height to which it can be carried by skilful manipulation.

ATTITUDE OF THE PUBLIC.

It is to be feared that to some extent the public help these speculators. A certain section of those who operate on the Stock Exchange do not want stodgy investments of the "safety first" type, but only things that are likely to show a profit by capital appreciation. It is because of this that there has been such a rush for the various 1s. or 2s. Ordinary or Deferred Shares that have been offered during the last twelve months; for unless there is a public demand for them it is useless for professionals to engineer market movements. There must be somebody with whom the shares can be "landed" when the boom is over. The professional speculators have been quick to realise the position, so that for months past we have had a very active Industrial Share Market, and for a long period there was almost uninterrupted buoyancy. In many cases shares have been bought, and have been carried up to a substantial premium simply on the prospects of the future—prospects which, to say the least, are in many cases very uncertain. There would be no reason why the public should not take a hand in the movement if they knew the right moment in which to sell. Unfortunately, they rarely do, with the result that ultimately they pay and provide the bulk of the profits reaped by professionals.

MINES.

Disappointment is felt with the course of the South African Mining Market. A little while ago there appeared to be distinct indications of a revival, and some people were bold enough to suggest that part of the big profits realised on Industrial Shares was being put into Kaffirs. There has been, however, very little evidence of this, and, with London largely dependent upon the attitude of the Cape and, to some extent Paris, the market has shown no stability. This is the more disappointing because the scare regarding a shortage of native labour appears to have died away. Tin shares, too, are somewhat erratic, though on the whole they have not a bad record. It is thought that before long a considerably higher price of the metal must be witnessed, and then we shall probably have general activity in this section; for there is no fear of the supply of the commodity exceeding the demand, as in the case of rubber. Copper has shown more firmness; and in regard to the recent spurt in Rio Tintos it is thought that the next report will show a considerably improved position.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

AUSTRALIAN SHEEP FARMS.—A circular to shareholders of the Australian Sheep Farms states that the directors greatly regret that they will be unable to recommend any dividend owing to the disastrous drought that has prevailed for a long time over a large area of Australia, and with particular intensity on the trans-Darling properties, where no useful rain fell from October, 1926, up to December, 1927. Consequent on the drought, rivers and tanks dried up, and such live stock as remained on the properties were dependent on well water, and all feed in the vicinity was soon consumed. Early sales at fair prices have diminished the loss, and the removal of large numbers of the breeding flock to Ringorah was a great assistance, but further agistment country had to be hired and heavy cost of railage and rent incurred. This expenditure, however, has been fully justified by the fact that the bulk of the valuable flock of ewes has been saved thereby. The lambing, which promised well, was practically a failure, but now that rain has come the Board hope for a rapid recovery on the properties, enabling the depletion in the stock numbers to be gradually made good and the earning power restored. For 1926-27 the company paid an interim of 2½ per cent. and a final of 5 per cent., making a total of 7½ per cent., against 5 per cent. for 1925-26.

BIRMINGHAM RAILWAY CARRIAGE AND WAGON.—Dividend of 2/- per share, less tax, for year. (Dividend for 1926 same on Ordinary capital of £698,231.)

GUARD BRIDGE PAPER.—Interim dividend of 5 per cent., less tax, on Ordinary. (Last year dividend same.)

HUNTER, BARR AND CO.—Final dividend on Ordinary Shares at 6 per cent. per annum. (Same.)

HOLLINWOOD BUILDING.—Dividend of 10 per cent. for year, tax free.

LLANDUDNO PIER.—Dividend of 25/- per share, against '27/-.

SENTINEL WAGGON.—The directors propose paying the dividend on the Preference Shares, but do not recommend any payment on the Ordinary at this time.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

THE OUTLOOK.

Prospects of a lower Bank rate are less hopeful than they appeared to be a week ago, and it looks as if the Bank's policy is to augment its stock of gold materially before deciding upon a reduction. While a fall in Bank rate would accelerate the improvement in investment securities (says The Sunday Times), its retention at the present level need not prevent a continuance of the speculative activity in Industrials. Although this is apt to run wild at times, it is, on the whole, a faithful reflection of the healthy recovery in trade consequent upon better relations between capital and labour, improved methods of working, and the growth of new manufactures, compensating to some extent for the depression that still exists in the basic industries. The formation of new investment trusts proceeds apace, and their operations must in the aggregate reach a very substantial total. They provide a reservoir of capital which may prove of great value in supporting markets at times when smaller investors are unable to act, owing to inability to realise on existing holdings, or to obtain fresh advances. Courtaulds' coming dividend and report will profoundly influence Industrials as a whole. Whether it is decided to distribute a share bonus or not, the report seems bound to make an impressive showing, and at the subsequent meeting it may be expected that striking facts regarding the progress of this great organisation will be disclosed. For those who are prepared to take a long view the shares are still one of the soundest purchases among Industrials.

IMPERIAL CHEMICAL INDUSTRIES.

The offer made on January 6 to the Ordinary shareholders of Elliott's Metal Company to exchange their shares for shares of Imperial Chemical Industries has been accepted by holders of over 75 per cent. of the Ordinary capital of the former company, and transfers for the carrying out of the exchange are being issued.

3½ PER CENT. WAR LOAN.

The Bank of England is authorised by the Treasury to purchase at the maximum rate of £1,000,000 per day the outstanding 3½ per cent. War Loan which falls due for repayment on March 1 next. The bonds will be purchased exclusive of the half-yearly coupon, and the price paid will be par, less a discount of 4¼ per cent. per annum from the day of payment to the date of maturity. The amount outstanding is approximately £42,000,000.

LUIPAARDS VLEI ESTATE AND GOLD MINING.

It is officially announced that the guarantors of the last share issue have exercised their option over 500,000 shares, making the number of shares now issued 2,242,798 in 2s. and 4s. shares, both denominations ranking equally in every respect. There are accordingly no options now outstanding. Balance of Debenture debt, originally £120,000, was redeemed on January 1.

FREE STATE BONDS.

The Irish Free State has applied to the New York Stock Exchange for permission to list the 5 per cent. Gold Bonds (1960).

THE BELGA TO REMAIN IN PAPER.

The Nation Belge states that the Financial Commission of the International Labour Office, which met at Brussels on Friday at the invitation of the Minister of Finance, decided unanimously that the time was not yet opportune for the issue of the "Belga" in coin.

THE MARCONI BOOM.

Marconi shares on Friday reached their highest point in their present form, and show a rise of no less than 8s. on the week. It is significant that the closing price was practically at the best, because the market must then have been in possession of the news that the Commercial Cable Company is proposing to open a wireless service across the Atlantic. Many knotty questions will probably arise in connection with this (says the Evening Standard), and it will be some time before the scheme can be in operation.

MARGARINE UNION.

In the catering and allied groups margarine shares have been prominent under the lead of Margarine Union, which have spurted to 38s. on influential buying. As mentioned last week, this combine's sphere of influence is steadily expanding (says The Investor's Chronicle). It may be admitted that on basis of the official figures given when the shares were recently "introduced," the more immediate dividend outlook appears to have been largely discounted, but the character of the buying should not be ignored. Liptons are being steadily accumulated, and so soon as the floating supply has been absorbed the price should make further headway. The steady support for both the 5 p.c. and 9 p.c. preference issues tends to show that under the new management early resumption of dividends on the prior charges is anticipated. The way in which concerns like Slaters and Spiers and Pond have "pulled round" in the past shows how quickly enterprising management has its effect.

£1,250,000 CELLULOSE ACETATE COMPANY REGISTRATION.

Cellulose Acetate Silk Company, Ltd., has been registered with a capital of £1,250,000, divided into 1,150,000 ordinary shares of £1 each and 2,000,000 deferred shares of 1s. each. The ordinary shares will be entitled to a non-cumulative preferential dividend of 8 p.c. and 25 p.c. of the surplus profits, the deferred shares being entitled to the balance of the distribution profits. The company has been formed to manufacture cellulose acetate and "acetate" silk on a large scale at Lancaster, where it should provide employment for a large number of hands. While the names of the directors have not yet been filed, it is understood that among the first directors will be Sir John Horsfall, Bart., governing director of John Horsfall and Sons, Ltd., and a director of the Halifax Permanent Benefit Building Society; Mr. Bertrand Clarke, former President of Tubize Artificial Silk Co. of America and of the Industrial Rayon Corporation of America, and Sir William Veno, governing director of the Veno Trust, Ltd.

The County Down Railway meeting will be held at the Terminus, Belfast, on February 23 at 11.30. The transfer books will be closed from Thursday, February 9, until after the meeting.

EXPORTS FROM THE PORT OF DUBLIN.

The shipments of porter from Dublin, as officially returned for the period 19th to 25th January, 1928, inclusive, were 16,427 standard barrels of 36 gallons, against 17,331 barrels for the previous week. For the corresponding week of the first-named period of last year shipments of porters were approximately 15,161 barrels, standard measure.

The shipments of plain Irish Free State spirits from Dublin for the period 19th to 25th January, 1928, are officially returned as 2,976 proof gallons, against 1,371 gallons for the previous week, and approximately 3,501 gallons for the first-named period of 1927.

LIVERPOOL MEAT IMPORTS.

The imports of fresh meat into Liverpool during the past week were very small, only three steamers arriving. The vessels with their freights were as follows:—The Montcalm, from St. John, with 261 barrels of pork and 1,896 boxes of meat; the Limerick, from Australia, with 18,509 sheep and lamb carcases and 659 bags of meat and 2,540 qrs. of beef; and the Ascania, from New York, with 1,093 boxes of pork and 259 boxes of meat—making a total of 18,509 sheep and lamb carcases, 1,354 boxes, etc., of pork, 2,814 boxes of meat and 2,540 qrs. of beef. Compared with the arrivals of the preceding week these figures show a decrease of 137,539 sheep and lamb carcases, 1,877 boxes of pork, 19,824 boxes, etc. of meat and 63,244 qrs. of beef.

FOOTBALLER'S DEATH IN A BATH

A Worthing Rugby football player, Edward Harry Morris Harris (21), was found dead in a bath at his home in Kent Mansions, Worthing, on Saturday evening. He had been playing in a match against an Artillery fifteen at Worthing in the afternoon.

Artificial respiration was tried for a considerable time without success.

PAUPER'S FATAL FALL.

A verdict of "Suicide while of unsound mind" was returned at the inquest held in the Derry Workhouse by the Deputy Coroner (Mr. W. J. Arthur, J.P.), on the body of Robert Drake (65). Deceased man left the men's dormitory in the institution at about 1 o'clock in the morning and threw himself out of a window, falling sixteen feet.

TROPICAL PRODUCE MARKET QUIET.

FROM OUR COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday.

Tropical produce has experienced rather a quiet week, with trading at times somewhat spasmodic. Values of the chief commodities are lower all round. In the case of palm oil home consumers have confined their attention to forward positions of mediums, in which there has been a fair amount of short selling; and, as a consequence, the premium for forward positions over spot material has practically disappeared. Lagos in store is easier by 5s. at £35 5s., while January-February shipment obtains at the same figure, as against £35 15s. a week ago. Low F.F.A. has dropped 7s. 6d. per ton at £34 7s. 6d. for store oil, with February-March failing to interest buyers at £34 5s. A week ago this position changed freely at £35. For softs down to £34 has been accepted for spot on quay terms, with February-March and March-April positions lower by 7s. 6d. at £34 2s. 6d. asked, and buyers £33 17s. 6d. Mediums on the spot changed at £33 15s., which price is also asked for February-March and March-April. Hards afloat per the Bata and February-March offer at £34 7s. 6d., but buyers do not seem over-anxious. Sherbros, on the other hand, remain firm at £34 15s. for spot material. Spot quotations of oil are as follows:—Lagos, £35 5s.; Sherbros, £34 15s.; Opobo, £34 5s.; Benin £34, and Niger £34 7s. 6d.

Palm kernels have been dull throughout, with gradual easing off of values. To-day there are buyers of January-February and February-March shipment material at £20 15s., as against £20 18s. 9d. a week ago. Shippers, however, refused £20 15s. for February-March position, though 2s. 6d. more would probably interest them. Hull consumers have been interested in January-February shipment, but dealers are not over keen to do business in this position. February-March shipment changed down to £20 15s., at which price there are buyers of January-February, and sellers at 2s. 6d. more. There has been a fair trade done with the Northern Continent, mainly Rotterdam, which has paid £20 15s. for January-February shipment. To Hamburg this position changed at £20 13s. 9d., while February-March, after being done at £20 15s., eased off to the first-named figure. Shippers offer unsuccessfully February-March shipment at £20 17s. 6d.

Copra, in sympathy with the other markets, has been dull. The holiday in the East also affected business. January-February F.M.S. Straits finds sellers at £28 13s. 9d., and buyers at 2s. 6d. less, while for February-March £28 8s. 9d. up to £28 10s. would be paid. Marseilles has shown interest in kiln dried South Sea for January-February shipment at £27 12s. 6d., while February-March F.M. Straits to Rotterdam changed at £28 2s. 6d.

Ground nuts have displayed a firmer tone, with values higher on the week. Nigerian March-April and the more forward positions have met steady demand, the first-named changing up to £22 7s. 6d., while May-June was done at £22 10s. to Marseilles. Hamburg bought a little material afloat paying up to £21 18s. 9d., but the week-end finds the price back again.

MANCHESTER MARKETS REVIEW.

FROM OUR COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

With the turn of the year, business generally in the produce trade shows signs of broadening, and there is a better undercurrent in both bacon and butter at the close of the week. So far as the latter is concerned, an official reduction of four kroner was telegraphed from Denmark, but this did not reflect the position, as spot prices were steady, with every prospect of an advance. The total imports of bacon into the United Kingdom in 1927 amounted to 8,469,131 cwt., compared with 7,471,278 cwt. into 1926. According to the official returns which were recently published, the total value of imports during 1927 was £38,622,481, compared with £42,687,766 in 1926. The expansion in the Danish production of bacon is simply astonishing, the arrivals from Denmark into this country during 1927 totalled 5,081,610 cwt., compared with 3,641,578 cwt. in 1926. Imports from the United States have shown considerable diminution compared with the previous two years—1926-1925—having been 641,076 cwt. in 1927, against 1,189,112 cwt. in 1926 and 1,489,938 cwt. in 1925. The immediate outlook for the American bacon supplies for the United Kingdom do not appear altogether hopeful, and the prospect would seem to indicate that the United States will consume more and more of its own production, and export less to other countries. The Irish Free State sent more bacon to this country in 1927, the quantity being 450,885 cwt., compared with 434,112 cwt. in 1926. With regard to Canadian bacon, imports have undergone considerable reduction during the past three years, having been 503,084 cwt. in 1927, against 869,879 cwt. in 1926, and 1,266,861 cwt. in 1925. On the other hand, however, there have been greatly increased arrivals from Holland and the Baltic States, which have not been without their influence upon the general situation. Bacon is considerably cheaper than it was a year ago, and is likely to remain so, because there are plentiful supplies still to come forward. With the cost of bacon down, consumption is eminently satisfactory. While the egg market is generally weaker and prices slowly declining, the scarcity of absolutely choicest selections is still unrelieved.

Salford Cattle Market re-opened on Tuesday last, but, as the restrictions have not been entirely removed, only twenty-four local beasts and fifty Yorkshire sheep were penned. Prices were purely nominal. There was a good attendance of buyers, and an excellent market is expected next week, when the market will be free from all restrictions. The Manchester Pig Market opened again on Thursday last, but business is still somewhat unsettled. At the Manchester Dead Meat Market trade opened quiet. There was a much better feeling at the end of the week, prices closing steady.

Dead poultry generally in moderate request, and prices have not fluctuated to any great extent.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

FURTHER ADVANCE IN BILL RATES.

There was a fair turn over of money for a Saturday. During the early hours loans were in good demand at 3¾ to 4 per cent. The maturing of £5,000,000 of India bills, however, increased credit supplies later on. Towards the close advances over the week-end were freely offering at 3½ down to 3 per cent. The general rate for renewals for either a day or a week was 3½ per cent.

The Discount market remained firm, with 4¼ per cent. the minimum quotation for fine bank paper of all dates. The "hot" Treasuries were offered at 4 1/16 to 4⅛ per cent.

No bullion operations were reported at the Bank. In the open market the price of gold was unchanged at 84s. 11½d. per oz. fine. Silver further advanced ⅛d. on China buying to 26⅛d. per oz. for spot and 26⅛d. for forward delivery.

The Foreign Exchanges were quiet, with sterling showing a slight improvement. Continental gold exchanges were steady, while pesetas further rallied. South American and Far Eastern exchanges were practically unaltered.

ARREARS OF LAND ANNUITIES.

CONDITIONS IN CO. CLARE.

At Ennis District Court, the State Solicitor (Mr. James Lynch) was granted permission by District Justice Gleeson to make a statement with reference to the collection of land annuities. He explained that the reason for this course was to be found in the published report of the Justice's remarks at Ennistymon recently, adversely commenting on the system in operation.

In the course of his statement, Mr. Lynch said that a lot of arrears accrued in County Clare. Owing to the conditions prevailing it was very hard to execute decrees. The result was that, even now, there were anything from 600 to 800 decrees for annuities unsatisfied—not collected by the Sheriff and not paid. Until about twelve months ago the Land Commission had a rule that no fresh proceedings for the recovery of fresh arrears should be taken in cases in which there was an unpaid decree outstanding. A new rule, however, has now been put in operation, and instalments due are sued for and an attempt is made to collect them without reference to the fact that outstanding decrees for prior instalments may remain unpaid. But where anything like that has had to be done, a good many of the tenants have been permitted to make arrangements to pay the overdue gales by easy instalments. It was expected that by the operation of this revised system the arrears in Clare would soon be considerably reduced.

DISTRICT JUSTICE'S STATEMENT.

Justice Gleeson said that he was pleased that such a statement had been made. He recognised that the Land Commission had conferred enormous benefits on the people, and he was aware that they had endless difficulties to contend with. When he commented on the system in operation for the collection of annuities, it was at the end of two extremely heavy Courts, occupied with the hearing of Land Commission processes, in which all sorts of complications had arisen. In case after case he had been trying to explain to tenants the position in which they stood, as no man should be allowed to leave a Court with the feeling that he had not had justice done him. It was possible that in these circumstances he had not phrased his comments as temperately as he should have done. A system, however, which might be quite intelligible to most of them, might be confusing to poor people in remote parts of the county. The issue of six-day notices seemed to cause the main difficulty. When these came back to the tenant receipted for the payment of the current gale, it was often difficult to make him understand that the payment had been accepted "without prejudice" to the collection of previous arrears, and that his rent had not been paid up to date.

TO DRAFT MEMORANDUM.

He intended to draft a memorandum for the Land Commission, in which he would set forth the chief difficulties which arose in the District Courts in Clare in proceedings for the recovery of annuities, and it was possible that some step might be taken which would save any misunderstanding in the minds of tenants in arrear.

SEA FISHERIES IN DENMARK.

HOW THE GOVERNMENT ASSISTS.

Mr. P. J. Tuohy, secretary of the Irish Fishermen's Association, forwards us replies to ten questions on the subject of sea fisheries addressed by him to the Director of Fisheries in Denmark. From those it appears that the Danish Government votes for the development of the industry in the past three years were £372,000, £360,000 and £340,000. The corresponding figures for the Irish Free State were £29,000, £24,000 and £20,000.

The administration of the Danish fisheries is controlled by a permanent director of fisheries under the Minister for Agriculture, with a salary of £660 per annum. The total cost of the administration, salaries, etc., is about £1,600 a year, as compared with about £15,000 a year and bonuses in the Free State.

The direct loans to Danish fishermen for each of the three years were £14,000, £23,000 and £23,000, and to those in the Free State £7,900, £7,000 and £7,000. In 1927-28 Denmark spent £200,000 on the building and maintenance of fishery harbours, and £16,000 for research work. The corresponding Free State figures were £2,500 and £630. The Danish yearly totals of catches of sea fish in the period were 68,000, 78,000 and 76,000 tons. The returns for the Free State, including landings from British and Irish boats, were 14,928, 18,294 and 29,762 tons.

CORK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The annual general meeting of the Cork Incorporated Chamber of Commerce and Shipping will be held in the boardroom, Commercial Buildings, Cork, on Thursday next. The report states that the students attending the Cork Municipal School of Commerce during the session 1926-27 numbered 620, as compared with 628 in 1925-26 and 661 in 1924-25

It is officially announced that the 2nd Battalion Coldstream Guards, which went to Shanghai in the beginning of last year, will leave for England in about a fortnight.

PROSPECTUS.

This Company has been formed for the purposes specified in its Memorandum of Association (copy of which is printed on the back and forms part of this Prospectus), and in particular to carry on the usual business of an Investment Trust Company.

The function of Investment Trust Companies is well known. The successful results achieved by established Trust Companies under experienced management are fully recognised and are shown by the large dividends distributed, the high prices at which the stocks of such companies are quoted and the steady demand for and scarcity of such stocks in the market. These companies have exceptional opportunities and facilities for investing in many ways which are not possessed by the individual investor, and to these can be attributed their success under careful management.

The Company's investments will be spread over a wide range of British, Colonial and foreign securities, and this should enable a higher yield to be obtained with safety than can usually be secured by the individual investor.

The amount which can be invested in any one security, with the exception of securities of or guaranteed by the British Government, is, by the Articles of Association, limited to one-tenth of the Share and Debenture capital of the Company for the time being issued and outstanding.

The borrowing powers of the Directors are limited by the Articles of Association to an amount, at any one time outstanding, not exceeding the aggregate of the amount of the issued Share Capital and the amount shown by the last preceding published Balance Sheet of the Company to be standing to the credit of Reserves. In addition, the Directors may borrow for temporary purposes an amount equal to 10 per cent. of the said issued Share Capital and Reserves.

The qualification of a Director shall be the holding of £500 of the Stock or Shares of the Company.

The Articles of Association contain the following provisions with regard to the remuneration of Directors and the votes of members at General Meetings:—

For meeting the management expenses of the Company (as hereinafter defined) during every financial year, the Directors shall set aside out of the income of the Company for such year a sum equal to one-half per cent. on the first one million pounds of paid up Capital, Reserves and borrowed money as appearing in the Balance Sheet at the end of such year, and a sum equal to one-quarter per cent. on amounts in excess of £1,000,000 of paid up Capital, Reserves and borrowed money, and so in proportion for any period other than a complete year for which the Company's accounts are made up; and no management expenses in excess of the sums so set aside shall be incurred by the Directors without the authority or sanction of the Company in General Meeting.

Out of the sum so set aside in each financial year or period the Directors shall meet and discharge all the management expenses of the Company during such year or period including the remuneration of the Directors who shall be entitled to receive as their remuneration for their services during such year or period any balance of the sum so set aside remaining after payment of all the other management expenses, but so that the Company in General Meeting may at any time vote the Directors further remuneration for their services. Such remuneration shall be divided between the Directors in such proportions and manner as they may agree, and failing agreement equally.

In addition to their remuneration the Directors shall be repaid their travelling, hotel and other expenses properly incurred in attending and returning from Board and General Meetings.

For the purposes of the foregoing Articles the expression "management expenses" shall mean and include rent of offices, rates, and other ordinary office expenses, salaries of and remuneration to the secretary, managers, clerks and other employees, directors' ordinary remuneration and generally all ordinary management and administrative expenses of the Company, but shall not include Directors' travelling expenses, Managing Director's remuneration, auditors' fees, legal expenses, commission or brokerage payable on purchases, sales or changes of securities and investments, cables, income tax or other taxes, or expenses of or in connection with any issue of the Company's shares or securities.

The Managing Director shall receive such remuneration (whether by way of salary, commission or participation in profits or partly in one way and partly in another) as the Directors may determine.

On a show of hands every member, who (being an individual) is present in person or (being a corporation) is present by a proxy not being himself a member, shall have one vote. On a poll every member who is present in person or by proxy shall have one vote for every £1 of Shares not yet converted into Stock of which he is the holder, and one vote for each complete £3 of Preference Stock and one vote for each £1 of Ordinary Stock of which he is the holder.

The minimum subscription on which the Directors may proceed to allotment is fixed by the Articles of Association at seven shares.

The preliminary expenses, estimated at £19,100 (of which amount £15,050 represents stamp duty), together with brokerage, will be paid by the Company.

The Company will pay a brokerage of 1s. per Share on the Shares allotted to the public in respect of applications bearing the stamp of a Banker, Stockbroker, or other approved Agent. A fee of 1,500 Guineas will be paid to the Company's Brokers.

Application for Shares (which must be for five Shares, or multiples of five) should be made on the accompanying form and sent to Martins Bank Limited, Head Office, or any of its branches, with a remittance for the amount payable on application. If no allotment be made the application money will be returned in full, and where the number of Shares allotted is less than the number applied for the balance of the application money will be applied towards the amount payable on allotment, and any balance will be returned to the applicant.

Failure to pay any instalment when due will render any previous payment liable to forfeiture, and the allotment to cancellation. Interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum may be charged on any instalment in arrear.

Prints of the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company can be inspected at the Offices of Messrs. Linklaters and Paines, the Solicitors for the Company, between the hours of 11 a.m. and 4 p.m., on any week day, excepting Saturday, whilst the list remains open.

Copies of the Prospectus and Forms of Application can be obtained from the Bankers and Brokers to the Company, or at the Office of the Company.

This Form should be filled up and forwarded to Martins Bank Limited, London Office, 68 Lombard Street, London, E.C.3, their Head Office, Water Street, Liverpool, their Newcastle Office, 22 Grey Street or other Branches, together with a remittance for the amount payable on application.

"THE BEGGAR'S OPERA."

ITS BICENTENARY.

THE FIRST STAGE PEERESS.

By "J. M. W."

ON January 29th, 1728, the now famous "Beggar's Opera" of John Gay was produced for the first time. Though possessing no very exceptional literary or dramatic merit, as a theatrical production it was easily the sensation of the eighteenth century, and had the inestimable effect of re-establishing the prestige of English comic drama at a time when it was showing serious evidences of decay. The distinction of housing its début fell to the Lincoln's Inn Fields Theatre, London, then controlled by the celebrated player-manager Rich. After an unprecedented reception there, the play was taken on tour, which turned out a triumphal progression, round the English provinces, Wales and Scotland, finishing up with a memorable run in Dublin. This success, so remarkable for the times, was due largely to the novelty of the piece, but mainly to the consummate dramatic skill of Lavinia Fenton, who took the part of Polly, and both must be noticed.

The play was suggested to this most indolent, vain and unstable of the minor poets by a remark of Dean Swift, but the real creative impulse had its origin in Gay's disgust at the species of Italian opera which had held the boards in London for some ten years and was still unchallenged. He determined to oust it if he could, and great was his gratification when "The Beggar's Opera" completely succeeded in doing so.

SWIFT'S HELP.

Yet from its initial conception its possibilities were doubted. Gay himself showed his lack of assurance by scrapping his earlier version and beginning all over again. When it was finally completed he wrote to Swift taking credit for having "pushed through this precarious business without servility or flattery." This seems to have been the one point that appealed to Pope: for, when the play was published, he complimented Gay merely on "not prefacing it with a dedication," thus, though much in need of money, deliberately foregoing twenty guineas, the recognised fee for a dedication at that time.

Swift helped the progress of the manuscript with occasional suggestions, but remained sceptical of its success until the end. Congreve, who was also taken into confidence and became a valued consultant, expressed the view that the play would either take greatly or be condemned extremely. Colley Cibber, who was then at the zenith of his fame as manager of Drury Lane, and to whom the play was offered for production, refused it. Even while the first act was in progress on the vital opening night at Lincoln's Inn Fields, and in presence of a crowded and distinguished audience, the critics sat not only frankly, but ostentatiously, cynical. When, however, Polly came forward and sang her pathetic appeal to her parents—"O ponder well, be not severe"—all apprehensions and scepticism were abruptly dispelled by the thunderous applause of the audience. At one stroke, so to speak, she had brought undreamt of renown to Gay and established the success of the new form of opera.

POLLY'S TRIUMPH.

Polly had also achieved a personal triumph that makes the popularity of our own leading actresses almost tame by comparison. "The person who acted Polly," says Dr. Johnson, "till then obscure, became all at once a favourite of the town; her pictures were engraved and sold in great numbers; her life written, books of letters and verses to her published, and pamphlets made even of her sayings and jests." Society women actually had her songs printed on their fans, and all the great houses of London had them worked into their screens.

Following this dazzling success came an equally dazzling romance. The King, Queen, and Princess had been to witness her performances, and nearly every noble in the land as well, not even excepting the Prime Minister, Sir Robert Walpole, to "whose corrupt practices in the management of a majority in the House of Commons" the play made sly, but unmistakable, allusions. But none had been so frequently there as the Duke of Bolton, and just as society was beginning to gossip about the regularity of his atentdance, the secret came out like a bolt from the blue. He had fallen in love with Polly. Of course, there were protests, head-shakes, and in some quarters anger; for with all her popularity the idea of a stage-singer marrying into a ducal family was as startling as it was new. The Duke persisted in his suit, and after a very brief courtship Lavinia Fenton became the Duchess of Bolton, and the first actress to marry into the British peerage.

PERFORMANCES IN DUBLIN.

The play continued to attract overflowing audiences at Lincoln's Inn Fields for the unprecedented duration of sixty-two nights. In its tour it also broke all records, being staged in Dublin, for instance, on twenty-four successive evenings. As the wits remarked at the time, it "made Gay rich and Rich gay," although Gay came much less well out of the commercial side of the adventure than his wily producer. According to the custom then followed, he got the entire receipts on the third, sixth, ninth and fifteenth nights of the London performances, amounting in all to about £700, while Rich pocketed the rest, said to be little short of £8,000. Gay, nevertheless, considered himself well recompensed, the more so as the success of his play had, in addition to bringing him needful funds, enhanced his prestige and increased his chances of favour in Court circles—no small reward for one of his vanity and social ambitions.

FILMS BY WIRELESS.

NEW YORK TO LONDON IN AN HOUR.

A scheme which may make it possible to see a film in London an hour after it has been "shot" in New York is the latest probable outcome of the British invention—a sort of "tele-cinematograph"—which is operated by wireless.

"It is at present a practical impossibility to transmit moving pictures instantaneously," said Mr. S. Welch, who is one of the inventors, "because this would necessitate sending sixteen pictures a second—which is too fast, even for modern wireless telegraphy.

"To overcome this difficulty, a film is taken of, say, a football match. This is at once developed, and is then ready for transmission.

"Everybody knows that it is a simple matter to transmit a 'still' picture. And by this invention it is possible to send two 'stills' a second; so that the film is received the other end at that rate, developed, and put on the screen at the normal rate of sixteen pictures a second. It is really a sort of process of 'gearing down.'

"With modern developing apparatus the transmission can be accomplished at any distance, provided the wireless is powerful enough within an hour."

By means of this invention it will be possible to broadcast a film of a cup-tie in Glasgow to cinema theatres all over the British Isles on the same afternoon.

Films can also be sent privately in the same way by telephone.

The Oldest Tennis Players.

The late Duke of Richmond was known as an all-round sportsman, and a correspondent suggests that he was, probably, one of the oldest lawn tennis players. According to the diary of my informant, the Duke was one of a party which was playing the game at Homburg so long ago as the summer of 1876. He may well have had among his opponents Lord Balfour, who is less than three years his junior, and was addicted to the game before he took up golf.

EARL BALFOUR.

For the latter game, by the way, the Duke did a notable service when, on the formation of the Spey Bay Club, he gave a lease of the ground necessary for a course at an annual rental of a few shillings. It is now the favourite resort of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald. The Duke was as popular with his Scottish as with his English tenantry, and it was a matter of regret to them when infirmity prevented his annual visit to Fochabers Castle.

Lawyers' "Grand" Night.

It is interesting to note that when Mr. T. M. Healy, the retiring Governor-General, attended the "grand night" at the King's Inns on Saturday night, the two presiding benchers were Northerners practising in Belfast—Mr. E. S. Murphy and Mr. John McGonigal. The spirit of fellowship among lawyers, which is represented by those old-established social gatherings, has not been weakened by the separation of the judicial systems of the two administrative parts of our island.

Many of the recorded best stories of the law and of lawyers came, in the palmy days of Irish wit and humour, from those dinners in the King's Inns, where the benchers eat in isolated grandeur on a platform that raises them above the barristers and law students. On a "grand" night each diner is allowed a double supply of wine which, perhaps, may have accounted for the excellence of the stories told both on and below the dais.

"The Candle and Carpet Brigade."

"The paragraph which appeared in the 'Irishman's Diary' a week ago about winter bathing at Sandycove may have had the effect of making those who read it feel colder than our present weather would really warrant; but it misses, I think, the main point," writes a correspondent.

"Everything considered," he tells me, "this has been a fine, open winter, and not too cold, except, perhaps, about Christmas. Winter bathing has fallen off, not because of the weather, but just because it has dropped out of fashion.

"I only know of two 'regulars' now at 'The Forty-Foot'—Dr. Johnstone, the well-known student of Shakespeare, and Mr. D. Rowlands, the old hockey international left half. Big, genial Fred. Harris has gone; but his great friend, R. H. Keller, and others of the companionship are still hale and hearty. It would be too much to expect Dr. P. MacDermot to go to the 'Forty-Foot' now; but his spirit surely is with his old friends.

"Then there are James Kinnear, Oscar Conway, Willie Carroll (of boxing fame) and his friend, James Green, not forgetting the blind Mr. Doran, at whose admirable courage we all marvelled. None of these is a 'regular' nowadays, and very few come forward to fill their places. The modern world, perhaps, has little use for the heroic side of winter bathing."

"Fat Fees" for Counsel

The references that have been made to the extremely large retainers and fees paid to Sir John Simon, reminds a correspondent of some similar plums that have fallen to the lot of distinguished counsel in exceptional cases. The late Serjeant Ballantine (who was counsel for the "Claimant" in the extraordinary Tichborne case, in which he agreed to a non-suit) subsequently accepted a big retainer, stated to have been £8,000, with "fat fees" as daily "refreshers," as special counsel for H.M. Mulhar Rao, the Gaekwar of Baroda. That was the first retainer ever received by a member of the English Bar to appear as advocate upon any trial in India. It was in 1875, and the defendant, who was the ruler of the largest independent State in Western India, was put on trial before a Commission, headed by the Chief Justice, for the alleged attempted murder of the English officer who held the post of British Resident.

An Enterprising Company.

I went up to Belfast to see the Rugby international on Saturday, having been fortunate enough to secure a seat in the special restaurant train which the Great Northern Railway Company ran specially for the occasion. Mr. W. J. F. Horne, the Dublin traffic superintendent, was in charge of the excursion arrangements, which were carried out with admirable efficiency. The restaurant train, which left Amiens street at 10.45 a.m., was an exceedingly popular innovation. For a most reasonable figure the traveller was supplied with a good lunch on the outward journey and an excellent dinner on the way home. Both meals were included in the first class fare.

MR. W. J. F. HORNE.

A Pleasant Trip.

Some 270 persons travelled in this train, to which were attached four restaurant cars. Mr. Crossley, the popular manager of the Great Northern's hotel and refreshment room system, was a passenger on the outward journey, while Mr. J. B. Stephens, general manager of the company, came back with us from Belfast. The official who was responsible for the smooth working of the arrangements en route and for personal attention to the wants of the parties, the members of which wanted to be together, etc., was Mr. Foley, of the Dublin traffic department, who travelled both ways in the train. His solicitude for his passengers' comfort was one of the features of a very enjoyable trip.

The run to and from Belfast was broken only by what seemed to be a totally unnecessary Customs examination at the frontier, both going and coming, and, even with this delay, it took only two hours and twenty minutes. In addition to this train de luxe, the company ran two ordinary excursion "specials," and Mr. Foley told me that about 1,500 Dubliners were carried to and from the Northern capital.

The Four Courts Portico.

The beautiful portico of the Dublin Four Courts has a history attached to its erection, with which few people are familiar. Gandon, the great architect, writing on the subject, said: "I was induced, through the particular suggestion of a noble and influential Peer, the Earl of Portarlington, to set back the portico, which I originally designed to cover the footway (as in the case of the Parliament House). This I considered a great sacrifice of the beauty of the front."

As was pointed out at the time, the portico, as erected, did not serve the original purpose of giving projection or affording shadow or shelter to the entrance. Still the entire façade, taken from end to end, has a noble effect, and presides, as it were, over the quay and river with a dignity worthy of a great city. Indeed, with the crowning glory of the reconstructed dome, architecture never produced anything more gratifying to the senses.

A Romantic Novelist.

Among the romantic novelists of whom Ireland has just reason to be proud is Mr. Henry de Vere Stacpoole. When visiting a friend at De Vesci place, Kingstown, recently, he showed me at the back of his house the ruins of the Academy where the father of the distinguished writer presided over the education of the youth of the district for many years. He was the Rev. William Church Stacpoole, D.D. Mr. Stacpoole has also family associations with Clare, being a grandson of the late Captain Charles Stacpoole, of Ennis.

The novels of Mr. Stacpoole, full of the glamour and colour of the South Seas, are the results of a life lived there, and of the personal observations made during several deep-sea expeditions. Before he went South, however, Mr. Stacpoole had other experience, and lived a sedater existence—in other words, he practised for some time as a doctor. He tells us that what drew him to literature were the works of Carlyle and the German metaphysicians and poets.

The Last of the Victorians.

In the obituaries of the late Mr. Thomas Hardy he was generally referred to as "the last of the Victorians." But a friend of ancient memory reminds me that this title really belongs to a distinguished figure still happily with us—namely, the Right Hon. Sir George Otto Trevelyan, Bart., whose wife died on Thursday.

Sir George, who will be ninety in July, was a member of Parliament in the years when the Fenians were causing trouble in Ireland. He represented Tynemouth in 1865—just think of it, sixty-three years ago! But his own associations were more direct than this. He was Chief Secretary for Ireland in 1882, and, again, in later years paid political visits to the country as a supporter of the Home Rule cause. In those days, when progress was a matter of slow and steady growth, Sir George was something of an advanced social reformer. He took, for instance, an active part in furthering the abolition of purchase in the Army, and the extension of household suffrage to the counties. Just imagine "household suffrage" as a great reform, when to-day the issue is the vote for young women of twenty-one.

A Ministerial Optimist.

Mr. A. M. Samuel, who takes a favourable reading of the British trade barometer, is well qualified to do so, for he is not only the present Secretary to the Treasury and a former Secretary of the Overseas Trade Department, but he is a business man of varied experience. He is proud of his descent from a Jewish family which has been settled in Norwich for several hundred years. He is a former Lord Mayor of that city, is a keen student of art and literature, and has written a book of charming essays as well as a monumental work on the herring.

The latter fish, he asserts, has had an important influence on economic history, and would have a still greater if people had the sense to realise how valuable and cheap a food it is. Mr. Samuel would think a day wasted if it did not include herring at one or more meals, and in his previous office he did his best to stimulate the dealers to think out ways, other than salting and smoking, of preparing their wares for the markets. Mr. Samuel's fertility of ideas was of great value at the Overseas Trade Department, and he was largely responsible for the success of the British Fairs in London and Birmingham.

A Racing Senator.

Senator Parkinson during his career on the Turf has won close on two thousand races, and it also can be said of him that for the number of events won in a single season he has beaten all world's "records," that being the year when one hundred and thirty-five successes were credited to him. He won the Irish Derby with First Flier, for whom he had paid the trifle of £35.

MR. PARKINSON.

In fact, a characteristic of the Maddenstown Lodge trainer has always been the use of his own judgment against the fashion of the moment, and in this way he has managed to pick up from time to time rare bargains at most of the big sales.

Mr. Parkinson has retained most of his tried performers, and it is worthy of note that two of these, Bawn-na-glas and Louvixen, have been entered in the Liverpool Hurdle. Waiting, who was running in England during the past year, has rejoined, and other noteworthy previous winners who should be turning up again are O May, Lomond's Lake, Dark Ages, Average, Prospice, Wild Orb, Green Shutter, etc.

Passer, one of the four stallions at the Maddenstown Stud, will be represented by his first crop during next season. They number five, all shapely sorts, and especially promising is the filly from Dorothy Prosper. There are two good-looking colts by St. Louis—Asterisk and King Louis, while there is a lot to like about Captain Dixon's unnamed son of Cygnus from the Irish Oaks winner, Athgreany.

The Speaker's Strain.

Like the Archbishop of Canterbury, and other occupants of high office, the Speaker of the British House of Commons is liable to annoyance by periodical reports of his impending retirement. A good deal of nonsense is talked about the "strain" on the presiding officer of the House of Commons. On Committee days Mr. Whitley is finished by four o'clock, although he has to remain within hail in case he should be needed for the suspension of a disorderly member. On normal occasions his eight hours in the chair are interrupted by half-an-hour or so for tea—one of his predecessor's wise innovations—and the better part of two hours for dinner.

In former days the Speaker's only break was a hurried half-an-hour for his evening meal while the House informally adjourned. It is true that Mr. Whitley has a good deal of work before the House meets, censoring doubtful questions and studying the relevancy of amendments. But he has counsel, a secretary, and the clerks of the House to save him the routine business.

A Link with Parnell.

Mr. Cosgrave's visit to the United States forges a link with Parnell, through the fact that among those who received the Irish visitors in Washington was Colonel Pope Hennessy, who is attached to the British Embassay there, and whose father, Sir John Pope Hennessy, figured prominently in the early days of the Parnellite split. Sir John, when a young Conservative member of the House of Commons, won the attention of Disraeli, who gave him the post of Governor of Hong Kong. After he retired from service with the Foreign Office a Parliamentary vacancy occurred in North Kilkenny, and he won the seat as an anti-Parnellite against Parnell's nominee, the late Mr. Vincent Scully.

The circumstances leading up to the election were interesting. Sir John, before the divorce proceedings had been heard, had been nominated for the vacancy with Parnell's approval by a united convention; but, as it was during recess, the writ for the election could not be moved. After the divorce proceedings Sir John declared himself in opposition to Parnell, who then nominated as his candidate Mr. Scully.

An Irish Silversmith.

As I was climbing one of Killiney's many hills the other day I paid a visit to Miss Mia Cranwill's silversmith's workshop. Miss Cranwill's workshop has been compared to those in which the monks of the middle ages wrought their craft. From this little shop came the casket which Senator Mrs. Stopford Green presented to the Senate. The casket is copper, overlaid with hammered and pierced silver. It represents the River Wyvern, the arms of the Stopford family, which form central part of the casket, and other symbolic or quaint designs.

MISS CRANWILL.

Miss Cranwill has sent a chalice and a monstrance to San Francisco. The chalice was on exhibition in the National Museum for some months, while the monstrance was shown in the Manchester Art Gallery, Dublin, and also London, where Mrs. Winston Churchill was one of the many visitors who came to see it. Miss Cranwill studied in the Schools of Art in Salford and Manchester. She has had awards from South Kensington in pottery work, and she holds certificates in metal work, enamelling, jesso modelling, model leather work, and has studied architecture and anatomy.

QUIDNUNC.

A DUBLIN ROMANCE.

T.P.'S STORY OF MRS. MICHAEL GUNN.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Sunday.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, in the Sunday Times to-day, says that Mrs. Michael Gunn's quiet departure in the tranquil retreat of Hove brings to an end a picturesque career, and recalls the memory of a once remarkable figure in the theatrical life of Dublin and London. "I was present when Michael Gunn and his brother John, both dead, made an application to the Attorney-General of the period in Ireland for the licence to open the now famous Gaiety Theatre of Dublin. Michael Gunn was then the handsomest man in Dublin—genial, good-humoured, courageous, somewhat Bohemian. After the Gaiety Theatre had become an enormous success he got acquainted and tied up with D'Oyly Carte, and it was largely through his initiative that there came the great season of Gilbert and Sullivan, the Savoy Hotel and the Savoy Theatre. His marriage to his wife was a romantic love match. She was a very handsome woman, both in face and figure, very clever, very kind-hearted. She made the acquaintance of Mr. Gunn when she came over from her native America to take a part in one of the plays. It was a case of love almost at first sight. She was extremely devoted to her children, and it is from the best-known of them—Haidee Gunn—that I learned the sad news of her passing away. After her husband's death Mrs. Gunn devoted herself mainly to her children, left the stage entirely, and for some years now has lived in silence and retreat in Hove."

CAMBRIDGE FELLOWSHIPS.

The electors to the Rouse Ball Professorship of English Law have elected Percy Henry Winfield, LL.D., Fellow St. John's College, into the professorship, which was recently founded under the will of the late W. W. Rouse Ball, Fellow of Trinity College.

At Christ's College the following elections to research fellowships have been made:—Douglas Rayner Hartree, Ph.D., and Thomas Maxwell Harris, M.A.

DID NOT SPARE THE ROD.

AN AMERICAN SCHOOLMASTER'S RECORD.

A grim statistical record of the achievements of an old-time American schoolmaster has been found in one of the earlier magazines published in the United States—the "People's Magazine," of 1856

This is the record of John James Hauberle, who, according to the magazine, "taught school for fifty-one years." In that period he gave the boys entrusted to his care:—

29,899 "ferrulings,"
136,715 blows with one hand,
10,325 "slaps on the chops,"
7,905 boxes on the ear,
1,115,000 raps on the head,
12,342 "nota benes" with the Bible, Catechism, Psalm Book, and grammar.

He had also made boys kneel 613 times on peas and 777 times on a three-cornered block of wood.

It is those people who have nothing to do who have time to be melancholy.—Professor Grierson.

WONDERS OF SCIENCE.

PROGRESS OR CHAOS?

A VISION OF THE DAY AFTER TO-MORROW.

WE all feel—do we not?—that things are changing very rapidly nowadays. When Mr. George Bernard Shaw, in his "Methusaleh" only two or three years ago, staged television, it seemed the wildest fantasy, whereas now one can buy shares in a company formed to work the television patent on a commercial basis. In chemistry, biology and psychology changes as remarkable as those occurring in the realm of physics and electricity are taking place. We marvel most, no doubt, at the harnessing of the ether-waves, because they are not seen. That which we always have called space we have now to recognise as anything but a void. That is the most definite volte-face we have to make, but other conceptions also have to be revised. In "The Day After To-morrow (What is going to happen to the world?") (Hutchinson, 7s. 6d.) Sir Philip Gibbs assembles and discusses some of the changes and discoveries that appear most likely to be potent in altering the organisation of life in the next fifty years.

Conscious though we may be of the rapidity of change, we are losing the sense of wonder. Records of progress in aviation, which ought to startle us, come now into the day's news beside the last by-election result; we turn the page with a perfunctory comment.

SPREADING OUR WINGS.

"In London now one can stroll down Bond street and buy an aeroplane as easily as a tooth-pick. . . In March of this year a boy of fifteen and a man of sixty-five qualified as pilots of the 'Moth' after a short period of tuition. When such a machine as that is produced at £150, payable by instalments, and when the risk of flight is not quite so perilous to the beginner, the sky will be crowded with butterflies as well as moths, and the flappers of the future will spread their wings to do a morning's shopping. In less than twenty-five years from now it will happen, if we can believe the prophets of civil aviation."

New inventions and developments present themselves most often as additions to the conveniences of civilisation. Soon, however, another aspect is seen. All the marvels of science are turned as readily to destruction as to human happiness and welfare. While men and their political organisations are as they are, scientific advance ought not to be welcomed, perhaps, so much as to be feared. We can speculate—and Sir Philip Gibbs does speculate along various lines—on changes that may have occurred, in the organisation of national and international affairs by the day after to-morrow; but what of human nature and personality; what of man's self-knowledge and self-control? All other changes may be insignificant if there be change in man.

GODS OR DEVILS?

Change in man is brought, indeed, into view in these pages in accounts of investigations of new paths of biology and psychology—paths which may lead to lengthening of life and extension of the powers of mind—and the possibilities are startling enough, till we reach the conclusion that they cancel out eventually. Thus, life-lengthening and death-evading measures would raise a population above the food-yielding resources of the earth, and Nature would see to it that the balance was restored. Mechanical devices for the "annihilation of space" may be rendered all of no account if psychic communication can be achieved.

No, the great matter is—What of the soul of man?

"Everything comes back—and goes forward—to that conflict of the spirit between good and evil. We cannot imagine even the vaguest picture of the future unless we in our own minds first know whether good or evil is going to prevail, and under what philosophy of life mankind is going to work out its next chapters of history. Will men be like gods, as H. G. Wells portrayed them? Or will they be like devils? Or will they remain, as humanity now is in the mass, a strange mixture of spirituality and animalism, of kindness and cruelty, of high ideals and low morality?"

HEAVEN ON EARTH.

For answers to these questions the records of change furnish little or no guidance. Sir Philip Gibbs finds it possible only to cherish faith. The dream of the Day after To-morrow is a dream of the kingdom of heaven on earth. "It is a dream which has stirred the imagination of great thinkers since the beginning of civilisation. . . . To-day, in spite of a thousand disillusions, all the teaching of history, deplorable set-backs to civilisation with its cycles of advance and decay, it is the dream that still haunts hopeful minds excited by the advance of science and the triumphs of the human mind over the material forces of life. . . . And yet, alas—I see no sign that it is near at hand. . . . Scientists of to-day, the wisest of them, are filled with grave anxieties about the near future, and prophesy dark things. They are afraid of the powers they are putting into the hands of men. They have no great faith in man's intelligence or moral code."

Sir Philip Gibbs describes his own position in this matter as standing in the middle of the road. He sees the spirit of good never wholly overthrown, and always rising again with courage and faith. The kingdom of heaven on earth is not due the Day after To-morrow, but it will not have ceased to be the ideal for which men and women will strive. The struggle to maintain it will not become easier. Man will have need of religion. "Somehow we must get back to God."

A PROFESSION OF FAITH.

Let us welcome the author's profession of faith. "In the Day after To-morrow I see a revival of faith in spiritual values, and a return to religion at the call of new saints and prophets in a world of conflict and confusion. . . Whatever happens there is only one thing that matters, broad and large, and that is the courage of man himself to face whatever adventures life demands of him, and the faith of man in his highest conception of God."

One has preferred in this review to draw attention to the author's philosophising, rather than to cite those evidences of scientific advance which he displays in such fascinating array. Readers who may not have patience for his moral disquisition will find a sufficiency of interest in the author's tale of scientific adventures—under such headings as radio-active energy, darkness made visible, speeding up evolution, the ductless glands, synthetic foods, new sources of power, atomic energy, thought transference, eyeless sight, and supernormal faculties.

Our sense of wonder may be dulled, but here is matter in abundance to stimulate it afresh.

We have heard a good deal about the divine spark, in which animals do not share, in man; what about the infernal spark, in which also they do not share?—Dr. A. Shadwell.

The experience of the P.L.M. Railway has been that road traffic is complementary to and scarcely at all competitive with rail transport, especially when the two methods of transport are co-ordinated under one administration.—Sir Martin Conway, M.P.

A SOUTHERN LETTER.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.
CORK, Sunday.

A FURTHER step towards the attainment of a parliamentary measure for the re-establishment of the Borough Council of Cork, which would, so far as is possible, meet the desires of all shades of opinion, will be taken this week when a conference of local traders will be held. The Lord Mayor, Mr. Sean French, T.D., whose sole aim in the matter is the retention of the controlling powers in civic affairs in the hands of elected representatives, has extended invitations to attend this meeting to the Chairman of Cork Chamber of Commerce, Mr. P. Crowley; the Chairman of Cork Chamber of Shipping and Commerce, Mr. E. Harte; the Chairman of Cork Harbour Commissioners, Mr. F. J. Daly, and also to Mr. Barry Egan, T.D. (Government); Mr. R. S. Anthony, T.D. (Labour), and Mr. Hugo Flinn, T.D. (Fianna Fail).

The conference will be held as soon as convenient after to-morrow's meeting of the old corporators, and the Lord Mayor himself is very hopeful that their deliberations will go a long way towards the practical realisation of that unity which he so desires in this matter.

COUNTY CORK ROADS.

Although numerous deputations waited on the local County Council at the special Roads Expenditure meeting on Thursday, it is to be feared that only a few of their requests can be granted. The sitting occupied the major portion of the day, but, despite that, little was accomplished beyond the limitation of their expenditure to £160,000, of which £16,000 was allocated to the establishment of new works.

In view of the fact that, after ten months' collection, more than half the rates for the county are outstanding, the Council naturally felt that to embark on any new schemes of ambitious character would be unwise. Several of the members bemoaned the precarious financial condition in which the farmers of the county found themselves at present, and it was declared that they were unable to bear the present burden of high taxation. "We all want efficient administration and proper well-kept roads," said the Chairman, Mr. W. J. Broderick, "but in dealing with the matter we must take into account the capacity of the people to pay for such administration."

A discussion regarding the distribution of the £16,000 for new works among the various districts produced a certain amount of heated exchanges, and eventually the meeting adjourned without arriving at any decision either as to the length of the adjournment or to the allocation of the £16,000.

KINSALE'S REVIVING PROSPERITY.

Up to twenty years ago mackerel-fishing was one of the most important industries in Kinsale, and its decline at that period was a serious blow to the community of this historic town. It is, therefore, gratifying to learn that the establishment last year of the harbour as a centre for a number of large Scottish firms of herring-curers holds out the promise of a much-needed revival of prosperity in the district. As was revealed in the Government inquiry into the question of a close season for herrings which opened there last week, the Harbour Commissioners' revenue for last year was more than four times the total for 1925.

Inspired, as a result, with a warrantable feeling of optimism, the Board has made a number of improvements in the harbour, and, I understand, is at present contemplating the purchase of a dredger, in order that the channel and berthage at the pier may be kept at the requisite depth. As an indication of the efforts to promote industry at the port, I may mention that, with a view solely to conveniencing the herring-curers in their work, the Commissioners have also laid down a water supply at considerable expense to the pier.

The town itself, with its narrow, winding streets and old-world atmosphere, has an attraction peculiar to itself for the visitor. The townspeople are steeped in the historic associations connected with the place, and it is their proud boast that the City of Cork was formerly described as a "small village near Kinsale."

SHIPBUILDING INDUSTRY REVIVAL.

Hopes of a period of activity in the shipbuilding industry in Cork Harbour are also entertained, and after a period of idleness lasting more than ten months over three hundred men are now employed at the Queenstown Dry Docks, Shipbuilding and Engineering Company's yard at Rushbrooke. It is, perhaps, a happy omen that their first vessel for 1929, the s.s. Cadillac, is the largest steamer which has ever come up the River Lee. Her tonnage is approximately 12,000, and she is 537 feet long with a 65ft. beam, and is 33 feet in depth.

BEET SUGAR FACTORIES.

Cork and Limerick are vieing with each other, among other matters, in regard to the establishment of a beet sugar factory, and at a recent conference held in the latter city a resolution was passed calling on the Ministry of Industry and Commerce to proceed with the construction of the Limerick railway from Limerick docks to the Great Southern system. It was pointed out at the meeting, which was representative of the County Agricultural Committee, the local Corporation and the Trades and Labour Council, that this step would be essential to the success of a beet factory.

"MOCKTION" SALES.

In connection with other cities in Great Britain and also in Ireland, Cork goldsmiths, silversmiths and jewellers have taken steps to warn a gullible public regarding the iniquities of mock auction sales of jewellery and other time-honoured methods of depriving a too-trusting people of their finances. During the past few days sandwichmen have paraded the main thoroughfares of the city bearing placards, inscribed: "Beware of Mock Auction Sales." I am informed that this course has been adopted following numerous complaints regarding the quality of goods which have been purchased at "less than cost price."

DOES IT PAY TO GRADUATE?

HOW UNIVERSITY MEN FARE IN BUSINESS.

Is a University education necessary in business? Are University men and women more successful in the long run than boys and girls who leave school at fifteen or sixteen?

These problems have been raised by young students entering the world of commerce, and experts who were consulted expressed contrary views.

In favour of University education it was urged:—

It trains men to be leaders.
It develops intellectual acuteness and adaptability.
It gives social advantage.
It forms an intellectual background.

On the other hand, in favour of leaving school early, it was said that:—

It gives a man three or four years' start of a 'Varsity graduate.
It enables him to earn more at an early age.
It does not waste time amassing "useless" knowledge.
It allows a wider field for the development of the "cultural" side of life.

The professions for which a University training was most valuable were, it was said, overcrowded, and in many cases badly under-paid.

RISING TO THE TOP.

Mr. R. N. May, secretary of the National Union of Students of the Universities and University Colleges of England and Wales, made out a strong case for University training. "I should say it is most important for anyone going into business to have a general University education, though not necessarily in the subjects with which he will be dealing in later life.

"If he is going to be an engineer, he need not study engineering at the University. If he wants to rise to the top of his profession, it is far better for him to have a general course in, say, English history, classics, and so on, rather than specialise in one thing.

"But even if he is studying engineering only, he will have at the University an opportunity of meeting men studying other things, and this will broaden his outlook. Men who leave school at sixteen and go straight into a factory and learn the technicalities of an industry in that way will never have much chance of meeting people other than engineers.

"All day long they will have to work with them, and their minds will become purely engineering minds. But if a man goes to the 'Varsity he will meet men studying all kinds of things and realise that engineering is not the only thing in the world. By so doing he may not turn out a better engineer, but he will be a more cultured man and therefore of more use to the community.

WHAT THE BIG FIRMS SAY.

Mr. F. W. Goldstone, general secretary of the National Union of Teachers, described the experience of big firms in London. "I am quite satisfied that the experience of some of the big firms, who have appointed men with University training, particularly for their more responsible posts, has been entirely justified.

"I agree that men who take the big posts in business are all the better if they have a groundwork of good academic training, with specialisation towards the end of their University career. Take some of the big engineering firms and oil companies. So far as several of these are concerned, I believe their practice now is to recruit a considerable number of men from the Universities who have taken good degrees, and to give them their opportunity after some period of training in the firm to take responsible posts.

"But it is well to remember that there are boys and girls who have taken a good secondary school course, and made good at seventeen or eighteen while continuing their studies and discharging their duties in connection with the firm at the same time.

"I should think a combination of young folk who have joined business at the end of a secondary or technical school course, together with University men, would be a business combination of the happiest kind."

A young Cambridge Master of Arts in London, when asked his opinion, was brief and to the point:—"As a practical business asset I have found my degree absolutely worthless," he said.

AN ANGLO-GERMAN AIR LINE.

In the summer of this year the air passenger service between London and Cologne will be doubled; for, in addition to the British service, a Belgian air line is to operate over the same route. It will then be possible to fly from Cologne to London and back in one day, with sufficient time for the transaction of business here. Hitherto it has been possible to fly from London to Cologne and back, with a three-hours' stay in the Rhine city, in one day, but not in the reverse direction. It is probable that the time-table for the Belgian machines will provide for the departure from Cologne at 9 a.m. and a return there about 7.30 p.m., with stops at Brussels on both outward and return journeys.

RETIRING GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

PRESENTATION AT KING'S INNS

A presentation to the retiring Governor-General, Mr. T. M. Healy, K.C., was made by a large number of the Benchers at the King's Inns, Dublin, last Saturday night, when a grand night dinner was held.

The great commons dining hall was filled with benchers, barristers and students from the North and South.

The presentation was made to His Excellency after the dinner by the Chief Justice, Mr. Hugh Kennedy, K.C., on behalf of his brethren of the Bench. It took the form of three old Irish silver cups of great value.

The presiding benchers were Mr. E. S. Murphy and Mr. John McGonigal, both members of the Northern Bar. The other benchers present were:—The Chief Justice, Mr. Hugh Kennedy; the Right Hon. Lord Glenavy, Mr. Godfrey Fetherstonhaugh, Mr. William Morgan Jellett, Mr. Alexander F. Blood, Mr. William Carrigan, Mr. Hewitt R. Poole, the Hon. Mr. Justice Sullivan, President of the High Court of Justice; Mr. Ernest J. Phelps, the Hon. Mr. Justice Meredith, the Hon. Mr. Justice O'Byrne, Mr. A. Kingsbury Overend, Mr. Thomas S. McCann, Mr. Patrick Lynch, Mr. A. Alfred Dickie, Mr. Arthur C. Meredith, Mr. John M. Fitzgerald, Mr. John A. Costello, the Attorney-General, and Mr. Francis Battersby.

STAGE AND SCREEN.

THIS WEEK'S PROGRAMMES.

The playing company of the Dublin University Dramatic Society occupies the stage of the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, this week. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings and Saturday afternoon the company will present Noel Coward's "Hay Fever," preceded by Lord Dunsany's "A Night at an Inn." On the other three evenings the "crook" play, "Ask Beccles," will be staged.

At the Theatre Royal there is another Archie Pitt revue, entitled "Safety First."

A new development at the Abbey Theatre is the presentation of a number of ballets by Miss Ninette de Valois and her pupils of the new Abbey school. The dancing will follow the comedy, "The Eloquent Dempsey."

"Seventh Heaven" is being kept on at the Capitol for another week.

The Grand Central is showing the Fox comedy, "Is Zat So?"

"The Blonde Saint," with Lewis Stone and Doris Kenyon, will be shown for the whole of the week at the Carlton

At the Corinthian there is "Little Devil May Care," the screen adaptation of a well-known French novel.

"The Marriage Hotel" is to be seen at the Sackville for the first half of the week, and "The Diverting Sex" comedy will be shown from Thursday next.

The murder mystery picture, "The Other Woman's Story," heads the programme for the week at the Grafton.

"Tell it to the Marines," and "Roses of Picardy," the latter described as the best war film yet made, are the attractions at The Pavilion, Kingstown

COVENT GARDEN OPERA HOUSE.

SAFETY OF PERFORMERS, PUBLIC AND STAFF.

A report which was issued last Saturday by the London County Council Theatres and Music Halls Committee shows that the Lord Chamberlain, the Home Secretary, and the Committee have been considering questions "relating to the safety of the public and of the performers and staff of the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden."

A conference on the subject took place last month, when the suggestion was made that an independent architect should be appointed to decide any points of difference that might arise in regard to a scheme of improvements between the Council and the Grand Opera Syndicate, Ltd., and that the cost should be shared between the Council, the Grand Opera Syndicate, and the Lord Chamberlain.

As the Council was in recess, the Chairman agreed on its behalf, and the Theatres and Music Halls Committee recommend that his action—limiting the liability of the Council to one-third of the costs of the independent architect, or £100, whichever is the less—be approved.

I can conceive of no folly more colossal than to think that it is possible by some sudden and revolutionary act to change the existing industrial system and then immediately to build upon the wreckage a new, a better, and a superior industrial order.—Right Hon. Philip Snowden, M.P.

VIENNESE WALTZ MUSIC.

CONCERT OF STRAUSS COMPOSITIONS.

The third concert of the "International Celebrities" season, which took place at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, last Saturday, was one out of the ordinary run of concerts. Like the "Jenny Lind" concert included in one of the earlier Celebrity seasons, it was designed as a reminder of a past glory. On this occasion it was not the manner and associations of a popular cantatrice that were recalled, but the vogue of the waltz, and in particular the waltz-music of the celebrated Viennese Strauss "Waltz-Dynasty." A revival of Strauss music at this moment may be hailed as timely, not only on account of the visit of Herr Johann Strauss, the present representative of the dynasty, to conduct the performance; but also because it coincides with the return of the waltz to the ballroom itself. Herr Strauss's tour, with his band of musicians playing the best compositions of the Strauss family, certainly will clinch the re-entry of that ingratiating measure to our dance performance. (And the dance programme cards, they say, are back, too.)

The Johann Strauss of to-day is grandson of Johann, founder of the dynasty, and nephew of Johann the true "Waltz King," to whom we owe the best and most popular numbers. His father, Edouard, brother of the "Waltz King," was another contributor to the stock of Strauss waltz music. The still well known "Doctrinen," I think, was one of Edouard's compositions. The original Johann was Court music-director when first the waltz came into fashion as a ballroom dance, and he set the model for waltz music. He originated also the light opera form, based on the dance. It was the second Johann who created these compositions in waltz form, and in waltz opera form, which now may be called classical. To him we owe the "Blue Danube," the most popular, and the "Tales from the Viennese Forests," the most musical of the waltzes; and to him, also, the chief of the light operas—"The Gipsy Baron" and "The Bat." Many Dublin people will remember Sir Thomas Beecham's production of "The Bat" (Die Fledermaus), which was played alternately with "The Tales of Hoffmann," on the first visit of the Beecham Opera Company to Ireland.

The Johann Strauss who visited Dublin last Saturday has not put himself forward as a composer in succession to his forbears. He is content to appear, at the head of a band of forty musicians practised in authentic waltz measure, as exponent of the family works and tradition. The concert last Saturday consisted of a number of the best waltzes selected from the family output, together with selections representing the light opera works. One of the selections was a vocal solo, the waltz-song, "Fruhlingsstimmen," sung by Vilma Delmar, a young soprano, with a small bright voice, well suited to the agilities of a kind of vocal writing with which we are more familiar in the examples of the composer Arditi. The concluding piece was the "Radetsky" March, a composition of the original Johann, more popular among the Viennese of his day than his waltzes. It was, indeed, the son, Johann the second, who really fixed the name of Strauss in indelible association with the waltz measure.

To the works of Johann the Second, a further concert given in the Theatre Royal yesterday was devoted in its entirety. One of the most popular numbers in this concert was the "Kaiser-Waltz," composed as late as 1898—the 443rd composition of that ready writer. A polka and a galop represented his composition in other measures. The "Blue Danube," although not placed in the programme for this second concert, was played by request, and plainly, as in the Saturday concert, was one of the numbers most enjoyed by the audience.

The concerts were a pleasant experience. It was delightful to hear the light, sparkling strains of the rhythmic pieces played with authentic verve and skill by a specially trained band of instrumentalists, and the presence of the family representative, who conducted in the old style with violin bow and himself led the playing from time to time, assisted the "atmosphere" of the occasion.

POPULAR CONCERTS IN BELFAST.

ENJOYABLE CHORAL SINGING.

The organ recitals and concerts over which Captain C. J. Brennan, Mus.Bac., city organist, so ably presides, were resumed for the remainder of the season in the Ulster Hall, Belfast, last Saturday night. There was a large and appreciative audience, and the community singing, which was a feature of the programme, was much enjoyed. Choral numbers were sung by Mr. Charles D. Kinnis's choir—a combination which he improved very much recently. It is well balanced, the ladies' voices being fresh and beautiful in quality, while depth is given by the excellent bassos, who can roll down to a sonorous low E flat.

The choir sang about a dozen choruses of varying moods, the humorous element being well represented by Herbert Hughes's "Doctor Foster," modelled on the Handelian method; "Bobby Shaftoe," a north country folk song, and a couple of others; while the beauty of real pianissimos was exemplified in the artistic renderings of the "Londonderry Air," arranged by T. R. G. Joze, and "An Eriskay Love Lilt," arranged by H. S. Roberton. The celebrated madrigal, "The Silver Swan," by Orlando Gibbons, received a very creditable performance, the flying fugal imitations being well taken up, while the free accenting in the five parts was meritorious. Generally speaking, the chording was harmonious, although occasionally it was a trifle out of tune. Mr. Kinnis got the best out of his choir, and deserves cordial congratulations on a fine performance.

Miss Jean Kinnis, contralto, sang Beethoven's "In this dark tomb" and Handel's "How changed the vision," and was encored on both occasions. She has a big voice of good quality, which, however, would be improved by cultivation of the middle register. A pleasant toned baritone, Mr. J. Salter Moore, sang Stanford's "Heraclitus" and songs by Burr, Malashkin and Clarke with artistic insight, but his intonation was not always perfect. He was recalled, and responded with humorous items, which were well received. The Misses Cathy, Annie and Jean Kinnis sang trios with harmonious charm, "Three little maids from school" being particularly good, and duets by Miss Annie Kinnis and Mr. Moore were repeatedly encored.

The community singing, under the direction of Captain Brennan, was thoroughly enjoyed, the soloists being the Misses Kathleen Bradbury, Florrie Cooke, Louie Reilly and Mr. David Saunderson. Only one organ solo was played, Giovanni Morandi's "Overture in E Minor," which was skilfully presented by Captain Brennan.

"G.B.S."

AN AMERICAN WOMAN'S EULOGY.

Miss Eleanor Markell, an American lecturer, was in London recently and on returning to the United States has related how she interviewed Mr. Bernard Shaw.

"I had a letter from friends of his in America that I sent to him along with a little note from myself as soon as I reached London," says Miss Markell. "Nothing happened. Then I wrote again myself an innocent little letter without any panegyrics. Nothing happened from that. A few days later I went myself around to his apartment and waited until his secretary came in. The secretary told me there was not the slightest hope."

The next morning, however, she received a nice little note from Mr. Shaw, in answer to her own, making an appointment for ten o'clock next morning. She spent forty-five minutes with the author, and changed all the old ideas she ever held about him.

"He is not cranky and grouchy, as we have been led to believe," Miss Markell stated. "He is a charming old gentleman—not at all like a bear. He speaks with just the slightest suggestion of an Irish brogue, that is delightful. He is tall and thin, awfully well knit, and gives forth a feeling of nervous activity. I am neither a vegeterian nor a teetotaller myself, but, after seeing Mr. Shaw, I am beginning to think there is something in it."

DUBLIN WITNESS STILL ABSENT.

RULING QUESTIONED AT CROKER INQUIRY.

The principal witness for the complainants at the second Irish Croker Commission, Miss C. A. A. Curwen, stationer, of 5 Nassau street, Dublin, who broke down under cross-examination by Mr. Paty last Thursday, and was granted leave of absence by the President of the Commission until Saturday morning, was not present when the Commission assembled at the offices of the American Consulate-General at 9.30 a.m. on Saturday.

Mr. Wood, K.C., senior counsel for the complainants, the children of "Boss" Croker by his first marriage, said that they regretted that they were unable to present Miss Curwen for the continuation of her cross-examination that morning, as had been agreed. He asked the President of the Court to excuse her further. Miss Curwen, he stated, had been medically examined that morning, and her doctor, Dr. J. P. Brennan, would give evidence as to her condition.

Mr. Paty, counsel for the defendant, Mrs. Bula Croker; and Mr. Lichliter, counsel for defendants, J. B. MacDonald and the West Palm Beach Estates Corporation, objected to the evidence on the ground that it was immaterial, irrelevant and incompetent.

Dr. J. B. Brennan stated that he had medically examined Miss Curwen that morning, and he had come to the conclusion that she was still unable to give further evidence or to undergo further cross-examination.

In reply to Mr. Wood, the witness said that it was his opinion that Miss Curwen could not attend without injury to her health.

Counsel for the defendants repeated their objections.

Asked by Mr. Wood whether she would be able to attend next week, Dr. Brennan replied: "Possibly; I should not care to commit myself to an opinion."

Mr. Wood—Is she able to undergo cross-examination without danger to her life?—No; she is not.

Messrs. Paty and Lichliter moved that the whole of the foregoing evidence should be struck out on the several grounds already mentioned.

QUESTION OF JURISDICTION.

Mr. Cornelius Ferris, the Consul-General and President of the Commission, decided to excuse the witness until this morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Paty took exception to this ruling on the grounds that it was outside the scope of the inquiry and that it was outside the jurisdiction of Mr. Ferris, who, he stated, had no jurisdiction in the matter other than to receive the evidence and have it conveyed to the District Court in Florida.

As the Commission was adjourning until to-day, Mr. Paty made a statement, in the course of which he said: "We would like to note in the record that we do not by any manner whatsoever intend to leave the impression that we waive our right to further cross-examination of the witness, Clara Curwen, as we have matters to inquire of her that we have not yet been able to ask her."

Mr. Nichliter subscribed to this statement, and added that he wished it to be noted in the records that there has been no "waiver" on the part of the defendants, whom he represented, to the further right to the cross-examination of the witness, Clara Curwen.

Mr. Wood, counsel for the complainants, said that he wished to have it put on record that they were most anxious to produce Miss Clara Curwen for cross-examination at the earliest possible moment, provided that it would not endanger her life.

DIE SINKERS CROSS-EXAMINED.

Before the adjournment the cross-examination of Mr. H. B. Croker, managing director of the firm of H. S. Croker and Company, Ltd., London, die sinkers, was continued by Mr. W. G. Shannon, K.C. He described the process of "sinking," or punching a die, and identified two other sheets of "Glencairn" notepaper as having been stamped by the telephone address die, "exhibit No. 1."

The next witness was Mr. John M. Wotton, expert die sinker, a director of the firm of Messrs. H. S. Croker and Company, who confirmed the statement of Mr. H. B. Croker that the die had been altered.

SURPRISE ARREST.

"ON THE RUN" FOR FOUR YEARS.

Michael M'Brien, who has been "on the run" for close on four years, was arrested in his father's house at Altchahunnion, Swanlinbar, County Cavan, on Friday, at 3 p.m., by Detective Conway and Sergeant Langtry, Glangeolin.

He was remanded in custody.

CO. CORK BURGLARY.

TWO SUSPECTS CAPTURED WHEN LEAVING COUNTRY.

The premises of Messrs. Murray and Sons, merchants, builders and contractors, of Store street, Youghal, were broken into in the early hours of last Saturday morning. The safe was forced open, and a considerable amount of cash taken.

Information was received later from Clashmore (County Waterford) that two strange young men arrived there on Saturday morning, and procured a motor car to take them to Dungarvan. Here it was learned that they proceeded to Waterford, and the Civic Guards discovered that they purchased new clothes and entrained for Rosslare, where they were subsequently captured by the Guards on a description received from Youghal as they were about to board the boat for Fishguard.

BEER AND SPIRIT DUTIES.

YOUGHAL AND FERMOY CALL FOR REDUCTION.

Opposing a resolution calling on their representatives in the Dail to urge a reduction in the duties on beer and spirits, the Chairman of the Fermoy Urban Council (Mr. W. J. Paye), at the last meeting of that body, said that he believed that the high taxation on drink had made people more sober than anything else. He remembered in the old days, when the public-houses were open until eleven o'clock at night, that a working man would be generally kicked out at about that hour, but they did not see that going on now.

Mr. G. Power—I do not think the working man would agree with that.

The working man, Mr. Power added, was as well entitled to a pint of beer as the rich man, who could afford light wines and champagne.

The resolution was carried by six votes to two.

Youghal Urban Council unanimously adopted a similar resolution.

The Chairman (Mr. P. J. McMahon) said that it was a most important matter for the country. They talked about profiteering and looting, but fancy a duty of 72s. 6d. on an article that cost 6s. They had some sixty public-houses in that town, all of which were vitally affected by those duties.

Mr. M. J. Fleming, who proposed the resolution, said that a reduction in the duties would result in better prices for barley, and the farming community wanted all the help that they could get at present.

DERRY MODEL SCHOOLS.

The allegations made at a recent meeting of the Londonderry Corporation, that the model schools which the Ministry proposes to transfer to the Education Committee, which is against accepting the transfer, are in a state of delapidation, and would require thousands of pounds to put them in repair, are strongly resented by Mr. H. Barbour, M.A., T.C.D., headmaster of the schools since 1898. In a statement to the Press he said:—"The model school building is in an excellent condition of decorative repair; in fact, I may adequately descrbe our school as palatial."

PATIENTS ENTERTAINED.

An enjoyable entertainment was provided for the patients at the Countess of Wicklow Memorial Cottage Hospital, Arklow, by the Arklow Girl Guides, under the direction of Miss Murphy. The items included company drill, step-dancing and a wax-work show—which caused considerable amusement—as well as Guide games. The entertainment was brought to a close with the rendering of camp songs.

CORK FARMERS AND POLITICS.

DISSATISFACTION WITH EXECUTIVE.

THE PROPOSAL TO CUT ADRIFT POSTPONED.

From Our Agricultural Correspondent.
CORK, Saturday.

After a lively discussion the County Cork Farmers' Union Executive postponed for three months any decision on the motion from the Glanmire Branch:—

"That County Cork Farmers' Union pay no further contributions to the National Executive funds, and that all further connection be severed until that body proves that it merits and enjoys the support of the farmers in the other counties in the Free State. That experience has amply proved that exclusive attention to co-operative selling and buying will place the Union on a sound footing."

With Mr. E. J. Cussen as secretary, the County Cork Union has done so much practical work by way of co-operative trading, apart from politics, that many of its members cannot tolerate the slowness of other counties to follow suit. It was contended at the Cork annual meeting that, as two-thirds of the affiliation fees for the Irish Free State were paid by Cork, the National Executive should pay more attention to the needs of County Cork. It was stated that no other county paid on a 20 per cent. basis, and that other counties would be in a stronger position if they confined their attention to business, and dropped politics as part of the work of the Irish Farmers' Union.

Although the motion was supported by many who thought that farmers would attain their end by indirectly influencing the political party in power, the majority were not disposed to sever their connection with headquarters, at least until after the congress. It was feared by several that a break away at present would be disastrous to the whole farming community. One opponent of the motion expressed the view that other counties should be compelled to increase their contribution to the National Executive. He also hoped that the Farmers' Party, as such, would be revived.

Another proposal was to reduce the County Cork contribution, while a further suggestion was that delegates to Congress should be instructed to ask the farmers of Ireland to drop politics from the Farmers' Union programme, and work for their objects indirectly.

THE MEETING.

"NOT GETTING GOOD VALUE."

CORK, Saturday.

Mr. A. Mullins, who moved the adoption of the recommendation, said that when a similar proposal was made at their last annual meeting he was one who had frankly opposed it. But since then he had had reason to modify his views on the matter, and he was forced to the conclusion that they were not getting good value for their contributions to the Central Fund. The County Cork Farmers' Union seemed to be the only county in the Free State abiding by the rules, and sending 20 per cent. of their subscriptions to the Executive in Dublin. The fact was that Cork had contributed over £200 towards the Executive funds this year, and the total of all the contributions from the rest of the Free State did not amount to more than half that sum.

Was it, he asked, because they in Cork had a good organisation that they should keep the people in Dublin in office? They could, in his opinion, put the money to much better use in the county in a variety of ways. The resolution did not mean that they were cutting themselves off from Dublin. Dublin had cut itself off from Cork, as they had absolutely no organisation there. But the Irish Farmers' Union must change their methods, as they in Cork had virtually done.

"The idea would be," proceeded Mr. Mullins, "to give up politics altogether and turn our attentions to the economic side of the question. But," he added, "they do not seem to be able to do that in Dublin."

THE COUNTY CONTRIBUTIONS.

Mr. Richard Daly said, instead of Cork being attached to Dublin, Dublin should be attached to Cork.

Mr. E. J. Cussen read the latest returns of contributions to the National Executive funds, which showed that Cork had handed over £207 7s.; Meath, £15; Kilkenny, £10; Waterford, £10; Wexford, £10; Clare, £10; Dublin, £10; Longford, £10; Cavan, £10; Offaly, £10; South Tipperary, £10; Leitrim, £5; Sligo, £2—making a total of £315 7s., of which Cork had contributed £207 7s.

Mr. J. O'Sullivan said that he did not altogether agree with the suggested severance from the National Executive, but he thought that they should contribute only the average contribution for the rest of the counties in the Free State.

Mr. D. L. O'Gorman said that in one matter, at any rate, the other speakers were under a misapprehension—under the terms of the resolution they proposed cutting themselves off, not from Dublin, but from the rest of the Free State. He was very glad to see that Cork was the leading county in the Free State, but the time was when Cork was not the leading county in the Union, and the time was when she was very low. They should not forget that fact, or the many benefits which had accrued from their participation in combined actions for reforms in agricultural matters. If the Farmers' Union were to be effective and have weight, efficiency, and prestige, it must be a Farmers' Union of the Free State, and, in course of time, an Irish Farmers' Union of All-Ireland. He supported the proposition to reduce their contributions, but at the same time he thought that the real solution was by appealing to the other counties for increased activities and subscriptions.

BUSINESS AND POLITICS.

"We have been led to believe by the previous speakers," he continued, "that business and politics do not go hand-in-hand. Politics and business do go hand-in-hand—in fact, are almost inseparable—and the most powerful instrument you have for your development is direct representation in the Dail, and no body of men in Ireland is more entitled to legislate than the farmers, who are carrying the country on their backs."

Mr. D. White seconded Mr. Mullins's resolution.

Mr. T. J. O'Donovan joined in asking for a withdrawal of the motion. If they cut their connection with the national body they would be losing their political entity, which they would need in the forthcoming Local Government elections. They would also be making an opening for their political party, which was going through the country painting the rosiest pictures for the farming community, advising them not to pay land annuities or send all that money to England.

BREAKING-UP THE UNION.

Canon Barrett agreed that it would be a mistake to adopt an attitude which would have the effect of breaking up the Farmers' Union. It would be much better, while preserving the organisation, to try and devise remedies for their grievances. It was very unfair and unreasonable for one county to contribute more than two-thirds of the funds for the whole twenty-six counties, but if that point of view were placed before the Congress he thought that it would be met.

Proceeding, he said that he adhered to his previous views that the farmers' direct party in the Dail should remain suppressed—at least, for a considerable time. If there were one big party out for stability, peace and progress, and had established much, the all-important thing was to maintain that stability. It was sheer folly to put forward representatives who, though they might call themselves farmers' candidates, were really Independents.

Mr. D. P. Forde opposed the resolution on the ground that it revealed disintegration at a time when unity was most important.

Mr. Brooke W. Brasier said that anything that would have the effect of breaking up the Farmers' Union would be a great wrench to him. The Farmers' Party in the Dail, he claimed, were none the less their representatives, and were looking after their interests, even though they had fused. The farming community were more entitled to representation than any other industry in the country, and he declared that once they let their Union go they would never revive it.

OIL AND WATER.

Mr. Cussen contended that politics and business did not go hand in hand, but were in fact like oil and water and would not mix. Their own experience in County Cork had proved that, and if politics did not interfere with their business the Cork Farmers' Union would be a far more powerful organisation than it was. Their whole success in the county was due to business and the lack of success elsewhere to politics.

Mr. Corcoran said that it was necessary to keep in touch with the rest of the Free State to give their representatives some driving force behind them.

Mr. J. O'Sullivan moved and Mr. W. Shannon seconded that their contribution be limited to £100.

Mr. Joseph Barrett, who presided, said that in his opinion the other counties in the Free State were not pulling their weight. He proposed as an amendment that politics and direct political action be severed from the programme of the Union.

Mr. J. Minihane (Skibbereen) seconded.

A further amendment was then put forward by Mr. John White, who advocated the adjournment of the matter for three months until after the holding of the National Congress.

After some further discussion, Mr. White's proposal, which was seconded by Mr. W. P. Forde, was adopted, Mr. Mullins withdrawing his original motion in its favour.

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The Secretary, Mr. E. J. Cussen, submitting the annual report, said that he was glad to be able once again to report that the development of their position in membership, finance, utility and public esteem has been maintained progressively during the year 1927, despite the intervention of abnormality in two general elections in the period. It was, perhaps, to be regretted that they could not be congratulated on the position of the Farmers' Party that had resulted from the two general elections. Since the intervention of the Union in direct political action, the position in that respect had not been so weak, but if weakness in any respect would bring a realisation of the necessity for a serious effort to re-organise and re-establish the Union in the Free State, then the struggle would not have been lost.

"Your trading activities," continued the report, "during the period under review have borne fruit in the direct sale on behalf of your members of 44,946 bacon pigs, 13,381 porkers, 3,749 sheep and lambs, and 1,482 cattle, and in the distribution at contract prices of extremely large quantities of manures, foodstuffs, coal, machinery and other farm requirements. There can be few who will not admit but that you have made your members and the farmers of the county generally independent of local markets by the provision of profitable outlets for produce and keenly competitive inlets for requirements.

"Your enterprise in overcoming the difficulties that confronted you in the preparation and marketing for your pork has been rewarded beyond anticipation in the very fine abattoir that is now yours.

Mr. Brooke W. Brasier, who reviewed the work of the past twelve months, said that enhancing the price of agricultural produce would be of no avail if the profits were eaten up by high taxation. It was vital that all phases of the question should be under the controlling influence of those who paid.

THE ELECTIONS.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—Chairman, Mr. Joseph Barrett; vice-chairman, Mr. T. Corcoran; treasurer, Mr. A. Mullins; standing committee—Messrs. B. W. Brasier, D. L. O'Gorman, P. J. Halliden, M. Ambrose, M. Twomey, T. T. Healy, W. Appelby, M. O'Riordan, P. Coakley, Jerh. O'Sullivan, David White, Richard Daly, Michael Buckley, Daniel Twomey, Sean Lehane, Florence Slyne, F. W. Fahy, and Canon Barrett.

PEACE PLAN.

NEW ORGANISATION FORMED IN IRELAND.

The continuous dramatic presentation of the demand for disarmament is one of the schemes in a campaign outlined by Captain F. Fitzcurrie Trench (who served in the Royal Tank Corps during the Great War), at a meeting at Eustace street, Dublin, last Friday, with Mr. Albert Wood, K.C., in the chair.

The movement proposes, "by an international gesture, periodically repeated as may be necessary, to enable those who are the victims of war to lead their rulers to a clear realisation that the problem is one of such extreme urgency as to admit of no further delay."

The plan of campaign is that on a predetermined and identical date in each year resolutions and memorials shall be sent to the Governments of all countries demanding:—

"That all nations shall agree to renounce war and substitute reason as the means of settling international disputes, to expedite general disarmament, to save the money expended annually on armament budgets, and to seek to establish international security by international co-operative action."

Mr. Charles E. Jacob proposed, and Mr. Dermod O'Brien, P.R.H.A., seconded a resolution approving of the aims and objects of the proposed scheme.

Canon H. W. B. Thompson proposed, and Miss Harrison seconded, a resolution approving of the proposed procedure for carrying out the scheme.

Canon Thompson stated that he gave the scheme his blessing, and as he understood it, the scheme was not in conflict, but in alignment, with the efforts of the League of Nations.

Mr. Mortished stated that the attraction of the scheme lay, not in the form of the demand to be submitted to the Governments, but in the annual and continuous dramatic presentation of the demand calling for disarmament.

Father Stephen Brown, S.J., considered that the vital element in the scheme was the dem and for disarmament.

General Sir Wiliam Hickie said that he gave Captain Trench's scheme his wholehearted approval, and assured the meeting that the British Legion was wholly in favour of peace, and those who fought in the Great War were determined to make true the words of the Prince of Wales, "It won't happen again."

Mr. Bolton Waller was in favour of all efforts to create world peace, but he did not approve of the creation of any further organisations. In so far, however, as the movement did not conflict with the work of the League of Nations he gave it his support.

Miss Bennett was of the opinion that there was a great necessity for another organisation in the Free State. The League of Nations did not attract public opinion here, and was not really representative as America and Germany stood outside. The peace societies in Ireland had just managed to exist since 1914, but a real peace movement was the one thing needed, and it could only be obtained through a new organisation, which would arouse public opinion on the need for peace.

Mr. Michael Rowan spoke in favour of the scheme as being an effort to bring about a world movement for peace, and said that public opinion was at the present time very much alive on the subject of disarmament.

A subscription list was opened to promote the scheme, and Miss Kathleen Price, of 38 Lansdowne road, Dublin, was appointed organiser for Ireland.

COAST EROSION.

£1,600 GRANT FOR YOUGHAL.

A Government grant of £1,600 from the Relief Schemes Vote has been offered to the Youghal Urban Council towards the cost of an extension of the existing sea defence works on condition that the balance of the total estimated amount required is raised locally, and on the further understanding that the local farmers shall provide cartage free of charge, and that the Great Southern Railways Company shall provide the requisite quantity of railway sleepers without charge.

The Town Clerk informed the Council that the Farmers' Association had agreed to do their part, and that the County Surveyor was taking up the matter with the railway engineers.

Mr. P. J. O'Gorman said that the grant came only after one and a half years of agitation, but it was very satisfactory. The question of coast erosion was a very serious one for that district, and they should be grateful to the Government for their very generous offer.

The Council expressed their gratitude to Deputies Hennessy, Carey and Daly for the assistance given by them.

TOURIST DEVELOPMENT.

A deputation which waited on the Limerick County Council last Saturday, on behalf of the Irish Tourist Development Association, was informed by the Chairman that the matter of striking a rate would come before the Finance Committee, which, he was sure, would be favourable to anything that would help the advancement of the country.

GALWAY COUNTY COUNCIL.

THE APPOINTMENT OF A NEW SECRETARY.

Amid applause from the gallery, and with two members dissenting from the procedure adopted, the Galway County Council on Saturday promoted their chief clerk and accountant, Mr. Patrick Crowe, to the position of county secretary in the room of the late Mr. W. G. Fogarty.

When the Council met under the chairmanship of Mr. Martin Egan, a letter was read from the Ministry of Local Government and Public Health drawing the Council's attention to the Local Authorities (Officers and Employés) Act. Lest any misapprehension should arise, the Minister pointed out that it would be necessary for the Council, in the first instance, to satisfy themselves before proceeding to appointment by promotion that the person appointed was fully eligible. Eligibility would include, in addition to the necessary educational and administrative experience, a competent knowledge of Irish.

A WIDER CHOICE OF CANDIDATES.

Mr. Conroy had a notice of motion on the paper that the position of secretary be filled by the promotion of one of the County Council's existing permanent officers.

Mr. Lambert and other members wanted to know if this would include officials under other committees in the county, and while Mr. McNeill thought that it did, and that officials employed by the Board of Health Homes and Home Assistance Committee, and the Ballinasloe Mental Hospital Committee, would come under it, Mr. O'Dea, the legal adviser, suggested that if it was desired to include those it would be better to so specify.

Mr. McNeill then moved an amendment that the words "and subsidiary committees" be added to Mr. Conroy's motion, the latter having refused to incorporate the words in his motion.

Mr. Gerald Bartley suggested that the salary for the office be first fixed, and Mr. Lambert agreed, adding that if it was postponed until after the other question was decided, they would be fixing it for a certain candidate.

Mr. Dervan moved an amendment to first fix the salary, but the chairman did not accept it, and a vote was taken on Mr. McNeill's amendment to Mr. Conroy's motion.

Mr. McNeill's amendment was defeated by 23 votes to 13, and Mr. Conroy's motion was passed.

SALARY FIXED.

Mr. Lambert then proposed that the salary for the secretary be fixed at £500 a year.

Mr. Dervan seconded.

Mr. McNeill proposed that it start at £500 and rise by yearly increments of £20 to £700, which was the late secretary's salary.

A proposition made by Mr. O'Connor, that the salary of the Secretary of the County Council be £700, not having been seconded, Mr. Conroy proposed, and Mr. Gilmore seconded, as a compromise, £600.

On a vote this was carried by 22 votes to 12 for £500.

In reply to some members, Mr. O'Dea, Legal Adviser, said that, in view of the motion passed, it was not necessary to advertise the position.

THE APPOINTMENT.

Mr. M. Kyne then asked if it was possible to appoint the Secretary that day.

Mr. O'Dea—There is nothing to prevent you.

Mr. Corbett then proposed that the appointment be made.

Mr. McNeill protested that they would be doing what was wrong without any notice having been on the agenda.

Mr. James J. Elder proposed, and Mr. Cahill seconded, that the staff be either circularised or that an advertisement be issued.

Mr. Ronaldson proposed, and Mr. Concannon seconded, the appointment of Mr. Crowe

Mr. Kennedy pointed out that there was no application from anybody, and the Acting Secretary wrote out his application and handed it to the Chairman.

Mr. Elder agreed to withdraw his motion when it was suggested that the other members of the staff be called before the Council and asked if they wished to apply for the position.

This was agreed to, but Mr. Hickey, on their behalf, said that they favoured Mr. Crowe's promotion.

THE EXAMINATION IN IRISH.

It was decided that Irish-speaking members of the Council examine Mr. Crowe in Irish.

Mr. McNeill was in favour of this being done before the Council, but it was decided that the examination should be conducted in the Secretary's office, to which Mr. Crowe and Councillors Concannon, Conroy, Finnerty, Kennedy, Corbett, Mylotte, Flanagan and Jones then retired.

When they returned, Mr. Concannon announced that they had found that Mr. Crowe possessed a fluent spoken knowledge of Irish.

The proposition appointing him was then passed.

Mr. McNeill, while expressing himself pleased at Mr. Crowe's promotion, dissented from the proceedings.

Mr. Cahill—I dissent also. I consider it a huge farce.

The Chairman said that he had been guided in his rulings by their solicitor.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH

COUNTY ANTRIM ACCIDENT.

Kathleen O'Donnell (77), of Killins, near Toomebridge, County Antrim, was burned to death. While standing with her back to the fire her clothes became ignited. Enveloped in flames she ran to a room where her brother was in bed. He succeeded in extinguishing the flames. Dr. D. M. Clements was summoned, but the woman died in a few hours.

TRESPASS IN PURSUIT OF GAME.

DISTRICT JUSTICE WARNS DEFENDANT.

At Tullamore District Court last Friday William Scully, Aughnacarn, and Thomas Pigeon, Ardan road, Tullamore, were prosecuted for trespass in pursuit of game on lands the game rights of which were reserved to Mr. Otway Toler under deed.

The gamekeeper (George Wynne), who found the defendants on Mr. Toler's property with a greyhound, beating sticks, and a spade, said they had also two rabbits. When asked for their authority to come there Scully said, "What about it?" and he used bad language —the worst that witness had ever heard. Pigeon, the other defendant, was very nice.

Scully, giving evidence, said that the tenants having given them liberty they thought the Land Commission would not object, and if any one suffered loss it was the tenants, who owned the land, and not Mr. Toler.

The Justice (addressing Scully)—I think you are a bit of a "Bolshie." (Laughter.)

Witness—I am not. The gamekeeper abused me, and it is all a bit of spite on his part.

The Justice—Had you any drink before coming into court?—No.

Justice O'Donoghue said that the attitude of Scully was rather extraordinary. He had no right whatever to take rabbits on this place, and it was nothing short of larceny when he did so; but he seemed to be convinced that he is entitled to do this thing, and having regard to his attitude, though it was only his first offence, he would have to impose a penalty which would bring home to him the seriousness of the offence. He would fine him £1 1s. He warned him not to repeat the offence. The other defendant (Pigeon) was fined 10s.

ARTANE SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.

Yesterday the theatre at Artane School was filled to overflowing when a further entertainment, including a production of a dramatised version of "My New Curate," was given. Although there was a rich comedy flavour in Patrick Hopkins's performance as "the chapel woman," the illusion of adult players was well maintained, and there was real power in the scenes depicting the country dance, evening Benediction, and the shipwreck, with the young curate's despair. The gymnastic display was so good as to explain the saying of an American Bishop at Artane that if he were allowed to take the troupe of young athletes to the States they could build a cathedral for him.

The Rev. Brother Ryan, in a brief address, announced that a performance will be given next Sunday on behalf of "our own new curate"—Father Treanor, the popular new pastor of Killester.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE POSTPONED CONFERENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Will you allow me to correct one statement in your leading article to-day? It must have been of your charity that you described Bishop Gore as a member of the advanced guard of the Anglo-Catholic movement. Unfortunately this is not so. There are many much more advanced, and I could, if required, offer solid proofs that he is regarded by the really advanced guard as a troublesome drag upon their wheels.

He, comparatively recently and during the Malines period, was a severe critic of some of the most characteristic developments of the Romanising party in the English Church, especially with regard to the cultus of the Blessed Sacrament, and, not long since, I heard him preach a sermon in an "advanced" London church, in which he strongly deprecated the pre-occupation of so many people "with these miserable ceremonial matters," when they ought to be spending their energy in the promotion of friendship and brotherliness among Christians. Call him an advanced High Churchman; but no close student of English Church affairs is unaware of the fact that Bishop Gore is much too good a theologian and too good an Anglican to satisfy the really advanced section of the movement which calls itself "Anglo-Catholic."

However many of us may regret some of Bishop Gore's sacramental views, and what I venture to think are his rigidly narrow Church theories, he is, without doubt, one of our greatest teachers, one of our most valued defenders of the faith and one of the most honest and most lovable of men.

May I add that the Roman Catholic section of the Malines report, upon which you rely for saying that agreement was reached without difficulty "upon the doctrine of Transubstantiation" (your words, not the report's), uses almost the words of the Church Catechism's statement about what is taken and received by the faithful in the Lord's Supper? Protestant Churchmen have never admitted that this implies Transubstantiation.

It would be ungracious on my part were I to leave unexpressed the gratitude which I believe many Irish Churchmen feel towards you for the whole tone of your leading article on the postponed Conference. They are grieved by the turn of affairs which has caused the abandonment of what so many were already looking forward to with keen interest; and, if I mistake not, they are left with a rankling sense of an injustice having been done, and of a strange departure from that tolerance which seems to be part of the ethos of Protestantism at its best.—Yours, etc.,

T. W. E. Drury.

The Rectory, Raheny, January 28th, 1928.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—It seems to me implied in your leading article of the 28th, on "the Postponed Conference," that Bishop Gore is an upholder of the doctrine of Transubstantiation. I beg leave to doubt whether that can be held to follow from the conversations at Malines, and it is wholly opposed to his own statements in his admirable book entitled "The Body of Christ." Thus he says (pages 116-117):—"Transubstantiation in its first form, as for example the weak and unhappy Berengar was forced by the dominant power in the Church to subscribe to it, was indeed a gross and horrible doctrine"; and (page 120):—"In its original and more natural meaning, Transubstantiation—the overthrowing of the natural substance by the spiritual—is truly contrary to a fundamental Christian philosophy, and really 'overthroweth the nature of a sacrament.'" Yet further, on page 219, he says:—"On the subject both of the gift and of the sacrifice the eucharistic development of the middle ages, as compared with the less formulated teaching and belief of the early Church, represents loss and not gain, deterioration and not advance."

Lastly, I should like to quote those weighty words of the Bishop on Our Lord's gift of legislation to His Church which occur on page 222 of the book:—"It ought to have made it a first instinct with the bishops of all ages to be on their guard against gradual departures from the original spirit of Christian prophecy. It ought—to put the matter in definite terms—to have made them specially careful to maintain the constant appeal to Scripture, the record of the first inspired pattern of teaching, which the Church exists to guard and to perpetuate, but to which it has no authority to add."

Surely these extracts speak for themselves. The Church of Ireland may not see eye to eye with Bishop Gore in everything, but it will be an ill day for her when she would decline on that ground to listen to one whose counsel contains much wisdom.—Yours, etc.,

W. M. Gibbon.

SWIFT AND STELLA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—When people are married the ceremony is performed by someone. Dr. St. George Ashe, sometime Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, and Bishop of Clogher, who was also Dean Swift's friend and tutor, was supposed to have been the officiating clergyman in this case. The Ashe MSS. and the writings of the late Mr. Swift MacNeill, K.C. (a descendant of Swift's), as well as the Dean's own actions, expose the myth.—Yours, etc.,

LIMERICK COUNTY COUNCIL.

RATEPAYERS AND EXAMINATION OF THE BOOKS.

At Limerick County Council on Saturday, a letter was read from Mr. Gilbert Hewson, Askeaton, asking for certain information at the office with regard to expenditure.

The Chairman said that he thought that the time had arrived when the Council should take action in this respect, and he gave notice to move that rules be framed, in conjunction with the Law Adviser, regulating the procedure as to the examination of county books by any ratepayer.

Mr. Quinlan said that if this was not done another set of officials would have to be employed.

STRABANE SHOOTING AFFAIR.

A WOMAN IN CUSTODY.

Shortly after six o'clock yesterday evening James Nicholl, a gardener, on returning to home in Derry road, Strabane, where he lives with his wife and five young children, found the front door of the house barricaded on the inside. He got on to the ledge of a window on the ground floor and tried to enter that way. As he did so a shot rang out from inside the house, and a bullet passed close to his cheek through the top of the window, which he had pulled down.

He went for the police, who soon after their arrival arrested Mrs. Ruby Nicholl, his wife.

The man informed the police that he had a rifle carefully concealed under the flooring of a room, and that that was the weapon from which the bullet was fired.

THE LATE REV. J. B. ARMOUR.

There was a very large attendance at the funeral of the Rev. J. B. Armour, which took place last Saturday from Trinity Manse to the New Cemetery, Ballymoney. All creeds and classes were represented, and among messages of sympathy was one from the Rev. J. D. Osborne, D.D., Dublin, a former member of first Ballymoney Presbyterian Church. Mr. Justice Johnston represented the Governor-General of the Irish Free State.

The Service at the Manse was conducted by the Rev. S. B. Thomson and the Rev. Samuel Cochrane, former members of the church, and the Rev. W. F. Sheppard, Moderator of the Synod of Ballymena and Coleraine.

A short Service was held in Trinity Church, where an address was given by the Rev. W. J. Lowe, D.D.

The chief mourners were the late Mr. Armour's three sons, Mr. W. S. Armour, M.A., barrister-at-law; the Rev. J. B. M. Armour, M.A., and Mr. J. K. C. Armour.

Those in attendance at the funeral included:—Lord Chief Justice Moore, Mr. Justice Johnston, Dublin; the Rev. I. A. Watson, representing the Vice-Chancellor of Queen's University, Belfast.

The Service at the graveside was conducted by the Rev. A. H. Dill, M.A., and the Rev H. C. Waddell, M.A.

Employed for fifty years at Messrs. Pears' soap factory, Isleworth, Mr. H. Collins received a gold watch from the firm on retiring.

TWO MEN SHOT.

OUTRAGE AT COUNTY CORK DANCE.

CORK, Sunday.

A startling outrage occurred at Oakgrove, near Carrigadrohid, Co. Cork, tonight as the result of which two men named Sullivan and Lyons were seriously wounded.

It appears that a dance was in progress in the house of a man named Cornelius Cronin, a dairyman, and some thirty couples were present. At about nine o'clock a shot-gun was discharged through one of the windows and the dancers fled from the room. Later it was found that Sullivan and Lyons had received severe wounds on their heads and faces. A cap belonging to one of them was found on the floor riddled to rags and saturated with blood.

The injured men were taken to Mercy Hospital, Cork, where they were detained for treatment.

The Civic Guards are investigating the outrage, but so far no person has been arrested.

"UNFAIR CONDITIONS."

DROGHEDA REFUSES A GOVERNMENT GRANT.

Drogheda Corporation last Saturday decided, by seven votes to four, not to accept a grant of £650 offered by the Local Government Department out of the £150,000 unemployment relief vote, on condition that the balance of the cost of the specified works, a sewerage scheme for the Hardman's Garden end of the town, estimated to cost £2,373, would be raised by loan by the Corporation itself.

Mr. W. P. Allen, who proposed the acceptance of the grant, said that the cry at the present time was to reduce taxation, but they had at the same time the cry—"Give us more grants." Where did they think the money was going to come from unless they believed that the Government had a bottomless purse, on which they could draw as long as they wished.

Mr. J. J. Callan, opposing, said that the Government told them in one breath to keep down local taxation, and in another breath to borrow thousands of pounds and put it on the rates. In the name of common-sense, he asked, how could the Corporation borrow thousands and, at the same time, reduce local taxation? They knew that if a reduction in local taxation did not come soon the business-men in the twenty-six counties would be unable to meet the burden, because their capacity to pay a rate of 12s. now was much less than their capacity to pay a rate of 18s was some time ago.

Mr. P. Anderson said that he thought that the Government had been trying to mislead the people with their unemployment grant, because they had attached conditions with it that no body of business men could entertain. He considered it very unfair of the Government to offer a grant on these conditions.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT APPOINTMENTS.

PROTEST AGAINST TERMS.

At its quarterly meeting, held at 4 Upper Ormond quay, Dublin, last Friday, the Central Council of the Irish Local Government Officials' Union considered what were described as the unsatisfactory terms of appointment fixed for certain professional and executive positions recently advertised by the Local Appointments Commissioners, and decided to protest to the Minister for Local Government and Public Health.

In regard to the position of several officers in various branches of the service, whose terms and conditions of service had been altered, it was said, to their detriment and without their consent, the Council decided to take "appropriate action" in each case.

The establishment of a Widows' and Orphans' Benevolent Fund for members was discussed, and a special committee was appointed to consider this and kindred matters.

The venue of the ninth annual conference of the Union, to be held next June, was fixed for Cork.

ALARMING ACCIDENT IN WATERFORD.

COLLAPSE OF PORTION OF A HOUSE.

Some alarm was caused in Bakehouse lane and Peter street, Waterford, on Saturday when the house and portion of the shop, No. 13 Bakehouse lane, collapsed without warning. The rear portion fell out at midday, exposing the rooms of three storeys.

The three families occupying the house were Mrs. Phelan and her children, who were on the first floor; Mrs. Leahy and her sister, on the second floor; and Mrs. Walsh, her husband, and two children, on the third floor. Luckily, most of the people were out at the time of the crash.

On the ground floor there were three children. Two of them escaped. A baby, John Phelan, 3 months' old, was in his cradle in the kitchen when the wall collapsed, and a plank fell across the cradle. Edward Glynn and Guard Nally entered the house, and got the baby to safety. The child, who suffered no serious injury, was attended by a doctor.

BELTURBET FIRE.

LICENSED HOUSE BURNED.

The extensive licensed premises known as Mee and Sons, Holborn Hill, Belturbet, were destroyed by fire on Saturday morning.

The premises had been recently purchased by Mr. Abbott, and had been undergoing repairs for the past week or so.

No person was in the house at the time of the outbreak.

THE PUBLICITY BALL.

The Committee o fthe Publicity Ball, held in the Metropole Ballroom, Dublin, last Friday, has forwarded the following corrections in the prize list:—

The prize for the best representation of B.B. Toffee was divided between Miss Josie McDermott, of 17 Kilmacud, Stillorgan, and Mr. E. Bradshaw, of 2 Hendrick street, Dublin. The prize presented by the Independent Newspapers, Ltd., was won by Miss Peggy Keena, of 73 Leinster road, Rathmines. The section in which Mr. D. C. Leechman, of 24 Harcourt street, was successful was the prize of Messrs. David Allen and Sons, Ltd.

BELFAST EDUCATION CONTROVERSY.

"HOOTS, MON!"

The citizens of Edinburgh have just had their sleep disturbed for several nights by tests on a gigantic foghorn.

The tests, which extended over several days, necessitated deafening blasts every half-minute, which could be heard at a distance of twenty miles.

The foghorn is driven by engines which develop 80 h.p., and the blasts are regulated by a self-winding clock. It is being tested prior to despatch to China, where it will be in use at a lighthouse station on Shantung Promontory.

John Gould, aged ten years, while driving a donkey from a field on his parents' farm, The Grange, Castlemartyr, Co. Cork, was kicked by a yearling colt on the head. He died at the Mercy Hospital, Cork, last Friday night.

The Lord Mayor of London's Fund for the relief of victims by the Thames floods has reached over £50,000.

CHRISTIAN BELIEF.

THOMAS HARDY'S CREED.

Speaking in Sandford Church yesterday morning on "Thomas Hardy—the Pauline alternative and the irony of unbelief," the Rev. W. N. Harvey said:—As I read the great novelist's bitterest sneers at Christianity I always feel that all Mr. Hardy really proves is that loss of faith leads to loss of morals, and hence to loss of everything that makes life worth living, until death seems better than life, and suicide is the last act of the play. In one sense we cannot refute this melancholy gospel, because all argument presupposes some common basis of what is worth having or possessing in life, and is meaningless with those who think nothing worth having.

The negative creed of Thomas Hardy cannot be argued with any more than a remembered nightmare in the light of common day. But if we cannot discuss a nightmare we can show the respect of pity to its paralysing influence. And we can learn. It is good for Christians, at times, to think on the alternatives to Christian belief. Sometimes they look plausible; sometimes they hold out hopes of wider knowledge and fuller life. What the great novelist had to tell about them was exactly the same thing as the message of the Apostle to the Gentiles: "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain."

A GREAT LAW OF LIFE.

But our faith is not vain. It is a great law of life—a law which neither genius, nor the poet's imagination, nor the scientist's keenness can ever escape, on the law that the future and the victory are with hope and not with despair. As we look back over the long history of Christendom, and ask ourselves what were the creeds that succeeded and what were the movements that failed, we find that those that have rooted themselves in the convictions of mankind have been those whose basis was faith and hope, those that believed that the terrible things of the present hour were going to melt away in the grander light of the future; those which, when they saw truth upon the scaffold and wrong seated upon the throne, knew that the future was going to reverse the unjust verdict, and hold up the lonely prophet to the admiration of future ages.

HOPE.

And this doctrine of Hopefulness leads inevitably to the creed that this world and its mysterious ways are the work of the all wise Master Builder, Who has ordained that the weak things should overcome the mighty; that out of wrong and bitterness, and torment, and degradation should spring the grandest fruits of the human soul, because this world is a school, and a place of probation, whose bitter discipline shall teach the everlasting spirit of man the lessons which will fit it for that far off goal which eye hath not seen nor ear heard, nor hath it entered into the heart of man to conceive what God hath laid up for the saints. And so we bid farewell to the lonely pessimist, and turn once more to the trumpet note of the great Apostle: "O Death where is thy sting! O grave where is thy victory! Its strength is given to Death because of Sin. Its strength is given to Sin because of the Law. But, thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through Our Lord Jesus Christ."

LARGE FAMILIES.

ENGLISH VILLAGE'S RECORD.

The Lymington (Hampshire) Correspondent of the Sunday Express says that ten women in the village of Lymington, which has a population of 4,500 people, have a total of one hundred and fifty children. I found them proud of their records and enthusiastic over the joys of motherhood. The mothers, with the numbers of their children, are:—Mrs. Gates, 25; Mrs. Thomas, 21; Mrs. Clark, 20; Mrs. Buckle, 15; Mrs. Stone, 13; Mrs. England, 13; Mrs. Brown, 12; Mrs. Frampton, 11; Mrs. Broomfield, 10; Mrs. Brooks, 10.

Each of these mothers has been married only once. Their children have all been strong and sturdy specimens of the race.

Large families are a tradition in Lymington, and to-day the villagers claim the highest number of large families of any town in England. Not one family in twenty is childless in Lymington.

VIEW OF THAMES VALLEY FROM RICHMOND HILL.

MOVE TO PRESERVE IT.

The London Parks and Open Spaces Committee recommends the County Council to agree to bear one-sixth, not exceeding £500, of the net deficiency in connection with the purchase and re-sale of Haversham Grange, Twickenham. The property is to be bought with a view to preserving the view of the Thames Valley from Richmond Hill, and the other contributing authorities are Richmond Corporation, which is to bear two-sixths of the net deficiency; Twickenham Corporation, one-sixth; Middlesex County Council, one-sixth, and Surrey County Council, one-sixth.

Haversham Grange comprises riverside property about 4½ acres in extent, and the danger was that it might be sold to a firm that intended to excavate gravel. The London County Council is interested as "the custodian of the view from Richmond Hill," under the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1902.

MISSING GIRL GUIDE.

A BIRMINGHAM SEARCH.

The Birmingham police are endeavouring to trace the whereabouts of a sixteen-year-old Girl Guide, Hilda Barnett, who has been missing from her home at Handsworth since January 10. On that night she went out to return a hat borrowed from another Guide, and since then nothing has been heard from her. The hat was found next day on some waste ground near her home.

Five feet one inch in height, the girl has a fresh complexion and dark brown bobbed hair. She was wearing a pink velour coat, stockings of gun-metal colour, and black shoes.

WIRELESS ON LINERS.

PRIVATE INSTALLATIONS FOR PASSENGERS.

A novelty in ship equipment in the form of private wireless telephone installations is to be provided in future on North Atlantic liners travelling between German ports and America. It will be remembered that a German liner was recently equipped with a full-sized tennis court, and it is evident that the Germans are making determined efforts to gain a reputation for their vessels of being more up to date in their appointments than those of any other nation.

The new wireless apparatus will permit passengers to telephone direct from their cabins in mid-ocean to their offices in Berlin or other German cities. Preliminary experiments proved that messages passed perfectly clearly to and from vessels in mid-ocean, and even to and from those in the immediate vicinity of the American coast.

The ship installations now to be provided will connect directly with the mainland wireless station at Norddeich, near Emden. Cabins de luxe and private suites will be fitted with their own apparatus, while first-class passengers occupying ordinary accommodation will be able to secure a telephonic communication with Germany through the ship's wireless operator from a special telephone booth. The service will be also available for second and third-class passengers, although first-class passengers will have preference in the use of the wireless connections.

The service will be maintained by means of land lines between German cities and the coastal wireless station, whence messages will be transmitted through the ether to the desired ship.

WHISKEY IN PETROL TINS.

SECRET DISTILLERIES IN SCOTLAND.

Fines of £100 and imprisonment do not seem to have deterred whiskey still adventurers in Glasgow and neighbourhood, where the traffic has greatly increased in the last twelve months. On an allotment in Port Glasgow last week there was discovered one of the most complete stills ever set up in Scotland.

It could hold forty gallons, and included copper worms, with properly fitted connections, four-legged stands, wooden barrel, washtub, treacle, filters, earthenware jars, and a fine zinc bath—a perfect equipment.

"The number of persons distilling whiskey is increasing, despite the fact that the police are now giving more time to hunting them down," said a Glasgow spirit merchant to a Press representative.

8s. A BOTTLE.

"Of course, the temptation is very great, for the profits are enormous, and the distillation of whiskey is not so difficult as some people imagine. I recall a case in which a plumber constructed the plant.

"There are many ways of disposing of the whiskey. One of the illicit distillers in Glasgow was found recently disposing of his 'brew' at 8s. a bottle, and if it fetched that price it must have been very little inferior to the legitimately distilled whiskey. Of course, it would not be properly blended.

"I have seen it suggested that some of the small publichouses in the neighbourhood of big towns are open to receive such illicit whiskey. I have my doubts, although there is a great temptation to take the stuff.

"It is also probable that in mining districts where men have small clubs illicit whiskey finds a home. Miners have not much money to spend on whiskey, of course, and a cheap tipple might tempt them, as it would any one else.

"I should not be surprised if a good deal of the whiskey goes into the 'dry areas.' It is very significant that in Kilsyth, one of the 'dry areas,' drunkenness is on the increase.

"The illicit distillers put up their whiskey in well-cleaned petrol tins. These can be conveyed anywhere without arousing suspicion, and the carters who dispose of it are probably innocent of the contents."

MISSING SCHOOLBOYS.

BERKSHIRE POLICE SEARCH.

The Berkshire police have been searching during the week-end for two boys, James Aychurch (15), and James Ernest Armitage Jones (17), who have been missing since Thursday last from a school conducted by Captain Waterlow Fox at Sutton Courtney, where pupils are trained for Sandhurst and the universities. The boys left the school in the afternoon, ostensibly for a walk, and when last seen were walking along the bank of the Thames. Aychurch's home is at Peterborough, and that of Jones at Wallasey, Cheshire.

The following descriptions have been circulated:—Aychurch, 5 feet 7 inches in height, sallow complexion, black hair; wearing gold rimmed spectacles, and dressed in a dark grey suit. Jones, 5 feet 11 inches in height, inclined to stoop, fair hair and complexion, hazel eyes, scar on forehead; wearing a purple suit and black shoes. Both were hatless. Neither of the lads, it was stated, had more than a few shillings in his possession.

Captain Fox told a Press representative last night that Aychurch and Jones appeared perfectly happy at school, and he was quite at a loss to acount for their disappearance. The police, he understood, were disposed to believe that they were making for their respective homes.

LINER PASSENGER ARRESTED.

ALLEGED LARCENY AT NEW YORK.

A cabin passenger on board the liner Arabic, which arrived at Plymouth yesterday from New York, via Halifax, Nova Scotia, was arrested on a provisional warrant. Police officers visited the liner, and the man, who had intended proceeding to Antwerp, was brought ashore in custody.

He is alleged to be wanted in New York City on a charge of larceny.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

At their meeting on Saturday last the Galway County Council promoted their Chief Clerk, Mr. Patrick Crowe, to the vacant office of Secretary to the Council.—(Page 5.)

At their meeting on Saturday the Executive of the County Cork Farmers' Union postponed for three months a proposal to cut adrift from the National Executive until it proved that it enjoyed the support of the farmers in the other counties of the Free State.—(Page 5.)

Following a burglary in Youghal, County Cork, in the early hours of last Saturday morning, the Civic Guards later arrested two suspects as they were about to board the boat for Fishguard.—(Page 5.)

For the year 1927 the Free State's adverse balance of trade was £15,975,000, compared with £19,329,000 in 1926.—(Page 7.)

On Saturday night two men fired revolvers at Detective Harling, Dublin, as he was about to enter his house at Dartry. He returned the fire, and afterwards a civilian, who was shot in the head and died later in hospital, was found on the road.—(Page 7.)

Under doctor's care, Miss Curwen, of Dublin, the principal witness for the complainants, was still absent when the Croker Commission reassembled last Saturday, and she was excused from attendance for the purpose of cross-examination until this morning.—(Page 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Prince of Wales, at the dinner of the Birmingham Jewellers' and Silversmiths' Association on Saturdnay night last, expressed a hopeful view of British trade prospects.—(Page 7.)

An outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Leicestershire on Saturday has stopped hunting in almost the whole of the Quorn country.—(Page 8.)

ABROAD

SPORTING

At Kempton Park on Saturday Beggar's End won the Cranford Handicap Steeplechase.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL

Pressure for loans in London Money Market eased off, and the final rate for advances over the week-end was 3 per cent. Discount rates were very firm.—(Page 3.)

Free State Trade.

For the first time since the establishment of the Irish Free State the trade figures for the year show distinctly encouraging signs. Until 1927 virtually every year told the same sad story of an increasing deficit in trade. Exports were shrinking and imports expanding steadily, and at one time it looked as if the readjustment of the national balance of trade was a hopeless task. The balance-sheet for 1927, however, proves that the downward process at last has been checked. Whereas for 1926 the adverse balance of trade reached the alarming figure of £19,329,000, it stood at £15,975,000 on December 31st, 1927. Within twelve months it has been reduced by more than £3,000,000, and there is every reason to hope that at the end of the present year it will show a further, and even more substantial, reduction. The secret of the change lies in the fact that, while exports are increasing, imports are being reduced. In 1926 the Free State imported goods to the total value of £61,286,000; last year their value fell to £60,826,000. Exports, on the other hand, rose from £41,185,000 in 1926 to £44,168,000 in 1927—an increase of almost £3,000,000, or over 7 per cent. This welcome improvement may be said to be due almost entirely to the success of Mr. P. J. Hogan's two Acts for the standardisation of butter and eggs and to the development of the pig and pork trade. The exports of butter during the year increased from £3,829,000 to £4,574,000, or nearly 20 per cent., while egg exports rose from £2,809,000 to £3,039,000. Sales of fresh pork soared from £935,000 to £1,278,000, and pig exports increased from £1,700,000 to £2,317,000. Another interesting increase was in the case of fish. In 1926 fish exports came to £650,000, while they reached £821,000 last year. Unfortunately, there is another side to the picture. Cattle exports have fallen again. In 1926 they amounted to £12,153,000, whereas last year they failed to exceed £11,868,000. This drop is due to the heavy fall in prices; for, although the actual number of beasts exported was greater in 1927 than in 1926, its value was considerably less. Bacon exports also are down, from £2,769,000 to £2,264,000; there has been a fractional fall in porter and beer; and the plight of the distilleries is illustrated by a further drop in spirits exports from £176,000 to £156,000.

The reduction in imports also is a welcome sign. There has been a drop from £2,189,000 to £1,651,000 in the case of bacon—a fact which indicates that the Irish people at last are beginning to appreciate the quality of native produce; and imports of butter have fallen from £501,000 to £365,000. In the protected industries some strange results have been produced. Imports of overcoats have increased from £299,000 to £375,000, while those of men's and boys' suits have fallen from £327,000 to £254,000. In the cases of these two items, therefore, the position is virtually unchanged. Women's costumes have decreased from £792,000 to £589,000. The imports of boots and shoes remains very high. It fell during the year from £1,792,000 to £1,734,000; but the footwear tariff has been in operation for nearly four years, and by this time, if the 15 per cent. tariff were likely to justify itself, the annual imports of boots and shoes would have been far less than 390,000 dozen pairs. Imports of soap, which also is protected in the Free State, actually rose during the year from £341,000 to £362,000. Here again the effect of the tariff seems to be dubious. On the whole, however, the trade figures for 1927 are very satisfactory. They contain the old lesson for the Free State—namely, that in order to redress the adverse balance of trade, agricultural exports must be increased. Great Britain and Northern Ireland last year bought goods to the value of £41,000,000 from the Saorstát, and the economic salvation of the country lies in the development of this great trade. Tariffs do more harm than good. At best they are in the nature of national window-dressing; at worst they create a feeling of irritation among the people on whom the Free State depends entirely for its trade. We are very glad to learn that the Minister for Agriculture proposes next session to introduce a bill in Dáil Ereann to deal with pork as he already has dealt with butter and eggs. The progress that has been made since the quality of agricultural produce was improved proves the value of standardisation, and there is no doubt that much more can be done in the same way. The Free State seems to have turned the corner, and what is needed now is five years of hard work. Everything indicates that there will be an industrial revival in England before the end of the present year; if the Free State is ready to take advantage of it, the adverse balance soon will disappear.

Changing Pleasures.

In days when the world is being re-made—when change perplexes those who are concerned with manufactures, transport and all other phases of economic life—evidence that the very pleasures of humanity are in the melting-pot daily accumulates. One day it is librarians or publishers who affirm that the novel is falling from public favour; the next, it is theatrical persons who declare that the pantomime has lost its old appeal. Now we are being told that the music-hall is going the way that legitimate drama is said to have gone long since. Whatever justification there may be for these lamentations, it is obvious that new amusements have arisen to capture the favour of the multitude. The crowds that flock to the cinematograph theatre presumably must detract from the attendances at other houses of amusement; and "listening-in" assuredly must divert many a music-lover from the concert room. Yet we take leave to doubt whether the changes evident around us will result in the end of any form of amusement that has pleased in the past. It is observed in the field of transport that, despite the fears of the rash judgment, no mode of transport ever is rendered obsolete by the invention of new means. Progress does but diversify, allotting to every vehicle that has been useful in the past some restricted, but vital, place in the complex system of the future. Amusements, too, grow richer in variety, and every toy of the past has its devotees. Even the archer is with us still, and although chess no longer is a domestic game, known to every household, it has its world-wide associations, its international tournaments, and its exponents surpassing in skill even the giants of olden time. The pantomime proper was abandoned by virtually every West End theatre in London this year; but it lives again in revue all the year round. The music-hall has lost something of its popularity; yet, thanks to the demands of clubs, cabarets and picture theatres, there never was a time when variety performers were busier. It is reported, moreover, that melodrama is recovering favour among the humbler classes. A few recent successes in this genre have recalled the proudest days of fustian and thrill.

Research has investigated the origins of the legitimate drama. Every schoolboy to-day can discourse on the primitive religious functions of the theatre, on classical tragedy, the mystery play, the buskin and the mask. It would be interesting to explore the history of humbler forms of entertainment. Tradition dictates to the tumbler and the conjuror as well as to the actor of grave parts. In Ireland before Elizabeth bards composed the topical crosantacht which consisted of verses alternating with ridiculous "patter" in prose—the exact prototype of the modern comedian's lines. The acrobat, the magician and the clown may be traced as entertainers of kings in Ireland and other lands to early times. If our sophisticated tastes find less complete satisfaction in the performances of these, they still have their appeal to the younger folk, in whose intellectual growth the development of the race is epitomised; and they have their representatives who have carried the antique arts to unprecedented perfection. In the rise and fall of public favour, sport has been fortunate in recent years. That exceptional feats of skill and endurance have been recorded of late is even less significant than the general growth of sporting habits. Golf and lawn tennis alone have multiplied out of all measure since the Great War the proportion of people who regularly engage in exercises profitable to mind and body. Medical men humorously affirm that the golf ball has robbed them of a big part of their occupation, and has cheated the undertaker by making octogenarians of men whom lack of wholesome exercise was threatening to slay. There can be little doubt that if a stocktaking of national physique were required to be made in 1928 as it was between 1914 and 1918, it would reveal a substantial improvement in all classes of the population. Can it be that amusements rise and fall in public favour according as the need is felt to correct, by appropriate recreation, this or that defect in the national being?

The History of Beer.

The history of food and drink often has engaged the interest of poets and historians. Wine originally was the gift, or curse, of the god Bacchus. The secret of making heather ale was lost to mankind because, legend relates, the last two men who understood the process preferred to sacrifice their lives rather than to reveal the Pictish recipe for making it to another race. The humbler beverage, beer, has not been celebrated by poets as "a draught of Hippocrene," nor have lives been lost for it—on this side of the Atlantic—but it has a notable and surprisingly ancient history. Mr. John F. Gretton read an interesting paper at Uttoxeter recently in which he claimed that beer was brewed by the Babylonians as long ago as 7,000 B.C. The history of beer is connected with the beginnings of agriculture, and the bakers of Babylon and Egypt were the first brewers. When Cæsar invaded Britain the favourite drink of the Britons—as of the ancient Irish—was mead, but beer also was known. The Druids, it is said, acted as brewers. Tacitus states that it was common in Germany, and Pliny mentions its being prepared in Gaul—so that it appears to have been widely known both among the tribes of the north and the nations of the south. "Yuletide," Mr. Gretton says, really means "Ale-tide," and dates from early Christian times, when it was a custom to give presents of malt to the churchwardens at Christmas. Beer was brewed from the malt and sold to provide a fund for the poor of the parish. This fund remained, in one form or another, until the first poor law was instituted. At one time, when brewing was regarded in England as a domestic occupation, most of the brewers were women. There is a romantic story of a poor girl who came to London in the reign of Charles I. and got employment in a brewery. She married the brewer, who shortly afterwards died and left her a large fortune. Subsequently she married a lawyer named Edward Hyde, who became Earl of Clarendon, and was the grandfather of two Queens of England, Mary and Anne.

Road and Rail.

A hundred years ago it began to appear that railways were destined to become the principal means of passenger transport. A stupified generation beheld "Puffing Billy" at Newcastle-on-Tyne before Napoleon's return from Elba. The Stockton and Darlington Railway, with George Stephenson as engineer, was opened in 1825. A beginning was made with the construction of America's great railway system in 1828. Reviewing the hundred years' struggle between road and rail, the Observer points out the necessity of avoiding now the mistakes which were made in the first phase, and the superiority of compromise over vendetta in transport questions. At first it was prophesied that the roads were "finished." The breed of horses would vanish; farmers and inn-keepers all would be ruined; the cows would be poisoned by smoke and vapour. The excursion of Mr. Pickwick and his friends may have seemed, to those who first read about it, a final farewell to the English roads. When we read the fiction of a century ago we are reminded, however, of much more recent methods of travel. "A young man of genteel appearance provided himself with a ticket" in a "public carriage," which "was calculated to carry six regular passengers, besides such interlopers as the coachman could pick up on the way." This is not a description of a journey in one of the smaller 'buses, but of Mr. Lovel boarding the Edinburgh stage-coach, from Scott's "Antiquary." The development of road traffic on an extensive scale since the war is a curious instance of history's repeating itself, or, perhaps, it would be truer to say reversing itself. No doubt, road and rail both will play an important part in the next chapter of economic history, but it adds to the variety of travel that something may be seen of byways as well as of highways.

WELL-KNOWN SCIENTIST TO RETIRE.

SIR JAMES WALKER'S SERVICES TO CHEMISTRY.

Professor Sir James Walker, who has intimated he will retire at the end of this year from the Chair of Chemistry in Edinburgh University, has contributed much of value to modern chemistry.

Receiving his early training in chemistry at Edinburgh and Leipzig, after carrying out research work at Dundee, Professor Walker went to University College, London, as assistant to Sir William Ramsay. In 1894 he was appointed Professor of Chemistry at University College, Dundee, and in 1908 succeeded Professor Crum-Brown in the Chair of Chemistry at Edinburgh University.

In the development of physical chemistry his work has covered a great range of subjects, and his "Introduction to Physical Chemistry," originally published in 1899, and now in its tenth edition, has never been superseded.

Professor Walker is a Fellow of the Royal Society, and at present on the Council of that body. He was president of the Chemical Society in 1921-23, and has acted on various committees set up by the Government to investigate chemical problems. Honoured by St. Andrews in 1895, with the degree of LL.D., he was knighted in 1921.

I have arrived at the conclusion that it does not matter twopence how you spell a word provided everybody knows what it is.—The Bishop of Manchester.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

The Duke and Duchess of York will be present to-night at the annual carnival ball of the National Association of Street Traders, which will be held in the Finsbury Town Hall. An interesting programme has been arranged, and during the evening a doll dressed as the "Pearly Prince" will be presented to the Duchess for Princess Elizabeth. Their Royal Highnesses have promised to attend the Empire Day ball which is being organised in aid of University College Hospital.

The Duke of Connaught attended the Thé Dansant in aid of the Queen Victoria Hospital which was held at Monte Carlo last week. The British Vice-Consul, Mr. Wiseman Keogh, O.B.E., and Sir Frank and Lady Popham Young received His Royal Highness. There was a large attendance, and several hundred people were unable to obtain admission.

Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll continues to derive much benefit from her stay at St. Jean, Cap Ferrat, where she gave a luncheon party last Friday. Her guests included the Duke of Connaught, Admiral Burrage, U.S.A. Navy; Mrs. and Miss Burrage and Major Berkeley Levett.

The King and Queen of Denmark will leave Copenhagen in about ten days' time for the South of France, and are expected to spend three weeks at the Hotel des Pins, Cannes. The Queen Dowager of Rumania has returned to Bucharest from Belgrade, where she was staying with the King and Queen of the Serbs and Croats. Last week she attended the christening of her grandson, Prince Tomislau of Yugoslavia.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Winchester have returned to London from the South of France. The Marchioness of Carisbrooke is expected to return to London to-day. The Countess of Granard has arrived at Forbes House, London, from Ireland. Lord and Lady Rodney returned to London last Saturday from Canada. Other arrivals in London include the Countess of Clanwilliam and Lady Mary Meade, Lord and Lady Parmoor, Lady Lilian Wemyss, Lady Leconfield, Lady Walston, the Hon. Henry and Mrs. Coventry, Sir Victor and Lady Warrender, Major and Lady Betty Trafford, Sir John, Lady and Miss Norton-Griffiths.

The Earl of Balfour and Miss Betty Balfour postponed their departure from Whittingehame last week, and are not expected to return to London for about a fortnight. The Earl of Ava and Viscount Furneaux will act as joint editors of the Oxford University Magazine, which will be revived this week.

The Marchioness of Bute and her family will leave England shortly for Spain and will spend some time at San Roque. Lord and Lady Stafford have left for a trip to Ceylon and Burmah and will be away for three months. Admiral Sir Alexander and Lady Duff have sailed for Algiers. Sir Nevile and Lady Beatrix Wilkinson have left London for the United States, en route for San Francisco. The Hon. Dorothy Pickford has sailed in the ss. Gloucestershire for Egypt and India.

The Earl of Warwick, who was taken ill shortly after his arrival in Brighton at Christmas, is now seriously indisposed, and has been taken to a nursing home at Hove, where his condition gives cause for anxiety. The Hon. Mrs. Robert Sebag-Montefiore is progressing favourably after the operation which she underwent recently.

The Honble. Lady de C. Wheeler has arrived in Dublin from Switzerland, where she has been spending the Christmas holidays with her children.

A marriage has been arranged between Edward Achilles Daunt, eldest son of the Rev. E. S. Daunt, of Greystones, Co. Wicklow, and Lilian Webb, second daughter of the late Hon. J. Webb, Minister for Agriculture, New South Wales, and Mrs. Webb, Melbourne, and will take place on Wednesday, 1st of February, at Sourton Church, Bridestowe, Devon. The reception to be held at the residence of Sir Robert Hamilton, Bart., and Lady Hamilton, Collaven Manor, Bridestowe, Devonshire.

Expert Treatment for the Skin, Hair and Eyes can be had from one of Eleanor Adair's personally trained beauty specialists who is now permanently attached to the staff of Switzers Hairdressing Salons. Madam Adair's famous "Ganesh" Preparations are also obtainable at Switzers.

There are Ciro jewels to harmonise with every toilette. Their realism is astounding and the artistry of the settings a revelation in jewel-craft. Obtainable in Dublin only at the Ciro Salon, Switzers.

A RUMANIAN MINISTER.

M. Nicholas Boeresco, who has been appointed Rumanian Minister to Switzerland, is expected to spend several weeks in London before taking up his new appointment. He is well known here, as he was several years Rumanian Chargé d'Affaires in London, and he has a wide circle of personal friends, in addition to the officials with whom he came into contact during his period at the Rumanian Legation. It is believed that his visit is being made at the direction of his Government, and is connected with the general situation in the Balkans, and not, as has been suggested, with a loan to Rumania.

OBITUARY.

LORD SACKVILLE.

Lionel Edward Sackville-West, third Baron, died on Saturday morning last at Knole, Sevenoaks, Kent, in his sixty-fourth year. He caught a chill during the severe weather before Christmas, and his condition since had caused a good deal of anxiety. Lord Sackville was educated at Wellington College and Christ Church, Oxford. He took a lively interest in the affairs of Kent, was a Deputy Lieutenant for the county, Vice-Chairman of Kent County Council, and Chairman of the Kent Territorial Army Association. During the Great War he served in Gallipoli, Egypt, Palestine and France.

Lord Sackville was the son of Colonel the Hon. W. E. Sackville-West, Grenadier Guards, and Georgina, youngest daughter of the late George Dowdell, of Kevinsfoot, County Sligo. In 1890 he married his cousin, Victoria Sackville-West, by whom he had one daughter. Lord Sackville succeeded to the title on the death of his uncle in 1908. He is succeeded by his brother, Major-General the Hon. Sir Charles John Sackville-West, who has been Lieutenant-Governor of Guernsey since 1925.

It will be recalled that when the late Lord Sackville succeeded to the title his right was challenged by M. Henri Jean Baptiste Sackville-West, who claimed to be a legitimate son of the second Baron and Josefa Duran de Ortega, a Spanish dancer. The Probate Court, however, decided against the claimant, and Lord Sackville on his return to Knole was welcomed by the people of Sevenoaks.

SIR DOUGLAS NAESMYTH, BART.

Sir Douglas Arthur Bradley Naesmyth, Bart., has died suddenly in Edinburgh, aged twenty-three. He was a student at Dulwich College when in 1922 he succeeded his uncle, Sir James Tolmé Naesmyth. Sir Douglas on leaving Dulwich studied farming for a time in Suffolk, and afterwards he opened a shop in Bond street.

The Naesmyth family name dates back to the struggle between the robber and the King in the reign of James the Third of Scotland. It is related that when an ancestor of the Naesmyths, who fought under the Royal Standard, had to take refuge in a smithy, the smith disguished him as a hammerman. There the Douglases found him, and when he struck a false blow with the sledge-hammer one of the Douglases shouted, "You're nae smith." In the struggle that followed the hammerman overpowered his assailants, while the smith with a hot iron rallied the forces of the King, and, headed by Naesmyth, they regained the day. Naesmyth was rewarded with a grant of lands and armorial bearings, with the motto, "Not by knavery, but by bravery."

The late Sir Douglas was the eighth baronet.

SENOR BLASCO IBANEZ.

Senor Vicente Blasco Ibanez, the well-known Spanish author, died on last Saturday morning in his villa, Fontana Rosa, Mentone, aged sixty-one. The cause of death was double bronchial pneumonia. His son and his second wife were with him at the end. On his death-bed he announced that he had been writing a new novel, to be called "The Youth of the World."

Blasco Ibanez was one of the best known of Spanish authors. He was born at Valencie, a city which he was afterwards to represent no less than seven times as Deputy. Educated for the Bar, he never practised. He mixed as a young man in revolutionary circles, and his political activity involved him in several periods of imprisonment. Twice he suffered banishment, first as a young man, and secondly in 1925, when he made violent attacks on King Alfonso. After his banishment he continued to organise vigorous criticism of King Alfonso and his Dictator, General Primo de Rivera, and had his leaflets distributed over Spain by means of aeroplanes. More than one Spanish General challenged him to duels, but he refused to meet anyone except the King or General Primo de Rivera.

Blasco Ibanez is said to have made a huge fortune from his writings and his film rights. It was not until the publication of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," however, that his name became known throughout the world. Originally written as a piece of propaganda, he remodelled and cast it in its present form. The work was translated into many languages, and it became so popular in America that it was said to be more widely read in the United States than any book except the Bible. The film version made the story known to millions who had never seen the book. "Mare Nostrum" and "Blood and Sand" also were filmed, and for each of these film versions he received a fortune. Senor Ibanez was an enthusiastic traveller, and had visited North and South America as well as European countries.

THE AFGHAN NATIONAL ANTHEM.

"QUAINT AND CURIOUS."

The Afghan National Anthem which will presumably be played when the King of Afghanistan visits England was described on Saturday by Lieutenant-Colonel J. Mackenzie-Rogan, late Senior Director of Music of the Brigade of Guards, in an interview in London, as singularly quaint and curious, and thoroughly Eastern in its character and effect. When he was quartered at Peshawar many years ago it was often played in the bazaar by Afghan musicians who travelled across the border with their native instruments.

"For Europeans," he said, "it is not easy to play; not because of any technical difficulty, but because of the phrasing. A great deal of expression is required in giving it its proper rendering as the Afghans understand it."

"Have many difficulties been experienced" Colonel Mackenzie-Rogan was asked, "in getting the correct music for the National Anthems of other countries?"

"It has been the custom," he explained, "to refer to 'The National Anthems of All Nations,' which is published by Messrs. Boosey and Co., by the authority of the War Office and the countries concerned. The last edition in my possession, published in 1910, contains forty-two National Anthems, including those of Hawaii, Siam, Persia, Waldeck-Pyrmont, Wurtemberg and Zanzibar. But even this official source has not always been free from error. I remember in an earlier edition the Anthem for Japan turned out to be not the National Anthem at all, but some popular march.

"The old German National Anthem was the same as 'God Save the King,' and whoever wrote the National Anthem of Zanzibar must have had the British Anthem in mind, for, though the melody is different, the rhythm is very similar.

"One of the most beautiful of all Anthems was the old Russian National Anthem; what has taken its place I do not know."

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—A secondary trough of low pressure over the British Isles is moving slowly eastwards. Weather will continue rather unsettled, with rain or drizzle at times locally, particularly along the Eastern Seaboard.

Ireland, all Districts.—Winds mainly westerly, strong at times; occasional rain or hail, but bright intervals; changeable temperature.

South-West Seaboard, Mouth of Channel to South-West Ireland, Irish Sea and St. George's Channel.—North-westerly winds, backing, strong at first; bright intervals; rain or hail showers; local morning mist; sea moderate.

LONDON LETTER.

BETTER NEWS FROM CHINA.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

The announcement that the Second Battalion of the Coldstream Guards soon will be returning home may be taken as a direct intimation that the trouble in China is now a thing of the past, and that precautions taken a year ago, when the shadow of war seemed to hover over the Far East, have been amply justified. The situation in China has improved enormously during the past few weeks, and it is not impossible that a new period of prosperity now will open; for the Chinese leaders seem anxious to arrange outstanding difficulties. The expulsion of the Russians from so many centres has removed a dangerous and provocative influence, and the fate meted out to Chinese Bolsheviks has discouraged additions to their numbers. A notable move by the Chinese is an invitation sent by the Nanking Government to Mr. Edwardes, Acting Inspector-General of the Chinese Maritime Customs, to visit Shanghai. This invitation from the Nationalist South seems to have the approval of the North—a highly significant point. It may be the prelude to quite a new state of affairs in treaty matters.

The Penny Post.

People are asking whether a restoration of the penny post will be the great benefit Mr. Churchill will bestow upon a grateful country for April, since income tax reduction and cheaper beer are said to be out of the question. Great pressure to secure this has been brought to bear upon the Postmaster-General for some months past, and he in turn has succeeded in impressing the Chancellor. Some elaborate statistics have been prepared showing that the country is likely to obtain more revenue if postage is cheaper, and it is reported that Mr. Churchill has promised to give the matter further consideration. In business circles it is claimed that a return to penny postage would give a decided impetus to trade and commerce.

The State of Trade.

Confidential inquiries are being made on behalf of the Inland Revenue authorities with regard to the probable profits of large business firms for the year 1927-28. The companies are being asked to furnish forecasts as to the results of their trading on the understanding that their estimates will be treated as strictly confidential and without prejudice to the returns to be subsequently rendered on the ordinary income tax forms. Similar measures on a smaller scale were taken last year. The figures are required by the Chancellor of the Exchequer as a guide for the preliminary preparations connected with the Budget, with particular reference to the yield from income tax.

Mr. T. M. Healy.

It is expected that Mr. T. M. Healy will pay a visit to London almost immediately after his retirement from his post as Governor-General, when he will be received by the King at Buckingham Palace. It would gratify public opinion if Mr. Healy were given recognition of his long period of service in Dublin by a title or important decoration, but it is understood that he does not wish for such honours. Mr. Healy will spend, it is said, more time in London in future than he has been able to spare for the past five years, though he has been a welcome, as well as a most important, guest on several occasions.

Parliamentary Plans.

Mr. Lambert Ward has been chosen to move the Address to the Throne of the House of Commons in reply to the King's Speech, and Mr. Templeton is to second it. The former, who is the Secretary of the Parliamentary Golf Club, and very popular with the members, is tall, thin and somewhat deliberate in speaking. Mr. Templeton, a wood turner by trade, is that rara avis, a conservative Labour member. He is very quiet in the House, being better known on public platforms than at Westminster. He has a soft, pleasing voice, and can make an extremely effective speech.

A New British Cruiser.

The new 10,000 tons cruiser Kent is nearing completion, and will be commissioned shortly for service in Chinese waters as flagship in place of the cruiser Hawkins. Captain J. Wolfe Murray, who has been appointed Flag Captain to Vice-Admiral Sir Reginald Y. Tyrwhitt, Commander-in-Chief of the China station, will take command when it is commissioned. The vessel is the first of the "Kent class" cruisers, which include the Berwick, Cumberland, Cornwall and Suffolk. These vessels have cost over £2,000,000 each, and are of the most powerful type permitted by the Washington Agreement.

"By the Rivers of Babylon."

One of the most pathetic Services of many was that of yesterday, when a number of ex-prisoners of war went to Whitehall in the wet and stormy weather to place a six-foot wreath of white, red and blue flowers on the Cenotaph. The gathering in the wind and rain sang the old psalm, "By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept," which was given at the church parades in the German prison camp at Carlsruhe during the war. The Rev. C. Page, who conducted the Service, was himself a prisoner of war, after being wounded ten times. A feature of the parade was the presence of a number of widows and orphans of men who died while prisoners. It is hoped that, as a result of the demonstration and Service, something will be done to arrange for a memorial for these men.

The Afghan King.

Some big entertainments will be given for the King and Queen of Afghanistan during their stay in London, and these will be brightened by a great display of jewels. Apart from the members of the Royal Family, many society women possess magnificent pearls and other jewels which seldom see daylight except upon such occasions, but rumour credits the Queen of Afghanistan with possession of jewels far exceeding in beauty and value many regarded here as matchless in both respects. In Paris she has been wearing a rope of magnificent pearls loosely twisted round her arm from wrist to elbow, with a necklace of seven rows of graduated pearls, perfectly matched, and fastened with a clasp formed of a great square emerald. Another of her favourite jewels is a necklace of huge solitaire diamonds and rubies, worn with a bandeau of similar stones. The rubies are perfect and their value beyond estimation.

The Canterbury Garrison.

Canterbury, which ceased to be a garrison city last May, is again to become a military centre, though it will not be, as it formerly was, a cavalry dépôt. There are more recruits for the Brigade of Guards than can be accommodated at the Caterham dépôt, so the surplus recruits are to be sent to the old Kentish city, where the barracks, which were occupied by the cavalry, are available. The first batch of recruits will be sent from Caterham on Tuesday, and further drafts will be sent at intervals, so that Canterbury may become quite a military centre again.

THE EARL OF WARWICK.

"CONDITION VERY GRAVE."

The condition of the Earl of Warwick, who is at a nursing home in Hove, is reported to be very grave.

ADVERSE BALANCE DOWN TO £15,975,000.

RISE OF NEARLY £3,000,000 IN EXPORTS.

VALUE OF IMPORTED GOODS FALLS BY £460,000.

A REMARKABLE improvement in the trade of the Irish Free State is revealed in the statistics for 1927 that were issued by the Ministry for Industry and Commerce last Saturday.

The most striking fact in the return is that the adverse trade balance, which reached £19,329,000—its highest point—on December 31st, 1926, has fallen by over three millions. At the end of last year it stood at £15,975,000, the lowest point since 1924.

ADVERSE BALANCE.

LOWEST FOR FOUR YEARS.

The Free State's adverse trade balances for the past four years were:—

The fall is explained by the reduction of imports and the increase of exports during the year. During 1926 the total value of imports into the Free State was £61,286,000 and in 1927 £60,826,000, a decrease of £460,000. Exports of Irish Free State produce amounted to £41,185,000 in 1926 and £44,168,000 in 1927, an increase of £2,983,000. Re-exports fell from £771,000 in 1926 to £684,000 last year.

Briefly stated, the Free State paid £460,000 less for imported goods in 1927 than in 1926, and received nearly £3,000,000 more for exports. These figures include dutiable and non-dutiable goods sent by parcels post.

INCREASED EXPORTS.

During 1927 there was an increase in the exports of most commodities, and in some instances the rise was remarkable, as the following table shows:—

Fresh Pork	935,755	1,278,586
Fish	650,650	820,978
Cream	321,971	502,856
Butter	3,829,636	4,574,414
Eggs	2,809,099	3,039,226
Wool	660,963	983,894

The increase in butter exports must be attributed to the operation of the Dairy Produce Act, and the increased demand for Irish eggs to the Agricultural Produce (Eggs) Act. The opening of dead meat factories in Drogheda and Waterford are among the factors which accounted for the increased exports of fresh pork.

The total of imports and exports for the twelve months, excluding non-dutiable goods sent by parcel post, are indicated in the following summary:—

	Imports. £	Exports. £
Great Britain:
1926	38,216,529	33,590,915
1927	39,215,803	36,559,770
Northern Ireland:
1926	6,158,377	5,330,496
Other Countries:
Totals:
1926	59,230,972	40,225,904
1927	59,126,087	43,195,979

It will be seen that Great Britain and Northern Ireland bought between them over £41,000,000 worth of Free State goods, or about twenty-three times more than was purchased by all the other countries combined.

OTHER COUNTRIES.

After Great Britain and Northern Ireland the United States was the Free State's best customer. To that country the Free State exported £435,648 worth of goods, and bought from it £4,621,189 worth. Exports to Germany totalled £420,025, and imports therefrom £1,490,283. Trade with other countries was as follows:—

	Exports. £	Imports. £
Canada	45,717	1,119,601
Holland	113,072	651,119
Belgium	125,652	701,322
Sweden	2,195	460,367
France	76,139	565,702
Australia	6,749	386,999
Czecho-Slovakia	30	134,297
Latvia	——	85,410
Russia	——	67,285

In the cases of only three countries did Free State exports exceed imports, and all were British Dominions. To South Africa the Free State sent £21,938 worth of goods and bought only £335 worth; from New Zealand the Free State took commodities to the value of £978 and sent £36,056 worth; India sent goods valued at £9,113 worth, and purchased in return goods to the value of £85,854.

CHIEF IMPORTS.

Bacon	2,189,028	1,651,504
Butter	501,839	364,917
Wheat	3,585,681	4,011,116
Maize	2,462,229	2,792,314

Other Apparel	1,275,424	1,243,646
Paper and Cardboard	1,057,234	1,098,104
Candles	16,216	12,247
Books and Newspapers	567,104	606,844
Soap	341,640	362,371

HOME CONSUMPTION.

There was a gratifying fall in the imports of bacon and butter, which indicates that the home article is being more largely consumed. Imports of flour, beer and ale, and spirits show little change, but unmanufactured tobacco has risen appreciably. The large increase in the imports of commercial motor cars is, no doubt, due to the development of the 'bus and lorry traffic on the roads, the number of vehicles of these classes imported having risen from 238 in 1926 to 721 in 1927.

Despite the import duty on wearing apparel, imports of overcoats went up from 248,185 to 333,244, while their values increased correspondingly. In most of the other classes of clothing there was a marked fall in imports.

Boots and shoes show little decrease; for 400,936 dozen pairs came into the Free State in 1926 and 390,857 dozen pairs during 1927. Imports of candles dropped substantially, but 131,209 cwts. of soap was imported last year, as against 127,153 cwts. during 1926.

FEWER CATTLE.

Among the chief exports of Free State produce and manufactures were:—

Sheep	1,231,559	1,325,205
Dead Poultry	653,516	709,451
Biscuits	557,543	545,369
Porter, Beer and Ale	4,956,836	4,944,694
Spirits	176,466	156,456
Hides and Skins	427,254	528,782
Feathers	93,851	130,757
Books and Newspapers	118,416	145,769

Exports of cattle, bacon and biscuits all show a decline, though not of a serious character. Porter and ale fell slightly, as did spirits. There were satisfactory increases, however, in the exports of sheep, poultry, hides and skins, feathers, books and newspapers.

900 H.P. RACER.

NIGHT AND DAY WATCH ON ATLANTIC VOYAGE.

When Captain Malcolm Campbell sails for America on Wednesday to make his attempt to upset the motor speed record of Major H. O. D. Segrave, he will have with him what is probably the largest piece of personal luggage that any trans-Atlantic traveller has ever carried.

Special arrangements have been made for the 900 h.p. Campbell-Napier racing car to be carried on the Berengaria in order that it may be immediately available on reaching America.

Three mechanics, who will keep a day and night watch over the car until the record attempt has been made, and Mrs. Campbell are also making the journey. It is expected that it will be possible to make the first test of the new car on the beach at Daytona, Florida, before the end of the second week in February.

INDISCREET WIRELESS OPERATORS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
BERLIN, Sunday.

The investigation opened by the German military authorities into the affair of the Reichswehr Army wireless operators who were arrested at various places in Central Germany has finally resulted in the release of all except the five soldiers who were arrested at Giessen.

The inquiry has shown that there is no question of espionage having been committed by any soldier, but that the wireless operators acted indiscreetly and carelessly by sending out military messages, intended only for the German Army, in such a manner that foreign stations could decipher the code.

One result of the affair will probably be that the military telegraphic code will be changed more frequently than has hitherto been the case.

There are so many Acts regulating everybody now that we do not know where we are.

AMERICAN 'PLANE FOR BRITISH PILOT.

"THEY ARE CHEAPER."

Captain W. G. R. Hinchliffe, the British air pilot, has now completed plans for an attempt to win for Britain the world's air records for non-stop long distance and duration.

"While it is true that I shall use an American machine, the records, if made, will take the nationality of the pilot, and will be British," said Captain Hinchliffe last night to a Press Association representative.

"My only reason for buying an American machine is that they are cheaper, and, as this is a private venture, one has to study expense.

"British aeroplanes and aero engines are the finest in the world, as the supermarine Napier S.5 aeroplane proved by winning the Schneider trophy, but that was a Government effort, and, as a private individual, I cannot afford the cost of a British machine."

Captain Hinchliffe has bought a Stinson Detroiter monoplane, and intends to attempt to fly non-stop from England to India, continuing towards Rangoon until his petrol is exhausted.

The present record for a non-stop long distance flight is held by the Americans, Chamberlin and Levine, when they flew from New York to Germany, 3,905 miles.

The endurance record of 52½ hours without coming down was made by a German aeroplane flying in circles over Germany.

Captain Hinchliffe's machine carries about 600 gallons of petrol, enough for a non-stop flight of from sixty to sixty-five hours at a speed of ninety to ninety-five miles an hour.

ASSEMBLY FUNDS.

CHARGES AGAINST TURKISH DEPUTIES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sunday.

The authorities have requested the National Assembly to waive the Parliamentary immunity of two deputies who are charged with being involved in the embezzlement of £T.140,000 (about £15,500) from the funds of the Assembly.—(Reuter.)

SERIOUS AFFAIR IN DUBLIN.

ARMED ATTACK ON A DETECTIVE.

CIVILIAN FOUND SHOT.

An exchange of shots between a Dublin detective and two armed men on last Saturday evening resulted in the death of a young man whose name is stated to be Timothy Coghlan, of 24 Ring street, Inchicore.

At about half-past six o'clock Detective Harling was returning to his home, Wood Park Lodge, Dartry. As he was walking past St. Kevin's Park he noticed two men standing on the footpath at the corner of the park. Something in their movements aroused his suspicions of their intentions and he stood to watch them for a moment, and they turned and walked a few steps in the opposite direction.

ATTACK OPENED.

He went on towards his house, taking the precaution of holding his revolver in readiness in case of attack. As he was turning in at his gate he heard two shots behind him from the direction in which he had seen the two men. He turned and fired and there was a brisk exchange of shots.

He had got a few steps inside his gate when one of the men rushed across the road after him, firing as he came. The detective fired again and saw the man fall.

DYING MAN FOUND.

When he reached his own door his brother-in-law, a soldier, Private Thomas Radican, who was in the house at the time, rushed past him, having heard the shots, and when he went down to the gate he found a man lying bleeding on the footpath with a wound in his forehead over the eye and another on the crown of his head. Beside him lay an automatic pistol and there were three empty cartridges lying near.

When the pistol was examined later there were five live rounds in the magazine. It was very dark and the soldier saw nothing of the second man.

ASSISTANCE CALLED.

Detective Harling, who had escaped injury, telephoned to Portobello Barracks for the military ambulance to remove the wounded man, who was unconscious, and had Father Hurley, of the Church of the Three Patrons, Rathgar, brought to the spot as soon as possible, when the wounded man was anointed. Dr. Kerrigan came along with the ambulance from Portobello, and, having rendered first aid, had Coghlan, who was still unconscious, taken to the Meath Hospital, where he died at about 8 o'clock.

It was obvious from the first that recovery was impossible owing to the nature of the wounds. It is stated that a card found on the man bore his name and address as given above.

HUNT IN THE NEIGHBOURHOOD.

Before the wounded man had been removed a body of detectives, under Superintendents Ennis and O'Driscoll, had arrived, in response to Detective Officer Harling's communication with Pearse Street Detective Division, and the neighbourhood round the scene of the occurrence was searched for the missing man. The search went on during all the night, with no result, and inquiries were being pursued all day yesterday.

The inquest on the body of Coghlan will be held in the Meath Hospital to-day at 12 o'clock.

MEN DETAINED AND RELEASED.

During the course of their investigations into the occurrence the detectives detained three young men, who were shortly afterwards released.

PIER PAVILION BURNED.

DOG GIVES FIRE ALARM.

A fire early yesterday destroyed the pier pavilion at Lytham, Lancashire, and burned to death a dog, two canaries and a goldfinch. Built about thirty-three years ago, the pavilion, a wooden structure on an iron framework, has been used lately for cinema performances.

The outbreak was discovered by the caretaker, Mr. John Evans, who, awakened at 3 a.m. by the barking and whining of one of his two Yorkshire terriers, opened his bedroom door and was met by a rush of smoke and flame.

He summoned the brigade and tried to put out the fire with buckets of water and chemicals, but, fanned by a strong breeze, it got beyond him and quickly reduced the pavilion to ashes, the firemen having to concentrate on saving the rest of the pier.

Evans managed to rescue the dog which gave the alarm, but lost his other pets.

NIAGARA FALLS FROZEN.

GREAT SNOWFALL IN NEW YORK.

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Sunday.

An emergency force of 3,500 shovellers was organised in New York yesterday to clear the streets, which had been made dangerous by the snow, which began to fall in the morning, and continued all day and most of the night.

Seven deaths in the Great Lakes region are due, directly or indirectly, to the storm. The Niagara Falls are almost entirely frozen; only a thin and comparatively silent trickle of water was flowing yesterday.

FRENCHWOMAN'S REVENGE.

HUSBAND TRAPPED IN A WELL.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Sunday.

A wife's vengeance is the talk of the village of Bellevue, near Limoges. Pretending that she had let her shopping bag fall into the well, the woman asked her husband to climb down and rescue it for her.

This he obligingly did, but when he had reached the water level she began to bombard him with great stones. He used a bucket as a shield, and pretended to collapse, after which the bombardment ceased.

Eventually he succeeded in climbing out, and took refuge with a neighbour, who sent for the police. His wife when arrested merely explained that she wanted to be revenged for a slap that her husband had given her.

TRAIN OVER BRIDGE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
RANGOON, Sunday.

According to the latest information available, of the twenty-eight passengers injured in Friday's accident to the down Mandalay-Rangoon train, twelve who were taken to Kyauktaga Hospital have all died. This brings the known death-roll to fifty-two.

The accident, which occurred at a spot about 109 miles from here, resulted in the engine, two luggage vans, and three third class bogeys with passengers going over a bridge.

One luggage van and several third-class coaches were piled up in the bed of the stream beneath the bridge where the disaster occurred, all being completely smashed.

There were no casualties among the first and second class passengers, the victims being mostly Indians and Burmans.

MR. COSGRAVE IN A SNOWSTORM

WHERE WASHINGTON'S ARMY WINTERED.

IRISH UNITY.

SCENES AT BANQUET IN PHILADELPHIA.

OFF TO OTTAWA.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.
PHILADELPHIA, Sunday.

All the political, industrial, municipal and judicial leaders of Pennsylvania honoured President Cosgrave at the great banquet given here last night by the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

His introduction by the City Solicitor, Mr. Ryan, Pennsylvania's silver-tongued orator, was preceded by an enthusiastic scene, when he was adopted as a member of the Sons of St. Patrick. The only other person to have received this honour was George Washington.

There is no doubt that the large unseen audience who listened in to the proceedings on their wireless sets must have sensed Mr. Cosgrave's emotion (which was apparent to all of us who were present) when he returned his heartfelt thanks to the gathering at the banquet.

"We can make treaties with whom we will," he said, "and we hope that it will not be long before our relations will be placed on a treaty basis."

UNITY.

There was a further great demonstration of enthusiasm when he referred to the question of partition in Ireland.

"I believe," Mr. Cosgrave assured his large audience, "that time is a great healer, and that peace and charity on both sides will provide the true remedy. In the meantime we in Ireland are living in absolute peace and concord. Political separation makes no difference whatever in the essential and unbreakable unity of the Irish nation."

Having told the story of the economic progress of the Free State since it was established during a time of civil war, Mr. Cosgrave declared his determination to keep alive the Irish language, in the belief that it is the proper and natural medium for the development and elevation of the Irish mind.

He concluded by expressing his pride in the country and the inspiring faith the Irish people had that the country had a great future.

AN EXAMPLE TO FOLLOW.

Mr. Ryan, Philadelphia's City Solicitor, in an inspiring speech, urged that American business was being run by Irishmen. He named them one by one, and ended by declaring that "what Irishmen have done in America they will do at home."

Among those present at the banquet were Cardinal Dougherty, the President of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick (who is a Protestant), and the President of the Society of St. George.

Before he was able to leave the banqueting hall Mr. Cosgrave had to sign his name to hundreds of menu cards. It is estimated that he was called upon for over 800 autographs.

IN A SNOWSTORM.

Early in the day Mr. Cosgrave, Mr. Fitzgerald and the rest of the party visited the storm-swept Valley Forge, famous because it was there that Geoge Washington wintered his tattered Army, which included the Mad Anthony Wayne and his barefooted Irish irregulars.

"How appropriate is the day," declared President Cosgrave, indicating the heavy snowstorm, which was raging when the party reached the valley, the scene of that winter encampment of a hundred and fifty years ago.

During the day he also laid a wreath on the statue of Wannamaker, who did so much to relieve distress in Ireland during the famine of 1879.

As the party were passing Borromeo Seminary the cassock-clad students rushed out into the snow and demanded a speech from Mr. Cosgrave, and when he stood up in the car and addressed them he had a tremendous reception.

AN INCIDENT.

There was a dramatic incident when Mr. Cosgrave made a brief call upon Cardinal Dougherty. Just as the President was leaving the Cardinal's residence a woman was seen to raise her umberlla and she aimed a blow at Mr. Cosgrave. A member of the President's party, however, intervened, and the umbrella fell on his shoulder.

President Cosgrave's police guard hurried away the woman, who shouted: "You murdered my nephews." The local authorities stated that they believed that the woman was mentally unbalanced.

AT ATLANTIC CITY.

To-day President Cosgrave and the rest of the party spent a few hours in Atlantic City, which, like Philadelphia, was buried in snow. In both cities large armies of workers are engaged in clearing the streets. His sightseeing tour of the famous holiday resort of Atlantic City occupied the time between eleven this morning and three o'clock this afternoon. He was escorted by the Mayor, Mr. Anthony Roffu, and civic officials, who had earlier given him an enthusiastic welcome.

The Irish Free State party surveyed the famous boardwalk seated in rolling chairs, and were greeted by merrymaking throngs all along the way.

The President declared "the city beautiful."

OFF TO OTTAWA.

Before the party left Philadelphia at seven o'clock this evening for Ottawa Cardinal Dougherty blessed Mr. Cosgrave, and, in wishing him success, prayed that he would live to see Ireland united.

It is expected that the presidential party will detrain for a short time at New York on the journey to Ottawa.

COLLISION NEAR THE ISLE OF MAN.

TRAWLER'S CREW TAKEN TO DERRY.

Four of the crew of the Danish fishing boat Katrine, whose vessel met with an accident yesterday morning, were brought to Derry in the evening.

The Katrine, a motor boat, was at anchor near Bahoma lightship, near the Isle of Man, when a collision occurred with the Heysham boat Thistle, with cargo and passengers, for Derry.

Three of the fishing boat crew were in their bunks, from which they were thrown. They scrambled through a hole in the deck caused by the collision. Four men were pulled into the Thistle and provided with clothing. On arrival at Derry the crew were brought to the Sailors' Rest, where they remained last night.

Goodman Matheson, aged 40, and Martin Jensen, aged 18, two of the crew, were treated at the infirmary for slight bruises.

IRELAND'S RUGBY VICTORY.

AN EXCITING GAME.

FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

Fifteen hundred Dubliners went to Belfast by train on Saturday to see the Rugby match between Ireland and France, and came home that evening very well satisfied with their day. When we were leaving Amiens street in the morning it was raining steadily, and a telegram from Belfast conveyed the sad news that the weather was equally unpleasant in the North; but for once fortune was kind, and as soon as we crossed the border a burst of bright sunshine assured us that we should not have the awful experience which we had at the Scots match at Lansdowne road last year. As a matter of fact, the weather in Belfast was excellent, and there was an almost summery atmosphere at Ravenhill, where a large crowd—but nothing like as large as the Lansdowne road crowd—had assembled.

THE MARSEILLAISE.

The band of the Royal Ulster Constabulary was in attendance, and the ground seemed to be in good condition—although an official told me that it had been under water on the previous day—when the French team, smart and cheerful as ever, took the field. I often wonder what Frenchmen think of the way in which Irish bands play the Marseillaise. So far, I have never heard it played over here with that "jizz" which is so essential to its proper enjoyment, and, while the Royal Ulster Constabulary band played it better than many other Irish bands that I have heard, it did not make you want to throw your hat into the air, which is the effect that the Marseillaise should, and does, have on all properly constituted crowds.

The game was highly exciting, and, while the football was not of the highest international standard, there was plenty of incident to make the interested onlooker hold his breath. The teams were fairly evenly matched; both sides played clean, if hard, football, in the course of which hard knocks were given and taken in a fine sporting spirit, and every man on the field seemed to be giving of his best. This, after all, is the test of a good game, and, judged by this standard, Saturday's match was excellent. The French, as usual, were full of pluck and dash.

A FINE TRY.

Little Henri Behotéguy, with his beret basque, bearing a striking resemblance in build and gait to J. W. Stewart, the Irish full-back, was, I think, a newcomer to Ireland, and there were times when he gave us some anxious moments. His try was a beauty. He completely bamboozled the Irish defence; and when the crowd cheered his effort just as warmly as if it had been done by one of our own men, the whole French team stood to attention and saluted. Incidents of this kind are the life's blood of Rugby football, and one feels proud to know that the Irish crowd has no superior in its generous recognition of opposing merit.

It was by no means a great game; but it held the interest of the spectator from start to finish. From the Rugby point of view, I should imagine, its most striking feature was the failure of the Irish team to kick goals. There were four tries, and at least three possible penalties; yet none of them was converted—and this with George Stephenson on the field! He tried, Pike tried, Ganly tried, and somebody else tried; but somehow it would not come off, and the ball went everywhere but between the posts.

Apart from this, there was little outstanding in the game. Little Arigho, of Lansdowne, surprised everybody by scoring two tries, one of which was a most spectacular performance; "Joe" Stewart, who plays for North of Ireland 2nd XV., was rather a revelation to the critics; and Ganly, of Monkstown, who got a nasty blow in the face during the game, played "like a book."

STRONG DEFENCE.

On the French side the two Behotéguys played well, although their performance hardly seemed to justify the Waratahs' statement that they were the two best centres in Europe; and a couple of forwards were excellent. The pace was fairly fast throughout. The Frenchmen never relaxed their efforts to snatch victory from that sterling Irish defence, and although much the greater part of the play in both halves was almost on the invaders' line, most of us were relieved when the final whistle went.

A scrum had just been formed almost under the Irish goal posts. Of course, the Irish forwards probably would have got the ball and rushed it up the field; but there always was the chance that it might have come out on the French side, and with little Behotéguy in readiness to drop a goal, or make another of his mystifying changes from one foot to another which got him his try, anything might have happened.

A dropped goal would have meant a draw, and a converted try a win for France; but there is no doubt that the better team won, and with ordinary luck in place-kicking should have won by a considerably greater margin of points.

MATCH SCRATCHED.

FOOTBALL TEAM HOAXED.

The Richmond Rugby team failed to fulfil a fixture with the Leicester Club on the ground of the latter club last Saturday, and several thousands of spectators, who had been admitted to the ground, had their money returned. The Leicester Club thought that cup-tie special trains had delayed the Richmond players, but inquiries showed that no trains had been held up.

Two Richmond players turned up, but they had come from Birmingham during the morning and knew nothing of the whereabouts of the rest of the team.

Interviewed in London on Saturday night, Mr. H. O'Brien, a former captain of the Richmond Club, said: "I accompanied the full Richmond team to St. Pancras to catch the 11.45 train to Leicester. When he arrived at the station Mr. M. L. Maley, the acting captain, was handed a telegram, "Match scratched," addressed to him on the train. I also read it, and as it led us to believe that the match had been "scratched" we went to see the Waratahs. H. L. V. Day, of Leicester, who was to have travelled on the same train, also had this information, and, so far as I know, he did not go.

"This evening we saw Mr. F. D. Prentice, of Leicester, and were surprised to hear from him that the Leicester team and a large crowd waited for us till four o'clock, and that they were mystified in Leicester why we did not turn up. The whole thing appears to be a hoax."

FATAL INOCULATION.

ELEVEN CHILDREN DEAD.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
SYDNEY, Sunday.

In conformity with the decision of a Bundaberg Borough Council to render children in the borough immune from diphtheria, medical officers inoculated a batch last Friday with serum, it is stated, from the Commonwealth Health Department. Since then eleven of the children have died and six are in a very critical condition. There is a panic in the district. Medical assistance is being rushed to the district from Brisbane.

THE NORTHERN PARLIAMENT.

CHANGE IN SYSTEM OF ELECTION.

OPPOSITION'S PROTEST.

CHARGES AGAINST GOVERNMENT.

BELFAST, Sunday.

A MANIFESTO has been issued by fourteen members of the Opposition in the Northern House of Commons against the Government's proposal to introduce legislation before the next election to abolish proportional representation and establish single member constituencies.

The manifesto declares that proportional representation was put in the Act of 1920 as a safeguard for minorities.

It is intended to abolish this system, says the manifesto, not because it worked badly, but for the purpose of securing only two parties in the Northern Parliament—Protestant and Catholic. "By this means there would be brought about a revolting revival of those insane hatreds and appalling sectarian divisions which have cursed and disfigured our public life in the past."

The manifesto concludes with the declaration that if the attempt succeeds "it may be our unhappy lot to see the opening of a blacker chapter in the oft-times saddened story of our Northern land than any of those unpleasant ones which we had fondly hoped had been for ever closed."

The manifesto is signed by fourteen of the seventeen members of the Opposition who have taken their seats, representing Nationalist, Labour, Independents, Unionists and Farmers. The names of Colonel Woods and Mr. Thomas Henderson (Independent Unionists) and Mr. Basil McGuckin (Nationalist, Derry) are not appended. Neither are the names of Mr. de Valera or Mr. E. Donnelly, who have not yet taken their seats in the Northern Parliament.

THE MANIFESTO.

APPEAL TO "LOVERS OF FAIR PLAY."

The manifesto is as follows:—

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE SIX COUNTIES—The time has at length arrived when we feel ourselves compelled to put before the people of Northern Ireland, and, indeed, before all lovers of fair play everywhere, the position of minorities under Lord Craigavon's Government. We speak as the elected representatives of every minority in the Northern Parliament, and these minorities constitute almost one-half of the population. On their behalf it is imperative on us to place the public in possession of some of the more glaring injustices perpetrated in pursuance of a set policy which seeks to reduce minority representation to hopeless impotence, to drive every exponent of independent opinion out of the Northern Parliament, and to revive and perpetuate those sectarian divisions and dissensions which all honest and sincere men of every creed and class had hoped would disappear under the influence of self-government, based on democratic principles.

After the last general election the representatives of the largest minority, representing one-third of the population, went into the Northern Parliament, and, although opposed to the idea of two Parliaments and two Governments in Ireland, showed themselves prepared to accept the status quo and to work in harmony with every other section for the best interests of Northern Ireland, the prosperity of its people, and the welfare of its trade, industry and commerce, and, as far as possible, to create a public opinion among their friends in support of this ideal.

THE 1920 ACT.

The Act of 1920, which brought into existence the Parliament of Northern Ireland, explicitly envisaged a constitution under which minorities would have fair play and adequate opportunity to voice their views. Proportional representation was set up as a safeguard for minorities. Through proportional representation those minorities had been enabled to return representatives to expound their grievances and endeavour to secure redress, and the number of these members was approximately in proportion to the numerical strength of the different minorities. Thus not only Nationalists, but Labour, Independent Unionists, ex-Service men and representatives of the unbought tenants were enabled to have their own point of view explained and emphasised in the Parliament.

As a result of this eminently fair system of representation Lord Craigavon's Government came into power with a party of thirty-three supporters out of a House of fifty-two; all other sections combined numbering nineteen. In a number of constituecies at the last general election the Independent members headed the poll by overwhelming majorities.

RELENTLESS WAR.

Since the Parliament met the minority representatives have done their best by reasoned criticism and a policy of moderate and constructive opposition to discharge their functions and carry out their duties as members of Parliament on constitutional lines. How have they been met? A relentless war has been waged against them by a rich and strongly entrenched Government, backed by a powerful political machine, directed and controlled by men still embittered by the passions and hatreds of the past. These engineers of intolerance are absolutely determined, as far as in them lies, to stifle the voice of every minority in Parliament and to rob them of all influence within the legislature.

During the last three years there have been as many bills passed in the Northern Parliament in Belfast as in the Imperial Parliament at Westminster in the same period; and in all that time not a single amendment has been accepted by the Northern Government from any member or any section of the minority.

And now, at a time of great industrial depression, instead of utilising all their energies to build up trade, discover new outlets for industrial activity, and cope with the still grave and unsettled problem of unemployment in an area which has been more gravely affected in this respect than almost any other in these countries, Lord Craigavon and his Ministerial colleagues devote themselves almost nightly to a fierce political propaganda seeking to fan into flame ancient hatreds and embitter old asperities. All this hideous campaign of intolerance and wrong now seeks its culminating triumph in the abolition of Proportional Representation which the British Legislature embodied in the Act of 1920, and which was intended for and by the minority accepted as a safeguard of their meagre rights.

WORKED WELL.

This it is proposed to do, not because proportional representation has worked badly—for it has worked well—but in order to carry out the declared desire of Lord Craigavon in his speech at a luncheon of the Ulster Women's Unionist Council, that "in this area of ours there is really only room for two parties." That is to say, a Protestant party and a Catholic party. By this means, should so sinister a purpose succeed, there would be brought about a revolting revival

LATE NEWS.

ITALIAN POETESS ARRESTED.

SURPRISE IN MILAN.

MILAN, Sunday.

Signora Amalia Gulielminetti, the well-known Italian poetess, was arrested yesterday in Turin. Her arrest, which caused a great sensation, particularly in literary circles, has only an indirect political bearing.

A few days ago another Italian writer, who, under the nom de plume of Pittigrilli, wrote a number of highly-flavoured novels against the Fascist regime and the Duce, which had a wide and undeserved popularity immediately after the war, was arrested and charged with offences against the Fascist régime and the Duce.

He succeeded, however, in proving his innocence. The accusation was based on certain expressions contained in letters that he had once sent to Signora Gulielminetti at a time when they were friends.

He proved that the incriminating expressions were a forgery, and had been added to his letters in order to compromise him. Pittigrilli was then set free and Signora Gulielminetti arrested while, it is stated, she was preparing to flee to France.

PRESIDENT AND CONGRESS.

TROUBLE BREWING IN THE UNITED STATES.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.

Trouble is brewing between President Coolidge and Congress, and no secret of the fact is made at the White House. Questions such as the $250,000,000 (£50,000,000) replacement programme for the merchant marine; the Tax Bill, which the President thinks should provide for a total reduction of not more than $225,000,000 (£45,000,000), while Congress wishes to cut off $290,000,000 (£58,000,000); the Mississippi Flood Control, the cost of which the President thinks should be borne in part by the States immediately interested, while a majority of legislators would saddle the whole burden on the Federal Government; farm relief, with the expected revival in Congress of the McNary Haugen Bill, and the costly and complicated equalisation fee proposal—all these are setting the Executive and the legislative branches of the Government at loggerheads. This leaves only the naval building programme unmentioned among the major issues, and it is to be noted that the projected $740,000,000 (£148,000,000) expenditure for new warships seems neither to be a bone of contention nor to be endangered by the havoc which a Congressional victory in the four other fields would play with the President's policy of economy and retrenchment. It would be strange, perhaps, if some financial interrelation were not ultimately disclosed; but for the moment it seems that, whatever may happen in other directions, the Navy Department is to have what it asks. The discussion in Committee of naval plans continues without thus far any modification; indeed, there has rather been amplification of the proposal as originally made.

One point has been established, however, which is of interest and importance to Great Britain for its effect on the general debate to come. The accusation so often heard in Congress, that other nations, and particularly Great Britain, had violated the spirit of the Washington Treaty, has been refuted by Mr. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy, himself. Mr. Wilbur was asked by Mr. Fred Britten, of Illinois, whether he felt that the principle of the 5-5-3 ratio, after what had happened at the Washington Conference, should be carried down to other vessels than battleships. The Secretary of the Navy, speaking for the Administration, replied: "We feel it should by agreement, not otherwise," and went on to say: "There could not be any possible criticism in my judgment of any Power signatory to the Washington Treaty for building any number of ships, or any type of ships, authorised by that agreement, regardless of the 5-5-3 ratio. Every Power had that right before the Treaty, and it was not modified or affected by the Treaty. Accordingly, to say that because Great Britain, for instance, has built a larger tonnage of cruisers than we have chosen to build is no imputation on her part of any departure from either the letter or the spirit of the Treaty, in my judgment. On the other hand, if we had chosen to build more than the other Powers it would have been strictly in accordance with the Treaty."

WOMEN MISSIONARIES

SEIZED AND ROBBED BY CHINESE SOLDIERS.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
PEKING, Sunday.

Four unmarried women missionaries, attached to the Holiness Mission, located at Tunchang, on the Grand Canal, 60 miles south-west of the capital of Shantung Province, are reported to have been seized and robbed by soldiers.

Details are not available, but it appears that the women, whose names are not yet obtainable, decided to remain at the Mission, despite the warning of the local Consul. It is believed that they may be unharmed, and that possibly they have been liberated after the looting. The men missionaries attached to the Mission were absent, having gone to Tsingtao to spend the Chinese New Year with their families, which had been sent to the seaport when the situation became critical.

The four women, it is stated, refused to depart from the Mission when the Europeans and Americans were ordered out of the city.

There is famine throughout the whole of this region, and foreign Red Cross aids have been asked for, but as the causes are due more to militarism than to drought, the appeal may probably be disregarded owing to lack of safeguard for distribution.

A HARDY MEMORIAL.

PROPOSED CHAIR OF LITERATURE.

A letter to The Times, signed by Dr. F. S. Boas, Sir Israel Gollancz, Sir Henry Newbolt, Mr. George Bernard Shaw, and a number of other distinguished literary men, refers to the proposal to endow a Chair, to be called "The Thomas Hardy Chair of English Literature," in University College, Southampton, which, it is hoped, will become the University of Wessex. It states that the scheme received the personal sanction of Mr. Hardy, though he suggested that the appeal would be more successful after his death, and confessed to sharing in some degree the feelings of those who deprecate the commemoration of living men. The objection, perhaps, had little validity in the case of Thomas Hardy; it is now removed, and we feel sure that many will agree that the proposal should be immediately resumed and carried through to a successful issue. There are other ways in which Thomas Hardy will, no doubt, be commemorated, but it seems to us to be singularly fitting to honour the memory of this great Englishman of letters by founding a Chair of English Literature in the University of the Wessex which he loved, and which must always be associated with his name."

TRADE OUTLOOK BRIGHTER.

PRINCE OF WALES'S HOPEFUL VIEW.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE JEWELLERS' CRAFT.

THE Prince of Wales, as principal speaker at the Annual Dinner of the Birmingham Jewellers and Silversmiths' Association, last Saturday night, had some encouraging things to say of trade revival.

Employers and employed, the Prince said, had come to see that their fundamental interests in large production and thriving trade were the same, and the meeting between representative employers and the General Council of Trade Unions gave the strongest reason to hope that a new era of prosperity was opening.

We had long sat in the sombre darkness of post-war depression, but we had never lost hope. We had held on, and grinned and borne it and it might be that now we were going to get our reward.

EAR-RINGS BEFORE TROUSERS.

PRINCE ON FASHIONS.

Proposing the toast of the Birmingham Jewellers and Silversmiths' Association, the Prince of Wales said:—I can assure you that I very much appreciate your invitation, appreciate it in the same way as I do invitations to the really important annual dinners of the great industrial associations of this country. Receiving such invitations usually implies (one can at least hope and flatter oneself that they do) that one is considered more or less "18 carat," or, anyway that those who send them think you are.

Now, I have been studying the list of some of the guests you have invited to your dinner in the course of the last few years, and I must confess to some apprehension. They all of them appear to be men who have done big things and who can do big things I have never attempted, and, anyway, most of them must have been good speakers. I cannot even aspire to that, and my apprehension increases in the presence of Sir Austin Chamberlain, who, whether you consider him a good speaker or no, can say almost anything he likes in Birmingham and get away with it. So I feel rather up against it to-night, but I am encouraged by your kind reception and the experience of several previous ones.

ANCIENT LINEAGE.

Your industry claims to be one of the oldest, if not even the oldest, of human handicrafts. I have even seen it stated that, in the history of civilisation, ornament comes before dress. I would not like to say positively whether the idea of a pair of ear-rings actually sprang from the human brain before the idea of a pair of trousers; but I most certainly have noticed that whenever fresh relics of the dark ages are dug up by archæologists the evidence always goes to show that about the first job of the prehistoric craftsman was to turn to and make attractive ornaments for his lady friends. Even before the latter had awoke to the decorative properties of diamonds or rubies they seem to have insisted on having necklaces made from the teeth of fallen enemies or of the animal off which they had just dined.

The jeweller, therefore, has a very ancient lineage, and a complete history of his trade would tell more fully than that of any other single trade the general history of manners and customs, as century succeeded century, of the whole human race. Moreover, the jeweller has in ancient times played a far more important rôle in the life of the community than that of a mere purveyor of ornaments. In those ancient days when there were no banks, jewels were the safest and most portable form of capital, and so the men who dealt in them acquired influence, and were, in fact, indispensable to their age.

But when we think of the jeweller's industry in retrospect, when we think of the centuries it has existed, and not only existed but has flourished, we can readily understand that it has had periods of depression amounting at times to something akin to extinction. Wars, for example, and any national upheavals have made for bad times for the jeweller, and there have been phases when religion has discouraged the wearing of jewellery. But the influence which has most affected the trade has been the tyranny of fashions in dress.

Ladies' fashions—deep waters into which I do not care to venture—must have been the hope and the despair of jewellers from time immemorial. I feel on safe ground in the matter of our own male attire. For example, we could not be wearing sleeve-links if lace ruffles were to come in again. To balance this it is quite impossible to wear an elaborate watch-chain on a golf pull-over.

THE "BOILED SHIRT."

That reminds me of another curious instance of how change in clothes affects the wearing of jewellery. Have any of you ever thought why we all wear these stiff, armour-plated shirt-fronts? I have been told the origin of them is this: About 150 years ago men wore soft pleated shirts in the evening, and then, when mangles were invented, it was found that the shirts were returned from the laundry with the buttons ground and broken in fragments. So studs were invented. But studs won't stay put in a soft shirt, so our ancestors decided to have their shirts starched; and that, I believe, is the evolution of the "boiled shirt," which has caused us and, in fact, the whole human race, such untold misery.

But a comprehensive survey of your industry shows that these periods of depression, these periods of uncertainty, are merely temporary ones. Sooner or later the jeweller, in the language of the ring, "comes back." Because there will always be a demand for his wares, there is not the smallest fear that his art will ever permanently decay. As Mr. Joseph Chamberlain—perhaps, in deference to the last speaker on our toast list to-night, I should now call him "Mr. Joseph Chamberlain the First"—as Mr. Chamberlain once said in one of the many notable speeches he made at your gatherings: "You may be of good cheer: the desire for ornament, gentlemen, is like hope; it springs eternal in the human breast."

And your trade is not only a trade—it is an art, and the word "art" suggests to us the creation of beautiful things, whose merit varies from one period to another, and according to individual tastes. Most of us have a special preference for some particular period in any one art, and, whether it be painting, architecture, or furniture, more often than not that special period is one that is past and gone. Now, I am going to pay you a compliment by saying that in your art this present-day period, the hall mark of 1928, is, in my humble opinion, the best, and that the designs of modern jewellery have reached the zenith of beauty and perfection.

INDUSTRIAL CO-OPERATION.

At the moment, too, there are more particular indications that the immediate future may bring further prosperity to your industry. Its fortunes, of course, are very closely interwoven with those of the whole industrial community in our country. And I am happy to say that the year 1927 has realised some of the hopes with which it began after the long industrial struggles of 1926. Employers and employed have come to see that, whatever differences there may be between them in matters of detail, their fundamental interests in large production and thriving trade are the same. Evidence of this can be found in the trade returns for 1927 which were published the other day. These show that, despite the black spots still to be found on our business horizon, despite the handicap under which we re-started work at the end of 1926, when many markets had been temporarily lost, we have really wiped out all our deficit and have started on the up-grade again.

AUGURY OF GOOD TRADE.

Another encouraging sign is that our imports of raw materials have been well maintained in recent months, an augury of good trade in the future, while reports as to the growth of our home trade are also distinctly encouraging. Our manufacturers and exporters are, therefore, in good heart, and are looking forward to the new year in a mood of rational optimism. The spirit of co-operation which was strikingly displayed at the recent meeting of representative employers and the General Council of the Trade Unions gives us the strongest reason to hope that a new era of prosperity is opening before us.

Another happy sign is the tremendous demand for space at the British Industries Fair which is due to open in our neighbourhood in the near future. From the experience of my previous visits to the fair, I know what an important event in our business year this fair has come to be, and I take this opportunity of wishing it the record success which it promises to achieve.

It is not necessary for me to say here or in any other gathering of my fellow-countrymen how very earnestly I hope that these good omens may be fulfilled. We have sat long in the sombre darkness of post-war depression, and we have been deluded more than once by what has proved to be only a false dawn; we have learnt to mistrust the prophets, and heaven forbid that I should try and prophesy. But we have never lost hope; we have held on, and grinned and borne it; and it may be that now we are going to get our reward. If so, I trust that your industry, and all who are concerned in it, may have an ample share. I give you the tost of the "Birmingham Jewellers' and Silversmiths' Association."

WOMEN WRESTLERS.

THE LATEST WAY TO KEEP SLIM.

Miss Bina Theodore, B.A., is one of half a dozen women who have taken up wrestling as a sport and have formed a club in London. Another member is a teacher of ballroom dancing, a third a secretary, and others are theatrical artists.

The head of the club is the unbeaten Miss Dot Butler, an expert wrestler, who for three years toured the music halls challenging all comers of her own weight, men or women, to throw her in less than three minutes.

Miss Theodore has given up school teaching to take up wrestling.

"I feel so strongly about the inadequate methods of physical culture of the Board of Education that I hope soon to start a school of wrestling myself, because I think it is the best training for the body," she said. "It is better than games like hockey and lacrosse, because ie exercises all the muscles of the body. It is a strenuous sport, yet quite suitable for women."

GLASGOW HISTORICAL PAGEANT.

THE PRINCE OF WALES TO ATTEND.

Inspired by the success of the historical pageant held at Craigmillar Castle, Edinburgh, last July, and attended by the King and Queen, Glasgow has arranged to hold a similar display on June 29 next, and it is already assured that the Prince of Wales will visit the Clydeside city for the occasion. His Royal Highness will spend two days in Glasgow.

Organised in aid of the funds of the Glasgow Incorporated Dental Hospital, the Glasgow pageant will be entitled "The Story of the West." It is proposed that the spectacle should deal with the period of West of Scotland history from the time of St. Mungo, the Patron Saint of Glasgow, to the second Jacobite Rising of 1745—a period containing many outstanding episodes in history, some of them marking the great progress made in Glasgow's industrial and civic development—which provide very ample scope for pageantry.

The project has received the promise of support from many of the leading families of Scotland, and the fact that the honorary organiser is Mr. Walter Graham Montgomery, O.B.E., is a sufficient guarantee that the standard set by last year's Craigmillar Pageant will be at least maintained. The story is being written by Mr. George Eyre Todd, and there are to be 5,000 performers.

"The Story of the West" will, through the kindness of Sir Archibald Campbell, Bart., be "staged" on the estate of Gars cube, Maryhill, Glasgow, which offers ample facilities for a historical display of the kind contemplated and is very convenient to the city.

SEX APPEAL IN FILMS.

PROTEST TO LICENSING MAGISTRATES.

Birkenhead Vigilance Committee has protested to the licensing magistrates that too large a proportion of films shown in local picture halls are dominated by sex appeal.

"The subject matter," the Committee says, "is often taken from the seamy side of history or fiction, and, where the pictures alone might fail, offensive suggestions are driven home by the captions. We find it difficult to believe that certain recent films have been viewed by the justices before exhibition, yet the sole responsibility for protecting the youth of the town from debasing films rests upon them.

"We suggest that licensees should be encouraged to exhibit at every show one or more films that may reasonably be considered educational. In this way something might be done to save our people from sinking to the level of the Middle West, whose demand the makers of films at Hollywood cater for, with disastrous consequences to us."

The Vigilance Committee suggests that any film advertised for adults only should be required to be exhibited to the justices' committee.

AMERICAN AND DURHAM CATHEDRAL.

The Archdeacon of Auckland, Canon Derry, told a week-end meeting of ex-choristers at Durham Cathedral that an American visitor who was deeply interested by his visit to the Cathedral, approached a verger and said:—"Go and ask your boss what he wants for the whole caboodle."

CATTLE DISEASE STOPS HUNT.

REPORTED CURE IN FRANCE.

VETERINARY SURGEONS ASTONISHED.

In consequence of the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease, which was confirmed at King's Norton, Leicestershire, on Saturday evening, hunting is at present banned in almost the whole of the Quorn country.

The Duke of York, who had arranged to remain at Melton Mowbray to hunt with the Quorn to-day, left on Saturday night for London, and it has also necessitated the Prince of Wales changing his plans.

A REMEDY FOR THE DISEASE.

In view of the enormous cost to the British Government in compensating farmers for the loss of their flocks and herds owing to foot-and-mouth disease, great interest is being taken there and on the Continent of what is claimed to be a speedy and effective remedy for the disease.

The cure is being kept as a secret at present, but it is stated that the results of tests which have been carried out in France are astonishing.

FARMERS SURPRISED.

A party of Dutch farmers and veterinary surgeons, who witnessed tests made in the Pontoise district last week, are so convinced of the efficacy of the discovery that tests are to be made in Holland. It is believed that the treatment will be in general use on the Continent before long.

In England foot-and-mouth disease is notifiable at present, and the affected animals are immediately slaughtered. Last month the slaughter cost the country over £43,000. The discovery, therefore, is of great importance to Britain, as the total sum paid in compensation since 1922 runs into several millions.

THE BRITISH POLICY.

Colonel Walter Guinness, the Minister of Agriculture in England, stated on Saturday that the Ministry had received thousands of supposed "cures." In the majority of cases the animals in time would recover themselves, but the policy of the Ministry was to discover some form of treatment which would produce effective immunity and prevent "contact" animals blazing the disease through the country.

"We are able," he said, "to schedule every case and smother it before it can spread very far." If he could not do that, and the disease were allowed to get all over the country, then the question of a cure might be of primary importance.

RELIABLE IMMUNISATION.

"The efforts of the Foot-and-Mouth Disease Research Committee," he added, "are being concentrated, therefore, on a remedy for reliable immunisation. The Committee has found out much about the causation of the disease, but have not yet, unfortunately, discovered the preventive remedy.

"Innumerable alleged cures have been received—the one mentioned in the report, though its nature is not indicated, may be among them—and experiments have been made, but nothing has emerged which justifies the Ministry altering the present policy, both in regard to the instant slaughter of diseased animals and continuing their pursuit of a remedy of immunisation."

CAPITAL LEVY AND SURTAX.

CO-OPERATIVE PARTY'S PROPOSAL.

The Co-Operative Party conference at York last Saturday discussed the Labour Party's surtax proposal. The London society desired to amend the Co-operative Party's programme by including, in place of capital levy, a special surtax on unearned incomes; while a Sheffield amendment, supported by the Executive, proposed that steps should be taken to obtain the approval of the Co-Operative Congress to add the surtax to the capital levy as an alternative policy, which should be supported by co-operators as a method of national debt redemption.

The Sheffield amendment was carried, as was also a resolution viewing with concern the unsatisfactory effect of the operation of the Sugar Beet Subsidy Act, and demanding an inquiry. Another resolution, advocating nationalisation of the mining industry and national generation of electrical power, was carried.

WORLD'S BIGGEST POLICIES.

BRITISH FILM PRODUCER INSURED FOR £100,000.

Mr. Herbert Wilcox, the British film producer, has been insured by his company, the British Dominions Film Corporation, for £100,000 at Lloyd's.

"I am now, of course, worth £100,000 dead," Mr. Wilcox said to a Press representative yesterday. "This sum, a record insurance for British films, would pay the dividends of the company which is being launched this week for the next four years on all shares!"

Mr. Wilcox has just obtained the film rights of "When Knights Were Bold," and Mr. Nelson Keys, his partner, is to play Jimmy Welch's part of Sir Guy de Vere.

A life insurance of £100,000 is by no means unusual, although a rare occurrence in England.

What is believed to be the world's "record" policy was taken out in 1923 for £13,500,000, covering the whole of the personnel of the Philadelphia Police Department.

Mistinguett, who is declared to possess the shapeliest legs in Europe, insured each of her limbs for £100,000.

Other large insurances include:—Dr. Banting, the famous discoverer of insulin, £200,000; Jackie Coogan, £130,000; Paderewski's hands, £12,000; Pavlova's toes, £6,000. Insurances for £100,000 are quite common in America.

FOREIGN STONE.

BRITISH QUARRY OWNERS' COMPLAINT.

A large increase in the quantity of foreign stone used on British roads is indicated by the returns issued in London by the National Federation of Granite and Roadstone Quarry Owners.

During 1927 the imports of broken roadstone from foreign countries amounted to 230,875 tons, as against 220,983 tons during 1926. The imports during December last alone amounted to 20,367 tons, as against 16,577 tons in December, 1926. These figures do not include setts and kerbs, of which 135,971 tons were imported during 1927, as against 123,314 tons in 1926.

London was the principal port of importation, 194,596 tons of foreign roadstone being landed there during 1927. Large quantities were also landed at Harwich, Yarmouth, Newhaven, Rochester, Southampton, Hull, Ipswich, Ramsgate, Goole and Grimsby.

It is pointed out that, although numerous quarries capable of large outputs exist in England, Scotland, Wales and the Channel Islands, there are at the moment over 2,000 men unemployed in the roadstone quarrying industry in this country.

LORD GRIMTHORPE'S SECOND SHARK.

WELLINGTON, NEW ZEALAND, Sunday

Lord Grimthorpe, while fishing off Cape Brett to-day, landed a Mako shark weighing 296lb., and Lady Grimthorpe caught a swordfish weighing 278lb.—(Reuter.)

[NOTE.—Only five days ago Lord Grimthorpe caught a shark weighing 630lb., which was believed to be a world's "record." It was claimed in Durban, however, that a Durban angler in 1926 had landed a shark weighing 937lb.]

MORE FIGHTING IN MEXICO.

POLICE SEARCH FOR A BISHOP.

NEW YORK, Sunday.

A report from Guadalajara, which has not yet been confirmed by the Mexican War Office, states that five hundred Mexican Federal soldiers, under General Andrew Figueroa, have been ambushed by Roman Catholic rebels near La Barca, in the State of Jalisco, and that less than twenty escaped.

The American Consul at Mazatlan stated that recent engagements between Mexican Federals and rebels in the State of Mayarit have resulted in more than fifty casualties. The police in Mexico City declare that the recent arrests of Roman Catholics were all connected with the renewed activities of the rebels in Jalisco and other central States.

Ten priests and four women are still under arrest at police headquarters. The police yesterday searched for Bishop Miguel de la Mora, of San Luis Potosi, who is accused of directing and aiding rebels, but he eluded capture, escaping from the house of a friend shortly before the arrival of the police.

The Roman Catholics deny that the Bishop had any connection with the rebels, and state that he is hiding only to avoid persecution. The offices of the Catholic League, which were raided by the police, have been searched and closed.

LONELY WANDERER.

WOMAN WHO WALKED OVER THE WORLD.

"I don't advertise, I don't write books, I don't talk to newspaper men as a rule," said Miss Gertrude Bentam on her arrival at Plymouth from Trinidad.

Here probably is the reason why comparatively few people in this country know anything of Miss Benham's wonderful pedestrian achievements, in the course of which she has visited, during the past twenty years, practically every part of the British Empire.

FEW NEEDS.

"I just travel round the world studying Nature," Miss Benham went on. "I enjoy the vast and wonderful beauties of Nature presented to us in all parts of the globe. I pay my own expenses, my needs are few, and I please myself where I go. On average I never spend more than £250 a year, yet I have been in many parts of Africa where no white woman had ever been seen before.

"Twenty years ago I was attracted to the Swiss mountains. Then I went further afield, and to all intents and purposes I am a lonely wanderer, and I enjoy to the uttermost the spirit of wanderlust that has entered my soul.

"I am never lonely: How can I be with so much to see and admire? I sketch, and when I am tired of sketching and painting I indulge in the feminine pastime of embroidery. I make my own clothes, and roughing it in the bush one has to keep one's outfit up to date and presentable.

NEVER FRIGHTENED.

"I have never heard of a rival," added Miss Benham, who confesses she is sixty, "and I walk everywhere I can and give travel talks in colonial schools. It was in 1902 that I started my walking, and I have been ever tramping ever since. African wild animals never frighten me, and I have been quite close to lions and leopards in the bush, but they never harmed me or my carriers.

"I always go unarmed, and I think that animals of the forest know by instinct that I have no desire to kill. My equipment is simple. I wear an ordinary khaki skirt, puttees, strong shoes, and a pith helmet."

Miss Benham has travelled across Africa from West to East, and has visited Tibet, the Himalayas, and New Zealand. She has just completed four years' tour, first of the Himalayas, then in Tibet, Arabia, and Bagdad, crossing the desert by motor.

Syria and Palestine were also visited, and she has been to Cyprus, Egypt, Madagascar, Reunion, Mauritius, Singapore, Sarawak, French Indo-China and Hong Kong.

Miss Benham has not yet settled her next tour.

FRENCH CONVICT HERO.

REMISSION OF SENTENCE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Sunday.

During the efforts to save the passengers and crew of the ill-fated liner, Principessa Mafalda, many people noted the extraordinary courage and devotion of a passenger aboard the Mosella, one of the rescuing liners. It was learned afterwards that this passenger, named Courbier, had been sentenced to penal servitude and had escaped. He might have passed unnoticed had not his bravery singled him out. He was arrested on arrival at Bordeaux, but has been set free, the judicial authorities considering that his conduct justified such a measure of clemency.

MARRIAGES IN FRANCE.

SURPRISING STATISTICS.

PARIS, Sunday.

Recently published statistics show that in 1925 no fewer than 11,181 Frenchwomen married foreigners, while only 5,880 Frenchmen took foreign wives. Despite the numbers of Russians and Poles in France, there were only 437 Franco-Russian unions and 465 Franco-Polish weddings. There were 1,073 Franco-German marriages, largely between persons living along the frontier line. Only 72 Frenchmen married American women, but 162 Americans married Frenchwomen.

By far the greatest number of foreign marriages are those between French citizens and members of other Latin races. French men and women contracted 4,179 unions with citizens of Belgium and Luxemburg, while the record was held by Franco-Italian marriages, which totalled 5,068. Franco-Spanish marriages totalled 1,925.

In every case the proportion of one Frenchman marrying a foreigner for two Frenchwomen marrying foreigners is maintained. Possibly the French cooking has something to do with it.

AN AMERICAN AIR ROUTE.

FORMER R.A.F. PILOT'S EFFORT.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CHICAGO, Sunday.

Captain Joseph Donnellan, formerly of the Royal Air Force, started to-day in an aeroplane named "I Will" a journey to Santiago de Chile and back. His intention is to open a commercial aviation route between North and South America. The total journey of 16,000 miles there and back is to be made in hops of 500 miles each. The itinerary provides for stops at Atlanta, Georgia, Havana, Cuba, Managua, Panama and various places on the West Coast of South America. The backers of the enterprise hope to demonstrate the feasibility of this air route by using a small monoplane with a Curtis engine. A rifle, six days' rations and water, a parachute, maps, Consular letters, 99 gallons of petrol and seven quarts of oil comprise the entire load of the machine.

NEW TUT-ANKH-AMEN EXHIBITS.

GOLD MODEL OF COFFIN AND GUARDIAN ANGELS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAIRO, Sunday.

More of the treasures which recently arrived at the Cairo Museum from the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen are on view to-day. They include a beautiful gold model, about a foot long, of Tut-Ankh-Amen's gold coffin, complete in every detail, and of the most perfect workmanship.

Among other attractive exhibits are the four guardian angels of the canopic jar found in the tomb. Altogether the new exhibits add greatly to an already wonderful display.

WHEN EVERYONE WILL FLY.

AEROPLANES AS REGULAR AS TRAINS.

"One aeroplane to every hundred persons" is the estimate of Commander Richard E. Byrd, who has flown over the North Pole and crossed the Atlantic in an aeroplane, of the aviation position fifteen years hence.

"I expect," said Commander Byrd, in an interview, "that above a large city there will be a whirr of engines almost as loud as the hum of the city streets. We will see the sky flecked with the wings of aeroplanes. There will be amphibian planes, built for land and water flying, dipping like gulls down to rest on the harbour. There will be huge airships carrying freight and perhaps a hundred passengers.

AS REGULAR AS TRAINS.

"These, as regularly as trains now draw into railroad stations, will come up at scheduled times to concrete platforms in aviation fields on the edge of the city. There will be small planes with braking devices that will make it possible to alight at slow speed in a small place, such as on skyscraper roofs.

"Darting out toward open country spaces will go fast, small, and medium-sized sport aeroplanes. There will be little swift planes for messenger service. Travelling a network of definite air routes from distant cities will come large passenger, freight, and mail craft, and over special express lines planes in a hurry will be going at a rate of 200 miles an hour.

FOR THE FARMER

"In the country agricultural planes will fly low, spraying the orchards and crops. Government planes will patrol forests watching for fires. And, instead of walking or playing tennis, many lovers of sport in engineless gliders (such as are already used in Europe) will take off from low hills and drift with the wind for miles.

"Civil air lanes throughout the country will be plainly marked by means of guiding signs on protruding parts of the landscape. And frequent landing areas along these air lanes will increase safety. At night beacons and searchlights that can be seen fifty odd miles will indicate air lanes.

ATLANTIC PASSAGES.

"A thousand lights will outline landing stations; and as a plane hovers over a station light signals will be dropped by the pilot, and the station will answer, telling whether it is safe to land by flashing light signals upward. The sky will hold more than stars.

"Transatlantic flights will no longer be announced in newspaper headlines. One airship, with approximately 100 passengers, and one aeroplane, with perhaps fifteen, will leave daily on scheduled time. (This will occur when fog has been conquered.)

"Out in mid-ocean there will be some sort of anchored landing platforms, which will bring safety to ocean flyers, even when forced down. For connected with these landing-fields there will be commercial aeroplane carriers that will stand by in separate zones ready to go to the help of planes in trouble."

WAGES FOR WIVES.

IDEA REJECTED BY WELSH LABOUR PARTY.

"I agree with pocket money or wages for the wife, but I do not see that it is practicable until we get better conditions for our men," said Mrs. Keating, of Barry, at a conference of the Welsh Divisional Independent Labour Party at Swansea last Saturday, which discussed the question: "Should wives receive wages?"

Miss G. Cowles, Pontypridd, who moved a resolution urging that the living wage proposal should be based on the needs of one person, the wage-earner, and that the family allowance scheme should include separate provision for the wife, urged that women should have an allowance quite apart from that of the husband. The resolution was carried on a show of hands, but a card vote reversed this decision.

Outspoken comments about certain Labour leaders were made by Mr. T. Worrell, of Barry, during a discussion on the coal industry. He said that one Labour M.P. charged £9 for addressing three meetings, and added: "There are multitudes of so-called leaders who are taking advantage of the rank and file and are demanding a toll from them. Believe me, there is going to be a need of purification in our party."

A resolution was passed demanding a living wage for miners.

NEW YORK COLLEGE SENSATION.

REPORTED CHEATING AT EXAMINATIONS.

At Hunter College, New York, where over 4,000 girls are enrolled, a sensation has been caused by statements of girls attending the college that cheating is rife at all examinations held there. The charges are made in the college magazine, and Dr. George S. Davis, President of the college, has undertaken to inquire into the allegations.

One girl states that "nine-tenths of the girls cheat"; another that only sixty-five students out of 4,000 are honest. The examinations are held under the "honour" system, under which, during the progress of the examinations, the students are free from supervision. These are some of the charges:—

I heard two girls talking in the hall. One said to the other, "I passed that examination, thanks to the honour system."

I see cheating every time I go to an examination, but I wouldn't tell. I couldn't stay in school if I did. One girl did, and her life had been made miserable for her ever since.

Girls will cheat whether the teacher is in the room or not.

Even when the teacher is in the room the girls pass their papers to one another.

In an English section we had fifteen words to define. One girl announced the definitions aloud to all the others.

The honour system has been in use at Hunter College since 1923. The students are expected to report delinquencies, but, according to the testimony of the students, the student precept, "Thou shalt not peach," has more force than the honour system.

Dr. Davis declares that the charges are exaggerated.

A HUSBAND'S PRICE.

WIDOW TO LOSE £1,000 A YEAR IF SHE REMARRIES.

Mrs. Dawson, widow of Mr. William Skelton Dawson, of Lindrum terrace, Lincoln, will lose £1,000 a year if she marries again.

Mr. Dawson, a leather belt manufacturer, left £50,225. He gave £500 and £1,200 a year to his wife during widowhood, or £200 a year should she marry again.

Charities benefit to the extent of £35,000 under the will of Miss Matilda Margaret Reid, of Chesterfield Gardens, Hampstead, London, N.W.

She gave £10,000 each to Earl Haig's British Legion Fund for ex-Service Men and to the National Institution for the Blind, and £5,000 each to Dr. Barnardo's Home, the Society for the Assistance of Ladies in Reduced Circumstances, and the Royal Sailors' Orphan Girls' School.

of those insane hatreds and appalling sectarian divisions which have cursed and disfigured our public life in the past, and which it was the hope and dream of every honest man and every true patriot would disappear.

If Lord Craigavon's Government could point to any success achieved by them, to any well-conceived plan to deal with unemployment, to start new industries, to provide a remedy for the enormous depression in the great staple industry of agriculture, to make proper provision for the unbought tenants, to deal with the hundred and one minor grievances that have created general discontent, there might, perhaps, be something to be said in support of their claim to rob minorities of their rights and thwart and neutralise the intention of the Act of 1920, but the conditions of trade, of industry and of agriculture were never worse than they are at the present time.

CONSTITUTIONALISM.

It may be—possibly it is the hope of the authors of the new proposals—that, smarting under feelings of deep resentment at this wholly unwarranted deprivation of the elementary rights of representation, the victims of this fresh injustice may lose all faith in constitutional methods. Such a result might, of course, seriously reduce our numbers, relieve Lord Craigavon's Government of any effective opposition in Parliament, and thus deprive it of the one real value it possesses—that of being the most potent instrument left to the minority for the exposure of the indefensible conditions that prevail.

In this connection it may not be inappropriate to quote the words of one who has always claimed to be a Unionist and a supporter of Lord Craigavon. At a public meeting in Ballymoney, at which Mr. Pringle, K.C., one of the Northern Prime Minister's supporters in the Imperial Parliament, was also amongst the orators, the Rev. Mr. Johnstone made the following declaration:—

"The Government cunningly contented themselves either by appealing to the political prejudices of the people or by seeking to broadcast an entirely false impression of the existing condition of things. They counselled the people, for example, to leave well alone. I would like to know in what department of Ulster life this 'well enough' condition prevails. It is certainly not well with regard to trade and commerce. There were 25,000 on the list of unemployed. There were 48,900 struck off the bureau during the last twelve months, and a large percentage of these are to-day walking the streets in idleness. In addition, there are many thousands of young people from 14 to 20 who have never yet got a job, and who, in the glad morning of life, are being consigned to hopelessness and despair. Already there have been many suicides owing to unemployment, and our local asylums are overcrowded for the same cause. Poverty has increased during the year by 100 per cent., and some Boards of Guardians as a result have had to revise, and in many cases reduce, their meagre grants. I challenge the Government to disprove one single statement I have here made."

HOPELESS DESTINY.

This outspoken expression of the views of one who has been a staunch follower of Lord Craigavon will help to give the public some idea of what the condition of things in Northern Ireland is. Because Independent members of the Northern House of Commons have made similar declarations, though in much milder terms, and have tried to make an honest attempt to provide a remedy for the evils thus portrayed, they are to be driven out of public life—deprived of political existence—and the present Ministry permanently installed in power, and all the reactionary ideas for which it stands—stereotyped as the hopeless destiny of the unhappy area ruled by the Government of Northern Ireland.

Let us apply one simple test to the statesmanship, the political vision, the administrative acumen of the gentlemen who constitute this Government. One of the first things these gentlemen did at a time when, out of a population of a million and a quarter, there were some six thousand persons on the unemployed register, faced with hunger and with no prospect of work, was to increase the amount paid to the Prime Minister of this small area with a population not very greatly in excess of that of Glasgow City, to the same figure as that of the British Prime Minister, the head of a Government burdened with world-wide responsibilities.

The purpose of the policy enunciated by the Prime Minister is clear. Not only have minorities been deprived of their due share of representation, but large majorities—by a process of jerrymandering—have been reduced for all time to the position of helpless minorities in the County Councils of Ulster. Lord Craigavon's speeches, the declarations of his Ministers, the methods pursued by the Government in Parliament and out of it, leave no room for doubt.

THE ALLEGED AIM.

The intention is to crush out all independent opinion, to rob minorities of the rights granted to them by the very Act that made the existence of either the Northern Parliament or a Northern Government possible. The carrying out of such an intention would, obviously be fraught with grave menace to the continuance of that spirit of peace, tolerance and co-operation which has been slowly developing, and which the best friends of genuine law and order have watched with kindly sympathy and a new-born hopefulness.

For three years, thanks to the good sense of the masses of the people and the growing spirit of good fellowship that had begun to permeate their ranks, peace and order have prevailed in Northern Ireland. Wilfully to disturb that happier condition of things, deliberately to fling an apple of discord amongst those who have been slowly learning to appreciate the finer fruits of friendliness and amity, is a crime against the community—an act so indefensible that we refuse to believe the people of Northern Ireland will give their sanction to such a wanton proceeding once its evil consequences are brought clearly home to them.

If the British Government, in the interest of greedy and self-seeking politicians, devoid of vision and bankrupt of resource, tolerate the tearing up of the "scrap of paper" which gave some little shred of protection to minorities, then it may be our unhappy lot to see the opening of a blacker chapter in the oft-times saddened story of our Northern land than any of those unpleasant ones which we had fondly hoped had been for ever closed.

A SPECIAL CONSTABLE'S RIFLE.

SEQUEL IN BALLYBAY COURT.

When William Robert Burges, of Ullinagh, was charged at Ballybay (County Monaghan) Court, before District Justice Goff with being unlawfully in possession of a Lee Enfield rifle, a shot-gun, and a quantity of ammunition, he said that the rifle was the property of his brother, who was in the "Specials," and had now left for Canada. He left the rifle as a souvenir at defendant's residence. The shot-gun was left outside his house by some members of the I.R.A. in place of his gun, taken in a raid, and which he (defendant) was expecting to recover.

The Justice said that he sent men to jail for having less firearms, but owing to the settled times in which they were now living he would let the defendant off with a fine of £5, the gun and rifle to be forfeited.

HATCHET ATTACK ON GUARDS.

John McDonald, said to be a native of Granard, Co. Longford, was fined £2 10s. for an assault on the Civic Guards and drunkenness on January 2 last.

Sergeant Crinnegan said that the defendant attacked the Guards with a hatchet (produced), and they took it from him after a tussle.

UNPAID MOTOR TAX.

William Macklin, Monaghan, was fined £36, reduced to £2, for not having his motor tax paid on December 10 last. In respect of December 11 he was charged by Guard Carthy with a similar offence.

The Justice said that he did not know whether he should reduce the fine or not. He fined him £36, and mitigated it to £4.

CONFLICTS DURING THE SERVICE.

POLICE PROTECTION FOR THE VICAR.

Protests by anti-Anglo-Catholics at St. Cuthbert's Church, Darwen, yesterday, culminated in riotous scenes after the Service, and the Vicar, the Rev. E. B. Lauria, and a colleague who had taken part in the Service, were protected by police from a crowd of two thousand people. Traffic was held up, and the police had to form a barrier across the road by joining hands to turn back the crowd.

During the Service at the church there was great disorder. Hymns were sung to drown the Sung Eucharist, and many times there was serious conflict.

The Vicar left his stall and called in the police to deal with the interruptions. A number of names were taken. The Service was brought to a sudden termination, and the protesters sang the National Anthem after the choir and clergy had withdrawn to the vestry.

A manifesto was afterwards circulated by the protesters calling upon Church people to fight against the attempt which it was alleged was being made to lead the Church of England back to reunion with Rome.

TEACHERS IN THE NORTH.

WORKING OF EDUCATION ACT.

The annual conference in connection with the Irish National Teachers' Organisation in Ulster was opened last Saturday in Clarence place Hall, Belfast.

Mr. R. Neilly, Ballymena, who presided, said that their organisation held a high place among the teaching organisations of the world. Amid all the trouble in Ireland their organisation had preserved its unity North and South. That would not be without its influence on the future history of their country. Not a single action on the part of the Northern Committee had been questioned by the Central Executive Committee.

He wished to say that not a single teacher in the North had suffered in any respect since the Education Authority had been set up. He regretted to say that since the Amending Act had been passed the transfer of schools had become a deadlock. The regional committees should declare why their proposals are not acceptable. In the past the teachers and the managers were the only people who had taken any interest in education at all, and he did not see for what reason to-day either of these parties should be ignored.

The following resolutions were passed:—

(1) We strongly object to the attitude of the Ministry of Education, which acquiesces in the employment of children for the cleaning of schools, as it cannot be done efficiently by children, and the employment of children for this purpose is objectionable and exposes their health to unnecessary danger.

(2) In our opinion the system of inspection in operation in Northern Ireland is antiquated, unnecessarily harsh, and wholly uncalled for as a safeguard on public expenditure, and we urge upon the Ministry of Education the desirability of setting up a committee for the purpose of inquiring into the system and to make recommendations.

(3) That we protest against the general tone of the Ministry's report for 1926-27 on elementary education. While we admit that defects exist, we resent the suggestion in the report that teachers are wholly responsible. Certain obvious defects in the system are referred to in such a manner as to convey the idea that the whole responsibility for these lies with the teachers, whereas in most cases the defects are plainly attributable to the present inspection system.

ALDERMAN AND THE CLERGY.

Alderman Duff, Chairman of the Belfast Education Committee, referred to the claims of the Protestant Churches. He said that the Education Committee had practically demonstrated that the Act could be put into operation—every section of it at once. They had demonstrated the possibility of overcoming the school shortage within the period of another six years. It was a very big thing to say, but he said it—that they would provide schools sufficient to modernise the school accommodation of Belfast within the next six or seven years.

The Belfast Education Authority was committed to that; and now when they had proved this possible, those who did not want to see this state of affairs had got to be busy and act at once. And they were doing so. Maybe that would be called one of Alderman Duff's outbursts. But it behoved every man and woman with progressive ideas in the City of Belfast not to see that progressive movement go down for want of the support that might be available.

No one should be ashamed to nail his flag to the mast, and let them do it with clear vision, remembering that they were all John Thompson's bairns. There were those who thought that there were only one or two churches in the city, forgetting that there were a great many other social agencies working for the good of it. What they wanted was to kill absolutely—to kill stone dead—any attempt at the resuscitation of the idea, and because a man wore a collar and a certain cloth he thereby had the right to exercise authority over his fellowmen. (Applause.) He was determined, after all the changes of fourteen years' service to the community, that he would go out of public life and responsible position—may be he would be kicked out—before he would submit to the resuscitation of that particular type of authority. (Applause.)

PARTHENON HEAD FOR THE LOUVRE.

A REMARKABLE HISTORY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Sunday.

At a recent sitting of the Académie des Inscriptions it was announced that the Louvre has bought the famous head from the Parthenon, known as the Laborde Head, which, together with the one in the British Museum, alone remains of all the figures which formerly decorated the Parthenon.

M. Michon, who made the announcement, briefly retraced the extraordinary history of the relic. In 1687, he said, in the course of a war between the Venetians and the Turks, Morosini, at the head of a Venetian force, beseiged the Acropolis. The Turks had transformed the Parthenon into a powder magazine, and a bomb thrown by the Venetians caused a terrible explosion, which damaged much of the wonderful building.

The western front remained practically intact, but an attempt by Morosini to take down the figures in order to transport them to Venice resulted in their destruction. San Gallo, Morosini's secretary, brought back a head which had escaped from the general wreckage, and had it incrusted in the wall of his house, as was then the fashion. One hundred and fifteen years later the house was pulled down. Little attention was paid to the head, which was bought, in 1824, by a German named Weber, an artist, who recognised the marble as coming from the Parthenon. Twenty years later the Comte Leon de Laborde, former Conservator of the Louvre, who had gone to Athens in order to document himself on the Parthenon for a work he was writing, came through Venice on his return. There he bought the precious head, which he brought back to France, and since that time it has remained in the family.

Despite the fact that would-be American purchasers offered fabulous sums for the head, the family of Laborde refused to allow it to leave the country, and have now ceded it to the Louvre at a price much below the American offers. The head is that of a young man, with a singularly pure Greek profile and curly hair.

MORE CASES OF SMALLPOX.

Thirty-three cases of smallpox have now been notified from the Western road house of the Birmingham Board of Guardians, two fresh cases being reported last Saturday and two yesterday.

"Spain, To-day," is the title of a lecture which will be delivered by Professor Starkie, F.T.C.D., in the Parochial Hall, Seafield road, Clontarf, to-morrow evening, at 8 o'clock.

FRENCH LITERARY DISPUTE.

ZOLA'S LEGATEES AND THE GONCOURT DIARY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Sunday.

A literary dispute in which famous names are mixed up is interesting Paris. The Académie Goncourt, which some years ago decided not to publish in its entirety the journal of the two famous brothers, has now refused its consent to the publication of certain letters addressed to the two Goncourts by Emile Zola, publication of which is demanded by the novelist's legatees.

It will be recalled that the will of the last of the Goncourts authorised publication of the journal twenty years after the author's death, but when this period had elapsed it was decided to continue to defer publication, on the ground that certain passages might give pain to persons still living. The manuscript was placed by the ten members of the Académie Goncourt in the safe keeping of the National Library, where it can only be consulted by a few privileged persons. From time to time facetious readers ask for the journal, but are invariably told that it is under lock and key—"aux enfers," this being the name given to the quarter of the library reserved for somewhat inflammatory works.

Besides the Journal itself, no less than thirty boxes of letters were placed in the library, containing epistles from Victor Hugo, Berthelot, Sainte-Beuve, Taine, Flaubert, Renan, Maupassant, Zola and many others. Edmond de Goncourt's will also provided for the publication of these letters twenty years after his death.

There are some hundreds of letters from Zola, and these have now been claimed by the novelist's son, Dr. Jacques Zola, and Mme. Le Blond (née Denise Zola), his daughter. The claim has been made in writing to M. J. H. Rosny Aine, President of the Académie Goncourt, who has refused it on the ground that it would create a dangerous precedent. Although many of the persons mentioned in the Journal and letters are now dead, M. Rosny points out that they have heirs, who would not fail to defend the memory of their relatives. There the dispute rests for the moment, but it is not improbable that it may be taken further.

IRISH IN AMERICA.

MR. LEMASS'S COMMENTS ON MR. COSGRAVE'S TOUR.

Mr. S. Lemass, T.D., addressing a meeting at Claremorris last night, said that the Fianna Fail Party had to contend with a campaign of misrepresentation that had no equal in the Press of any other country in the world.

"Mr. Cosgrave," he said, "is at present in the United States, but I do not think he has seen much of the United States, with the escorts that are around him to do him honour, of course, or with the armoured cars and the like by which they have found it necessary to surround him. He did not see any of the Irish people in America at his banquets. There was one person there called Flattery, described as the biggest Irish leader in America, but although I am secretary of the Fianna Fail, and our branches are all over the world, I do not know who Mr. Flattery is."

NEW ISSUES.

BEECHAMS PILLS, LIMITED.

This company is making an issue of 1,000,000 8 per cent. (participating up to 10 per cent.) Preferred Shares of £1 each at par and 1,000,000 Deferred Shares of 1s. each at 1s. 6d. per share, out of a total capital of £2,250,000 in £2,000,000 Preference Shares of £1 each and 5,000,000 Deferred Shares of 1s. each. Applicants for Pref. Shares are entitled to have allotted to them one Deferred Share in respect of every Pref. Share allotted. Applications for Deferred Shares alone will not be accepted.

The company has recently been formed to acquire as from 31st December last the Beechams Pills business, also 944,010 of the 1,000,000 Deferred Ordinary 1s. shares of Veno Drug. The company thus secures control of what is claimed to be the largest group of proprietary medicines in the country, and co-operation is expected to lead to substantial economies and increased profits. Mr. P. E. Hill, the Chairman recently purchased certain estates from Lord Derby at £1,717,500, and sold the latter without profit to Beechams Estate and Pills, the latter then re-selling to him the pill business for £1,117,343, which he resells to the present company at same price. Pill business profits are shown for 12½ years prior to the death in 1916 of Sir Joseph Beecham, rising with fluctuations from £68,000 to £125,000 per annum, in each case before allowing for income tax. Further progress was made in subsequent years, and for the 12 months ended June last the profits were £154,255, while average for last 16½ years is certified as £150,464, after charging patent medicine duty and E.P.D., but before meeting directors' fees and income tax. Similarly profits of Veno Drug and subsidiary are shown as £165,737 for year ended January, 1927, and average for last five years and ten months is £105,054. Deducting prior charges of Veno Drug, combined average profits applicable to the present company exceed £168,000, which, after deducting directors' fees, covers fixed 8 per cent. dividend more than twice over, and after providing for additional 2 per cent. Preferred dividend, leaves a balance equal to 25 per cent. on Deferred shares. It is stated that combined sales of the two businesses for six months ended 31st December last show over 20 per cent. increase over the corresponding period. After meeting purchase price and issue expenses, present issue will provide £65,000 working capital. Amount payable in selling price for goodwill and trade marks is £938,789. The 944,010 Deferred shares of Veno Drug are purchased for £183,694, Mr. P. E. Hill subscribing for 4,000,000 Deferred 1s. shares of the new company at 1s. 9d. each. Two directors of the new company are sales manager and export sales manager, respectively, of Beechams Estate and Pills at respective salaries of £650, plus £200 expenses, and £850 per annum each for five years from 1st August last. No directors' fees, save under service agreements, will be payable in any year until the Preferred shares have received their maximum 10 per cent. dividend and Deferred shares 25 per cent. dividend. Steps have been taken, therefore, to create a position whereby holders of the Deferred shares will have reasonably good speculative chances. The application list will close on or before Thursday, February 2. Applicants should use the form attached to the Prospectus on page 3.

LONDON BORDER AND GENERAL TRUST, LIMITED.

The entire capital of this new Trust—150,000 shares of £10 each at par—is being offered to-day through Martins Bank. Prior applications have been received for 120,000 shares, which will be allotted in full. Each share, when fully paid up, will be converted and divided into £6 of preference stock and £4 of ordinary stock. The preference stock will be entitled to a 5 per cent. cumulative preferential dividend from the 1st August, 1928, and to priority over the ordinary stock on liquidation for repayment of capital and arrears of dividend, but will have no further right to participate in profits or assets. The concern has recently been formed to carry on the usual business of an investment trust undertaking. Borrowing powers are limited to an amount not exceeding the issued share capital plus reserve fund, but the board may borrow for temporary purposes up to an amount equalling 10 per cent. of issued capital and reserves. Preliminary expenses are estimated at £19,100. The issue was not underwritten. The concern has a powerful board, including the Hon. J. M. Balfour, of Messrs. Guinness, Mahon and Co.; the Hon. A. O. Crichton, manager of the Foreign and Colonial Investment; and Mr. Gordon Leith, partner of Kuhn, Loeb and Co. The time appears to be opportune for the flotation of soundly-controlled investment trust undertakings of this nature. The shares constitute a good lock-up holding for those who like to have their funds invested under expert and experienced management, and their risks well spread. The subscription list will close on or before February 1. Applicants should use the form attached to the prospectus on page 3.

The Canadian athletes for the Olympic Games in Switzerland arrived at Plymouth yesterday from Halifax and proceeded to Antwerp in the liner Arabic. In the hockey team there are thirteen players, while the skaters include three champion men skaters and three women champion skaters of Canada. Mr. P. J. Mulqueen is president and Mr. W. H. Hewitt manager of the athletes.

"THE DANCE OF DEATH."

SWEDISH MINISTER'S PROTEST.

ACTOR-MANAGER'S REPLY.

Lieutenant-Colonel Robert Loraine, the actor-manager, who has been in controversy with the Swedish Minister, Baron Palmstierna, over the production of August Strindberg's "The Dance of Death," made some lively comments to a Press Association representative yesterday on the attitude the Baron had adopted.

"He has accused me of distorting Strindberg in my production of "The Dance of Death" at the Apollo Theatre," said Colonel Robert Loraine; "but I think the most charitable view to take is that the Baron does not quite understand the words he uses. I have followed Edwin Bjorkman's literal translation, making such alterations as I thought advisable, to render it understandable and clear to an English audience, and I consider my experience in such matters qualifies me to do this much better than Baron Palmstierna.

"You see, he suggested that we should collaborate in the translation of "The Dance of Death," after he had seen "The Father" in which I played last year, and which he admired. We did commence work together, but I found that I could do it better myself. I submitted the script of the play that I was going to produce, and told the Baron that I should be glad to associate his name with the production, but in reply I received a letter, which commenced as follows:—

"OUT FOR TROUBLE."

"I have got your script, and I have found that the text is distorted to such an extent that Strindberg cannot be recognised. I have never in all my life seen an author's work treated like that, and I fear you are out for great trouble."

"Well, I replied to the Baron by telling him that his grasp of the English language was not sufficient to enable him to judge a translation; but afterwards I wrote and told him that I sympathised with his wish that Strindberg's plays should be presented in English without mutilation, and proceeded to justify what alterations I had made.

"He also said in his first letter that if Shakespeare were to be treated like this in Sweden, Englishmen would with much right complain; but Shakespeare is invariably cut in representation—so much so that it is an enormous event when anyone produces the whole of 'Hamlet'; and for an Englishman in Stockholm who did not approve of one of Shakespeare's translations to write to the British Government with a view to having the Swedish actor's production stopped would be a parallel case.

LEGATION'S TELEGRAM.

"Major Clere, acting on behalf of the executors of Strindberg, received a telegram from Advocat Lidfors at Stockholm as follows:—'Swedish Legation, London, informs that Loraine will give public representation Strindberg "Dance of Death"' in distorted form. Have you agreed hereto, or can I telegraph him official protest? Very deplorable, if Legation suspicions well grounded. Please cable.'

"I have not had the advantage of reading Strindberg in the original, but I consider that I understand Strindberg much better than Baron Palmstierna. My work in 'The Dance of Death' has been spoken of as the best that I have done, and people have said that I have a peculiar aptitude for elucidating Strindberg's meaning. But the best answer of all is the enormous audiences which are constantly coming and expressing their approval eight times a week.

MISS LIND-AF-HAGEBY'S LECTURE.

Miss L. Lind-af-Hageby, whose biography of Strindberg was published in 1913, and who will lecture on Strindberg at the Apollo Theatre, London, this afternoon, said to a Press representative last night:—

"I am glad that an actor has been found who can interpret the spirit and atmosphere of Strindberg. I admit that Mr. Loraine's adaptation of 'The Dance of Death' is not quite literal, but the general and artistic effects are most admirable."

The following statement was made yesterday by Mr. Eskil Sundstrom, Press Secretary to the Swedish Legation and Secretary of the Anglo-Swedish Literary Foundation:—

"Baron Palmstierna will not attend the lecture at the Apollo Theatre to-morrow afternoon. Mr. Loraine, on his own initiative, submitted a version of 'The Dance of Death' to the Minister, who is a trustee of the Anglo-Swedish Literary Foundation, asking him to express his opinion upon it. Mr. Loraine was told that the version, owing to the fact that considerable parts had been omitted, new lines added and other lines freely altered, did not truly represent Strindberg's play, and could, therefore, not properly be used.

"When Mr. Loraine insisted upon producing his version, the Swedish owners of the rights of the play were informed by the Press Secretary of the Legation in the ordinary course of duty of this fact, in order to enable them to take such action as they might think right in the circumstances."

When shown this statement, Colonel Loraine said: "It is incorrect that I asked him to collaborate. It was on his invitation that we started the collaboration. I am very sorry he will not be at the lecture to-morrow."

NAVAL CONFERENCE FAILURE.

LIBERTY OF ACTION ON BOTH SIDES.

A correspondent who was lately in America describes, in a special article in The Times his impression of the effect of the failure of the Geneva Naval Conference on Anglo-American relations.

Commenting editorially upon this, The Times observes:—He takes a serious, but by no means a pessimistic, view. Like him, we have ourselves urged from the first that, the Geneva Conference having failed, the only sensible course was to recognise a complete liberty of action for both sides within the still relevant provisions of the Washington agreement. That is to say, since the attempt to supplement the Washington agreement by an agreement for limitation of the construction of cruisers and other craft did not prove successful, nothing is to be gained either by recrimination or by any futile harking back. For the present, until some new opportunity naturally arises in the progress of events for a fresh consultation on naval issues, each nation—Great Britain and the United States—must go its own way and determine its own naval policy in accordance with its own conception of the needs of national defence, without any too close consideration of what the other is doing.

Nothing can usefully be said from this side, either in approval or in criticism, of a determination greatly to increase the strength of the American Navy. Naturally, the motive is not quite understood in this country, and that because it is impossible for British people exactly to appreciate all the factors involved, whether political and economic interests, financial capacity, or national feeling, but just as we, with due regard to existing treaties, feel ourselves wholly at liberty to frame and carry out all reasonable technical plans for the defence of the British Empire, so we could not dream of resenting the fact that the United States has exactly the same liberty in determining her own naval requirements. A frank and mutual recognition of complete freedom in this respect is the first step towards a clearer understanding.

STEAMER SUNK AT LANDING STAGE.

DAMAGE ESTIMATED AT £15,000.

The 223 tons coasting steamer Jenie, which sank and went under the south end of the Woodside passenger ferry landing stage, Birkenhead, on Thursday, was pulled clear on Saturday at high water. Salvage work had been going on since the steamer sank.

It is estimated that the damage done to the stage is between £15,000 and £20,000. The girders have been fractured, while it has been found necessary to fix strengthening plates on several cracks. Four pontoons at the south end are full of water, and several of the iron pillars which support the roof are cracked at their bases.

NAMING CANBERRA'S STREETS.

TRIBUTES TO FAMOUS MEN.

SYDNEY.

The Canberra National Memorials Committee has adopted for the nomenclature of the divisional areas, parks, avenues and streets of Canberra a scheme by which every name used commemorates a name famous in the annals of Australian exploration, navigation, pioneering, colonisation, administration, politics, science and letters.

It was felt by the Committee that patriotic and national sentiment would be met best if the names of those men who have contributed most to Australia's existence as a unified nation were used in the most important places: that is, for the names of divisions or suburbs of Canberra.

The names of those statesmen who were directly associated with, and who are mainly responsible for, the establishment of the federation of the Commonwealth are as follows:—

Barton, Kingston,
Braddon, Lyne,
Deakin, O'Connor,
Dickson, Parkes,
Forrest, Reid,
Fysh, Symon,
Griffith, Turner.

A suffix has been added, similar to some of the Anglo-Saxon names of towns in Great Britain, where the name is thought not to be very euphonious.

In connection with the naming of the divisions of Canberra, it was decided also to retain official those names connected with Canberra's early days, and which have become associated with the place since the days of the pioneers. These names are:—

Acton, Mugga,
Ainslie, Narrabundah,
Duntroon, Yarralumla.

The second task which was set down for the Committee to deal with was a nomenclature of the public places and thoroughfares of the city.

CAPITOL HILL.

In the centre of the city is an eminence dominating the surrounding landscape, which is known as "Capitol Hill." This is the site which has been reserved for the erection, some day, of a monumental building, probably for housing national archives, or perhaps as a temple of honour to great Australians, or to commemorate Australian achievements, and it may mean to the Australian nation what the Pantheon in Paris is to the French nation.

Radiating from Capitol Hill are eight main avenues. Six of these avenues have been named after the capital cities of Australia, and the other two, forming two sides of the triangle of the government area—at the apex of which Parliament House stands—have been named "King's," and "Commonwealth." "Constitution" avenue forms the base of the triangle, on the north side of the river.

At the terminus of each avenue named after a capital city there will be a park called by the name of the first Governor of that State, and the street surrounding the park will be named after the corresponding State.

In the governmental area eleven of the names of the most prominent statesmen connected with the establishment of federation have been used for the streets in the vicinity of Parliament House. The central place in front of Parliament House has been given to the father of the federation—Sir Henry Parkes. The only other name used in the governmental area is Parliament square, which is a link associating Australia's Parliament House with the Houses of Parliament, Westminster, which also faces a Parliament square.

The Committee has adopted the idea of grouping together various classes of names in separate areas. Sections of the city plan have therefore been set apart for governors, explorers, navigators, scientists, foresters, pioneers, founders of the Constitution and euphonious and aboriginal words.

The area partly surrounding Capitol Hill and to the south of it, has been set apart for the names of Governors of the various Australian States. All the Governors who were in office prior to the 1st January, 1870, have been included, and, as far as possible, the Governors of the various States have been arranged in separate groups.

All the past Governors-General have been mentioned in the area to the south-west of Capitol Hill.

YORK PARK.

Within the area set apart for the names of Governors, and immediately south of Parliament House, a park—"York Park"—has been so named to commemorate the visit of His Royal Highness the Duke of York. The street on the eastern boundary of the park has been named Windsor Walk.

One main avenue leading from Captain Cook Crescent to the Jerrabomberra Valley road and Tharwa, has been named "Jerrabomberra avenue."

Eventually there will be blocks of buildings surrounding London Circuit, and the northern blocks will be named after the capital cities of Australia, and the southern blocks after the capital cities of the Dominions. The names approved for the two existing shopping blocks are 'Sydney Buildings" and "Melbourne Buildings."

To the east of City Circuit is the University area. When the University site is laid out the streets are to be named after the greatest Australian authors, poets, scientists, doctors, engineers and educationalists. The streets in the vicinity of the area to be set apart for the National Art Gallery are to be named after artists.

The roads and streets in the vicinity of the war memorial site commemorate Australia's part in the Great War of 1914-18. The Committee considers that these names are representative of the three arms of the service and of the part which the Australians played in the overthrow of the enemies of the Empire during the Great War. To perpetuate the memory of battles in which Australians participated, the following names have been used for streets in this area:—

Beersheba, Lone Pine,
Megiddo, Ypres,
Peronne, Amiens,
Gallipoli, Pozieres,
Flanders, Sydney-Emden,
Romani, Anzac,
Rabaul.

BOTTLE-BRUSH STREET.

In the extreme north-west area on the city plan, places have been provided for the streets to be named after Australian wild flowers and shrubs. These names include:—

Boronia, Flax-Lily,
Banksia, Pepper-Vine,
Bottle-brush, Waratah,
Clyanthus, Wattle.
Tea-Tree.

There is a tradition attached to that clump of red gum trees in the Ainslie division, to the north-east of Pialligo avenue. It is to the effect that the aboriginal inhabitants of Canberra used it as a corrobboree ground. To commemorate this tradition, the arc road to the south-west of the gum trees has been named "Corrobboree Crescent."

Aboriginal words used for streets include:—

Bunda	meaning	Kangeroo.
Ijong	,,	Water.
Lowanna	,,	Beauty.
Ballumbir	,,	Butterfly.
Currong	,,	Silver Wattle.
Elimatta	,,	My home.
Goreen	,,	Wind.
Akuna	,,	Flowing water.
Booroondara	,,	Shady place.

DERRY DOCTOR'S APPOINTMENT

Dr. M. F. Leslie, Derry, has been appointed Canadian Medical Adviser in connection with the new regulations concerning emigration to Canada. His area consists of Londonderry, City and County, the Counties of Tyrone, Fermanagh and a part of County Antrim.

Under the new scheme, Canadian doctors have been appointed by the Ottawa Government for the examination of emigrants before they leave the United Kingdom. Only in the case of Dr. Leslie has the appointment been given to a British medical man. The object of the scheme is to enable emigrants to go to Canada without being subject to medical examination on their arrival.

Dr. H. Brierley, Registrar of Wigan County Court, celebrated his eighty-first birthday on Saturday, and was congratulated in court by Judge Dowdall. Counsel present added their good wishes. Since his eightieth birthday Dr. Brierley has also been appointed Registrar of St. Helens and Widnes, and now has three Courts under his administration.

DUBLIN'S FIRE BRIGADE.

COMMISSIONERS AND DEVELOPMENT.

At a meeting of the Dublin Borough Commissioners last Saturday, Mr. Joseph Connolly, Station Officer at Buckingham street for a number of years was appointed Second Officer of the Fire Brigade at a salary of £200 per annum, rising by annual increments of £10 to £250, and thence by £15 increments to £400, plus current cost of living bonus and emoluments of house, coal, light and uniform.

The Chairman (Mr. Seamus Murphy) having called in Mr. Connolly, said that while the Brigade had attained a high state of efficiency, there still remained room for improvement and development, and he hoped that Mr. Cononlly would do his utmost to preserve the high discipline of the organisation, and make as many improvements and developments as he could.

Mr. Connolly promised to do his utmost to carry out the wishes of the Commissioners.

CHILD WELFARE COMMITTEES.

TROUT FOR THE RESERVOIRS.

Mr. Murphy, in a report, stated that the City Engineer had reported that it would be necessary to stock the reservoirs at Roundwood and Stillorgan with trout to maintain the purity of the water supply, and provision was accordingly made for the purpose in this year's estimates. In response to advertisement, tenders were received from five firms, of which the lowest was that of Messrs. Nissen Joker Bros., Essex Trout Farm, for the supply of 15,000 yearling trout, in size from three to five inches, at £112 10s., with an additional sum of £28 to cover cartage to quays at Dublin and travelling expenses of a man to accompany the consignment and put the trout in the reservoirs.

The Commissioner recommended the acceptance of this tender, and his recommendation was adopted.

WIRELESS SOCIETY OF IRELAND.

The Wireless Society of Ireland, which is represented on the Irish Broadcasting (Advisory) Board, has drawn up an attractive programme for this year. Anyone desiring further information or wishing to make application for membership should apply to the Hon. Secretary, 12 Trinity street, Dublin, C.1

The second task which was set down for the Committee to deal with was a nomenclature of the public places and thoroughfares of the city.

CAPITOL HILL.

In the centre of the city is an eminence dominating the surrounding landscape, which is known as "Capitol Hill." This is the site which has been reserved for the erection, some day, of a monumental building, probably for housing national archives, or perhaps as a temple of honour to great Australians, or to commemorate Australian achievements, and it may mean to the Australian nation what the Pantheon in Paris is to the French nation.

Radiating from Capitol Hill are eight main avenues. Six of these avenues have been named after the capital cities of Australia, and the other two, forming two sides of the triangle of the government area—at the apex of which Parliament House stands—have been named "King's," and "Commonwealth." "Constitution" avenue forms the base of the triangle, on the north side of the river.

At the terminus of each avenue named after a capital city there will be a park called by the name of the first Governor of that State, and the street surrounding the park will be named after the corresponding State.

In the governmental area eleven of the names of the most prominent statesmen connected with the establishment of federation have been used for the streets in the vicinity of Parliament House. The central place in front of Parliament House has been given to the father of the federation—Sir Henry Parkes. The only other name used in the governmental area is Parliament square, which is a link associating Australia's Parliament House with the Houses of Parliament, Westminster, which also faces a Parliament square.

The Committee has adopted the idea of grouping together various classes of names in separate areas. Sections of the city plan have therefore been set apart for governors, explorers, navigators, scientists, foresters, pioneers, founders of the Constitution and euphonious and aboriginal words.

The area partly surrounding Capitol Hill and to the south of it, has been set apart for the names of Governors of the various Australian States. All the Governors who were in office prior to the 1st January, 1870, have been included, and, as far as possible, the Governors of the various States have been arranged in separate groups.

YORK PARK.

Within the area set apart for the names of Governors, and immediately south of Parliament House, a park—"York Park"—has been so named to commemorate the visit of His Royal Highness the Duke of York. The street on the eastern boundary of the park has been named Windsor Walk.

One main avenue leading from Captain Cook Crescent to the Jerrabomberra Valley road and Tharwa, has been named "Jerrabomberra avenue."

Eventually there will be blocks of buildings surrounding London Circuit, and the northern blocks will be named after the capital cities of Australia, and the southern blocks after the capital cities of the Dominions. The names approved for the two existing shopping blocks are 'Sydney Buildings" and "Melbourne Buildings."

To the east of City Circuit is the University area. When the University site is laid out the streets are to be named after the greatest Australian authors, poets, scientists, doctors, engineers and educationalists. The streets in the vicinity of the area to be set apart for the National Art Gallery are to be named after artists.

The roads and streets in the vicinity of the war memorial site commemorate Australia's part in the Great War of 1914-18. The Committee considers that these names are representative of the three arms of the service and of the part which the Australians played in the overthrow of the enemies of the Empire during the Great War. To perpetuate the memory of battles in which Australians participated, the following names have been used for streets in this area:—

Megiddo,	Ypres,
Peronne,	Amiens,
Gallipoli,	Pozieres,
Flanders,	Sydney-Emden,
Romani,	Anzac.
Rabaul.

BOTTLE-BRUSH STREET.

In the extreme north-west area on the city plan, places have been provided for the streets to be named after Australian wild flowers and shrubs. These names include:—

Boronia,	Flax-Lily,
Clyanthus,	Wattle.
Tea Tree.

There is a tradition attached to that clump of red gum trees in the Ainslie division, to the north-east of Pialligo avenue. It is to the effect that the aboriginal inhabitants of Canberra used it as a corrobboree ground. To commemorate this tradition, the arc road to the south-west of the gum trees has been named "Corrobboree Crescent."

Aboriginal words used for streets include:—

Bunda	meaning	Kangeroo.
Ijong	,,	Water.
Lowanna	,,	Beauty.
Ballumbir	,,	Butterfly.
Currong	,,	Silver Wattle.
Elimatta	,,	My home.
Goreen	,,	Wind.
Akuna	,,	Flowing water.
Booroondara	,,	Shady place.

Dr. M. F. Leslie, Derry, has been appointed Canadian Medical Adviser in connection with the new regulations concerning emigration to Canada. His area consists of Londonderry, City and County, the Counties of Tyrone, Fermanagh and a part of County Antrim.

Under the new scheme, Canadian doctors have been appointed by the Ottawa Government for the examination of emigrants before they leave the United Kingdom. Only in the case of Dr. Leslie has the appointment been given to a British medical man. The object of the scheme is to enable emigrants to go to Canada without being subject to medical examination on their arrival.

Dr. H. Brierley, Registrar of Wigan County Court, celebrated his eighty-first birthday on Saturday, and was congratulated in court by Judge Dowdall. Counsel present added their good wishes. Since his eightieth birthday Dr. Brierley has also been appointed Registrar of St. Helens and Widnes, and now has three Courts under his administration.

DUBLIN'S FIRE BRIGADE.

At a meeting of the Dublin Borough Commissioners last Saturday, Mr. Joseph Connolly, Station Officer at Buckingham street for a number of years was appointed Second Officer of the Fire Brigade at a salary of £200 per annum, rising by annual increments of £10 to £250, and thence by £15 increments to £400, plus current cost of living bonus and emoluments of house, coal, light and uniform.

The Chairman (Mr. Seamus Murphy) having called in Mr. Connolly, said that while the Brigade had attained a high state of efficiency, there still remained room for improvement and development, and he hoped that Mr. Cononlly would do his utmost to preserve the high discipline of the organisation, and make as many improvements and developments as he could.

Mr. Connolly promised to do his utmost to carry out the wishes of the Commissioners.

CHILD WELFARE COMMITTEES.

TROUT FOR THE RESERVOIRS.

Mr. Murphy, in a report, stated that the City Engineer had reported that it would be necessary to stock the reservoirs at Roundwood and Stillorgan with trout to maintain the purity of the water supply, and provision was accordingly made for the purpose in this year's estimates. In response to advertisement, tenders were received from five firms, of which the lowest was that of Messrs. Nissen Joker Bros., Essex Trout Farm, for the supply of 15,000 yearling trout, in size from three to five inches, at £112 10s., with an additional sum of £28 to cover cartage to quays at Dublin and travelling expenses of a man to accompany the consignment and put the trout in the reservoirs.

WIRELESS SOCIETY OF IRELAND.

The Wireless Society of Ireland, which is represented on the Irish Broadcasting (Advisory) Board, has drawn up an attractive programme for this year. Anyone desiring further information or wishing to make application for membership should apply to the Hon. Secretary, 13 Trinity street, Dublin, C.1

RACING PROSPECTS.

Grand National Possibilities: The American Challenge: Mascot and the Lincolnshire: Good Performance of Beggar's End.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Sunday Night.

Never in my recollection has there been such a remarkable acceptance for both the Lincolnshire Handicap and the Grand National. Only one horse—Voice Box—went out of the former on Tuesday last, and 96 horses remain in the National. The figure is almost paralysing, and suggests that this year there may be a field of something like fifty at Liverpool. There has been next to no speculation on either event so far, and there may not be much until the dates of the races. Ante-post betting seems as dead as a doornail in this country. In a few lists I have seen Orbindos is favourite for the Lincolnshire, 8 to 1 being about the best offer to be had about him.

For the Grand National the American horse, Billy Barton, who made such a good impression at Newbury last week, is as good a favourite as anything, and 100 to 8 seems to be about the best offer procurable. He is likely to start at this price on the day of the race, especially if, as is stated, the American amateur, Mr. Albert Ober, rides him. Mr. Ober has the reputation in his own country of being an excellent horseman, but his lack of experience at Aintree must prejudice the chance of the horse in the eyes of many people.

The French 'chaser, The Coyote, is due to arrive in England in the course of a few days, and he has been entered in a handicap to be run at Lingfield on March 10th next. This is likely to be his first appearance in England. The six-year-old mare, Maguelonue, is also due to arrive in England shortly. A friend who saw her run at Nice last Sunday thinks she is a good mare, and gave the impression of being a genuine stayer. The Ace, who finished fourth to The Coyote in the Grand Steeplechase in Paris last June, has been entered for the same race at Lingfield. The Coyote and Billy Barton have also been put in it.

POSTPONEMENT AT NOTTINGHAM.

The doubt whether there will be any racing at Nottingham this week—to-morrow's programme has been postponed until Tuesday and the second day's card abandoned—is disappointing, as Grakle was due to run, and missed a Newbury engagement last week for an event to-morrow. I have the most encouraging accounts of this horse, and it is possible that he may start favourite for the Grand National.

I had thought that White Park might be a general first choice, but I believe that at the moment he is not the horse he was last year, and one should not be optimistic at the moment about his Liverpool chance. Koko is another about whom the reports are not too encouraging. He has not been giving entire satisfaction in his work lately.

I hear excellent accounts of Great Span, who has a number of engagements in the near future, one or other of which he is sure to meet. It seems to be doubtful at the moment whether Jack Horner will stand winding up, and judgment should be suspended with regard to him. His trainer, Jack Leader, who has been so seriously ill, is, I believe, much better and hopes to be about again soon.

MASCOT NOT FOR LINCOLN.

There is no news concerning the Lincolnshire except that, I understand, the Irish horse, Mascot, who was running in France last season, will not be started, as his connections think the weight he has been given, 8st. 8lb., too much. Mr. J. B. Joel has left in both Priory Park and Philamon, and it is said both will run. Mr. S. B. Joel has also left in Fohanaun and Dark Warrior, and the Shrewton stable is content with the weights allotted to both Vanoc and Lone Knight.

Donoghue, who always rides the horses from this stable, is in the South of France, and intends to remain there until a very short time before the flat racing season opens in England. This does not suggest that either Vanoc or Lone Knight will be wanted at Lincoln.

The weather was very bad for the second day of the Kempton meeting yesterday, and it does not seem as if we can ever have two consecutive fine days in this country at the moment. The attendance was a small one, and the three steeplechases only produced between them nineteen runners, which is a wretched average for such a meeting as Kempton used to be. Mr. R. G. Shaw, who never loses an opportunity of a ride in public, and who is an excellent jockey nowadays in the hurdle races which he affects, rode his own horse, Dowser, in the Selling Hurdle Race, but, useful plater as the old horse is, he found one too good for him in Mah Jongg, and, despite his resolute challenge, he was beaten by three lengths. Dowser is a most consistent animal, and finished in the first three in no fewer than fourteen races last year.

CULLINAN'S CLEVER RIDING.

Mr. Withington did not start Don Sancho for the Staines Steeplechase, relying instead on K.C.B., a nice sort of six-year-old by The White Knight. He was not so good a favourite as Sans Blague, but he beat him cleverly by a length and a half, T. B. Cullinan riding an excellent race on the winner. All the way up the straight he was carrying too many guns for Sans Blague. K.C.B., who belongs to Mr. Vivian Hugh Smith, a comparatively new but very enthusiastic patron of 'chasing, only ran once last year.

Duller rode an excellent race on Clochette, who won the Selling Hurdle Race cleverly by three parts of a length from Fairielike Fur. The winner was bought after the race by Mr. Michael Corrigan, a most persistent bidder for selling plate winners in these days.

A NATIONAL CANDIDATE WINS.

The best performance of the afternoon was that put up by Lord Queenborough's Beggar's End in winning the Cranford Handicap by three lengths from The Sheriff. He closed with the second coming to the last fence, and drew right away on the flat to win very easily, indeed. Considering the outstanding chance he had in this small field, his returned price, 11 to 10 against, was a good one. Beggar's End has had an engagement made for him in the Grand National, but it is doubtful whether he gets the distance. His stable companion, Spear o' War, is also engaged in the National, in which he is considered to have a chance.

The Sonning horse Temple won the Novices' 'Chase for Major Dixon. It was his first appearance over a country in England, and he started second favourite. T. Leader, however, had to ride him right out, and it was only after a long drawn out struggle that he got up to beat Elm's Star by a neck. Elm's Star, who is owned by Mr. Charles Schwartz, who won the Grand National with Jack Horner, used to be a very bad jumper, but he has improved a good deal, and should win a nice steeplechase in the early future.

A shade of odds was laid on Sir Charles Hartopp's He Will in the Brentford Handicap Hurdle, and though he was headed in the straight by Paradeisos, he regained the lead on the flat, and won by a length and a half, without having very much in hand.

CURRAGH TRAINING NOTES.

THE CURRAGH, Saturday.

BEHAN'S Argolis, Monea, Arrabiyeh covered six furlongs at a steady pace; the two-year-olds cantered three furlongs.

DOYLE'S Minnetonka, Shannon Scheme, Maid of Athlone and Denis Orb went a mile and a quarter at a nice pace over hurdles.

FETHERSTONHAUGH'S Another Fox went two miles at a useful pace over fences, and others of the team were usefully employed.

GRUNDY'S Hanoverian, Wardley Dell, The Lad, Wave Top and the two-year-olds cantered.

HUNTER'S Nell Gwynne and Kirkleston went six furlongs steadily.

HARTIGAN'S Annanias, Doctor Dan and Connemara were usefully employed, and the remainder of the steam exercised on the roads.

NEWMAN DEFEATS DAVIS.

Newman succeeded in his attempt to concede Davis 2,000 in 16,000 in their game at Manchester ending on Saturday in a win for the champion by 288 points. In the afternoon Newman had runs of 216, 102 and 526 (unfinished), and Davis 197 Interval scores:—Newman (in play), 15,335; Davis (rec. 2,000), 14,789. The champion converted his unfinished break to 737 at the resumption, and he followed with 235 and 101. Davis's best was 295. Result:—Newman, 16,000; Davis (rec. 2,000), 15,112.

SMITH EASILY DEFEATS REECE.

Although he had a liberal start of 4,000 points, Reece was well beaten by Smith in their 10,000 match at Bradford, the margin at the finish being 1,819. Smith disappointed early in the Saturday afternoon session. He had an unfinished 500 break to continue, but added only 24 points to this. Subsequently, however, he went further ahead with breaks of 172, 184 and 230. Reece's only break of three figures was 168. Interval scores:—Smith (in play), 9,167; Reece (rec. 4,000), 7,615. Reece did better in the final session, when he had a break of 311, and, in addition, he made 118. Smith's breaks were 515, 139 and 152. Result:—Smith, 10,000; Reece (rec. 4,000), 8,181.

AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

R. A. Coombe (Plymouth) qualified on Saturday for the semi-final round of the Amateur Championship by defeating P. G. Eastwood (Leeds) by 185 points at Thurston's, London. Coombe placed himself in a favourable position in the afternoon, when he made breaks of 70, 56, 71, 63, 73 and 102 (unfinished), as against Eastwood's 31, 49, 46 and 43. Interval scores—Coombe (in play), 1,501; Eastwood, 1,166. There was keen play at night, and at one period Eastwood drew to within 22 points of his opponent. The chief breaks of the session were 136, 40, 69, 97 and 52 by Coombe, and 41, 43, 35, 69, 43 and 45 by Eastwood. Result:—Coombe, 2,000; Eastwood, 1,815.

LAWN TENNIS.

METROPOLE TOURNAMENT.

CANNES, January 28.

In the quarter-finals of the Metropole Lawn Tennis Tournament, Miss Betty Nuthall and Miss Eileen Bennett beat the Misses Radcliffe-Platt 6-3 10-8. Miss Nuthall, partnered by C. F. Aeschlimann, also entered the semi-final of the Mixed Doubles, the pair defeating in the quarter-final Mlle. Contostavlos and Count Salm 7-5, 6-1. Miss Nuthall has not yet touched her best form, and she is not yet using her newly-acquired overhand service. In the Women's Open Singles the semi-final results were:—Miss E. Ryan beat Mlle. Valerio—6-3, 6-3; and Mrs. Satterthwaite beat Miss Harvey—6-2, 0-6, 6-0.

THE DAVIS CUP ENTRIES.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN TELEGRAM.)

Last minute entries have been received for the Davis Cup contest from Canada and Cuba, in the American zone, and Rumania and Sweden, in the European zone, thus bringing the entries for the European zone up to twenty-five and those in the American zone up to six, making a grand total of thirty-one in all, as compared with twenty-five last year. All the nations which took part last year have now sent in their entries, with the exception of India.

Manchester "National" Test.

Mr. M. E. Hancock, Clerk of the Course at Manchester, states that he is including in the programme for the Manchester March meeting a four miles handicap steeplechase, which should serve as a real "Grand National" test. The race will be run on the second day of the meeting, Thursday, March 1, and is due to close on February 14. This race will take the place of the Borough Handicap Steeplechase, over three miles. It is interesting to note also that there is a four miles steeplechase, the Stewards' Handicap Steeplechase, at Gatwick next Wednesday, for which fifteen "National" entries have accepted.

HUNTING.

THE KILDARE HOUNDS.

As in most other parts of Ireland, high winds and sleet showers made themselves felt on Tuesday last, when the meet was at Castle Martin and a large field welcomed by Colonel and Mrs. Blacker. On such a day, where foxes will be found is a difficult problem, and while there were none in Castle Martin there were two brace at Silliott Hill. The gale seemed at its highest when the first one broke, and hounds had just been got on the line when another fox "joined in the fun." He was fairly "coursed" over the Dublin road and Mr. Pat Burney's farm, through Dunstown Wood, where numerous hares added to the difficulties, and all trace eventually fizzled out.

The next draws were Herbertstown (where there is little covert yet) and Coolmoonan (almost under water), which did not respond, though it was rumoured that a fox had been seen leaving the latter. The elements continued so bad no more was essayed.

Kildangan on Thursday, 26th, brought better luck, and the usual welcome from Mr. and Mrs. Dominick More O'Ferrall. A first find from Doneany Wood matured into a nice hunt, very fast, over a rideable country for about a mile to some earths, which our quarry found well stopped, and came back to the starting point on a left-handed hoop. A storm now did harm, and the pace was much reduced to Ballyvarney Wood, and on nearly to Nurney Village before all trace faded away. A very good gallop with a fine old fox found in a snug outlying patch near Ballyvarney Wood finished the day. At top speed the line hunted was by the edge of King's Bog, nearly into Kildare, and then right-handed, with the National Stud at Tully just on the left, to ground near Sheshoon. The point was four miles, and our objective seemed to have selected the best of the country, from a rider's point of view, which made it capital fun.

Saturday last, at Painstown Cross-roads, attracted a big field, but it turned out a day of disappointments. As we approached Loughtown Wood a fox was seen coming in, but it took a very long time to make him leave it. Eventually he was dusted across the road into the garden at Mount Armstrong House, where he got up the chimney of the greenhouse, and all attempts to evict him failed. Collier's did not hold, but there was a leash in Craiguesallagh. The first of these to break was hunted back into Rathcoffey, where he got into a covert. A second trial of Craiguesallagh was more successful, as a fox went away on the Lady Chapel side, and was hunted nicely, though slowly, down wind nearly to Brook Lodge, where he got in. This practically finished the day, as it was too late to go to Straffan, as intended.

BALLYMACAD HOUNDS.

By invitation of the Meath Hunt, Captain Naper kindly brought the Ballymacad Hounds to Patrickstown Cross-roads on Saturday last. Drumlary was blank, but the beautiful day, which afforded remarkable views over the country, partly compensated for that disappointment. In the Larmond Hills were found two foxes, and hunted one over the top towards Patrickstown; but he turned down over the road, passing The Willows and pointing for Loughcrew. Here he apparently changed his mind, and swung left, going to ground beyond The Willows—a fast fifteen minutes.

Bellevue and Clonebreny did not hold, probably owing to the previous stormy night. From the lower covert of Boltown a fox was well viewed running into the wood on the hill. He was soon out on the far side and gave us a fast thirty-five minutes, hounds streaming down the hillside and running straight back to Clonebreny, and out on the other side. Unfortunately, the fox went to ground, as the hounds were very nearly on top of him. This ended a most enjoyable day, with good sport.

CROSS-COUNTRY.

THE CLONLIFFE OPEN HANDICAP

The Ten Miles' Open Handicap of the Clonliffe Harriers for the Flynn Trophy was decided last Saturday over the club course at Finglas. Despite the unfavourable morning, the high-lying course was in very good condition, and the test proved an easier one than did the inaugural race at Clonskeagh a year ago.

The event was a scratch race, with a sealed handicap, the trophy going to the winner of the former. None of the provincial runners who were invited to take part was able to accept the invitation. The length of the race, four miles longer than the usual cross-country distance in Ireland, made it a useful trial for the forthcoming international contest. Nevertheless, with Nally, of the Dublin City Harriers (the holder); Douglas Coard (Donore); and George Magan (Dublin Metropolitan Guards) figuring on the scratch mark in the sealed handicap, there was material for a good race, apart from the possibilities provided by 26 other starters.

The scratch race resolved itself into a contest between the trio named, and from half distance it was a match between the holder and Coard, Magan having retired at five miles, after making a good deal of the running. The issue remained in doubt until the pair entered the last quarter of a mile. Coard then came away, and, finishing much the faster, won by three seconds.

The proportion of finishers was not large, and indicates the necessity of our cross-country men giving more attention to ten mile events if we are to have a chance in international races. Only 17 of the 29 went the full distance.

CROKER CUP RACE.

The Eight Miles' Club Handicap for the Croker Cup, a trophy presented by the late Mr. R. Croker to the D.M.P. Sports, for a team race, and won by the City and Suburban Harriers, was held yesterday at Tudor Park, Clontarf. The handicap was framed for P. Hennessy, but the scratchman was not sufficiently recovered from the effects of his race in the Flynn Cup the previous day, and did not compete. Nineteen took part, and the race was won by J. White, with L. Hammond second, and T. O'Connor third. The winner's actual time was 49 minutes.

ATHLETIC FIXTURES.

The following fixtures have been sanctioned by the Leinster Council of the N.A. and C.A.:—

April 9—Co. Dublin Novices' Sports. Phoenix Park Ground.
May 12—Dublin Inter-Schools' Contests.
„ 19—University College Sports. Terenure.
„ 26—Dublin Novices' Championships.
June 9—Dublin County Championships.
„ 13—Dublin University College Races.
„ 23—Dublin University Inter-Club Contests.

The annual Provincial Convention has been fixed for February 26th, at Wynne's Hotel (12.30). Nominations and motions will be received up to February 17th. Representation will be on the basis of two delegates for eight affiliated clubs (or fraction of eight) in a county with out-going Council, and officers as ex-officio members of the Convention.

IRELAND'S FIRST WIN.

FLUCTUATING MATCH AT BELFAST.

FRANCE LEAD AT HALF-TIME.

SECOND-HALF RALLY BY IRELAND.

BY OUR SPECIAL RUGBY CORRESPONDENT.

Ireland's defeat of France at Ravenhill ground, Belfast, on last Saturday by 4 tries to 1 goal and 1 try—or 12 points to 8—might easily have been of a more decisive character as regards the number of points. Having slightly the better of the play in the opening half, Ireland crossed over with a deficiency of two points, and then proceeded to wage another ruthless and continuous onslaught to France's line. Except on two occasions in the second half, France never crossed the twenty-five yards line into Irish territory, and numerous penalty kicks in positions which at other times would suggest easy conversion were awarded to the home country. It so happened that the art of goal kicking seemed for the time being a lost one; for not alone were none of the four Irish tries converted, but the penalty kicks referred to were also futile. Strangely enough, though the game had gone so much in favour of Ireland, it was as near as possible to being lost to her on the very stroke of time. This incident was an exciting, and, for the Irish team's supporters, a nerve wracking experience. Play had been in Irish territory, when, through a slip by Arigho, Jardel, the French left wing three-quarter, broke clear away, and when approaching Stewart kicked over the latter's head straight towards the goal posts. It was then that Stewart capped a really good all-round exhibition of full-back play. Quickly sizing up the situation he kicked over the dead ball line and prevented the try being scored, which, with conversion, would have meant a one point victory for France.

HOW THE FORWARDS PLAYED.

The game in many respects reminded us of most previous matches between Ireland and France, though I thought the standard of football a lot better than what we saw at Colombes last year, and on the Ravenhill ground two years ago. The Irish forwards succeeded in getting the ball more frequently now; they also brought off many of the characteristic loose rushes, and, while admitting that improvement will be needed if the English forwards are to be held, their display was by no means discouraging. Very little would turn the pack into a really good one. Playing without any recognised hooker and without much care being expended on scrimmage formation, they were all along the masters of the Frenchmen in the tight. They did not always let the ball out neatly or quick enough to let Sugden give our backs the few seconds advantage which makes all the difference. It was well, however, to have come out of the scrummaging business so well when we remember how last season our forwards showed improvement in this respect every time they played.

THE BEST FORWARDS.

I thought Payne, Beamish and Hanrahan played as well as ever they did. J. D. Clinch was the usual useful man on the side line though had he given more of his weight to the scrummage as he did in the Leinster v. Ulster match, it would have been for the betterment of things generally. In the loose he was grand, and his footwork, which led up to the second Irish try, would probably not have been carried out by any of the other forwards. James Farrell was leader for the first time, and if not catching the eye oftener, was one of the soundest of the eight. Bramwell and Pike I thought disappointing, and writing before the new team has been selected, expect that both will be dropped for the next game. As stated, there was much to be satisfied with in the play of the forwards, and the inclusion amongst them of a couple of young men whose enthusiasm for the game has not yet sapped, would probably make a good pack. C. Carroll, of Bective, and R. B. Pike, of Trinity, are the men I have in mind. W. F. Browne, if one could depend upon his being fit and in anything like last season's form, would, of course, be an obvious selection.

FRENCH BACKS DISAPPOINTING.

The fact that France had to call upon so many substitutes takes away somewhat from the merit of Ireland's win, but when one considers what a wide selection they have over there, it may well be that this team was little below the strength of the sides Scotland and New South Wales defeated. The French backs certainly seemed to me a disappointing lot, except in the matter of defence. Their close covering and tackling was splendid and held up Irish back movements with regularity. When one considers how stout and stubborn was their defence, there was distinct merit in the first try Ganly scored and the second one Arigho got. The other two tries, though secured by our wing men, were the outcome of individual forward moves, Clinch being responsible for one and Payne for the other. There was one, and only one, good passing move by the French, whose other attempts were somewhat of the stereotyped and obvious character. But it was H Behoteguy who turned this movement from the course the others had taken. There had been some sharp passing in a move across to the left which looked like meeting with the same fate as the others when Behoteguy suddenly straightening up on his left leg cut straight back to the goal and scored a splendid try amidst hearty applause, the appreciation of which the French players acknowledged by saluting the crowd. This was a happy incident in a game in which there were more hard knocks than courtesies.

KEEN FRENCH TACKLING.

Nothing could have been finer than the tackling of the French backs, which time after time frustrated the efforts of Sugden, Davy and Stephenson to cut through. These three used all their unquestioned ability in this respect, but were generally held up. One would be inclined to blame them for attempting so often what had so repeatedly failed, but the little delay occasioned through the ball not coming quickly enough through the scrummage to Sugden left them no other option at times. Pellissier, the French back, strangely enough, was not as often called upon as Stewart. He was very sound and not an easy man to round, though both Ganly and Arigho did so. The brothers Behoteguy were the best three-quarters; Lacazedieu, playing out of his usual position at scrum half, filled the rôle fairly well, and Verger was a useful, if not brilliant, out-half. The best forwards were the winger, Bonamy, Camel, Ribère and Gallia.

ARIGHO SCORES TWO TRIES.

It was a gratifying feature of the game to see G. V. Stephenson come back if only a little to his former self. Had he not been opposed by such exceptional defence and been partnered by a better centre, his play might easily have been up to his best. Odbert's play was disappointing, and made it obvious that he is not a centre three-quarter, however well he acquits himself at out-half. Ganly was the best three-quarter on the ground, never failing to do the right thing, and in scoring the first try showed pace few of us gave him credit for. Arigho well justified his selection. Apart from scoring two tries—a rather unique distinction in one's first international game—he showed some good defence also. In scoring his second try he had to get away from Jardel and Pellissier, two men of fine physique, and in tearing away from them to reach the line there was the suggestion of a hare eluding two greyhounds. Sugden and Davy played as well as ever, both individually and as a combination; but their efforts were not thrown into the limelight, for the reason that the close marking of the French centres in the case of Davy and the slow heeling of the Irish forwards and the attentions of Bonamy in the case of Sugden frustrated their efforts. Sugden showed ingenuity in forcing the French forwards to get offside at times when he was himself tied up, and in many other ways was really clever. A. W. Stewart made no slip, except when Ribere scored, and to most of us it looked as if he then got the ball to touch. He fielded and kicked well; he had not much tackling to do, and what pleased most about his play was his quick decision as to what he would do. He certainly justified his selection for this game.

LESSONS FROM THE MATCH.

The lessons from the match are threefold. Firstly, the forwards require strengthening with some new blood; in the three-quarter line a change is required, and the obvious one is the inclusion again of J. B. H. W. Stephenson and the moving of J. B. Ganly into Odbert's place in the centre. The third and most important lesson we learned is that something will have to be done to improve the place-kicking of the team. It seemed wrong of G. V. Stephenson, when, having barely missed two very difficult kicks, he passed the succeeding penalty and other place kicks on to Davy, Ganly and Pike in turn. As matters turned out, his own efforts were much the best, and, had he persevered all through, we would probably have had six or eight more points added to the total. It must be remembered that in Richardson England possesses one of the surest place-kicks; a man capable of winning any number of matches by his accuracy in this respect. G. V. Stephenson, with reasonable practice, can be just as good, and probably will be, if the occasion demands it on February 11th.

As regards the referee, there are differences of opinion. I thought he kept well in touch, and, like all referees, missed one or two small infringements. The points as to whether, having whistled for a scrimmage five yards out from the Irish line at the very end, he should have allowed the scrimmage to be formed, does not appear to have any particular rule dealing on it.

THE PLAY.

Ireland had all the better of the opening stages of the game. Sugden initiated an attack by a short run and kick, and Stephenson, following up, gained possession, but was immediately tackled at the French 25. It looked as if Ireland would score before the Frenchmen found their feet, and Sugden and Clinch came within an ace of doing the trick. A touch-down did not bring the visitors any relief, for the Irish forwards were getting the ball from practically every scrum. Davy tried a long pass to Arigho, but it was intercepted, and another promising movement was spoiled by Odbert failing to take a pass from Stephenson.

IRELAND'S FIRST SCORE.

It was left to a French passing movement to provide the opening for Ireland's first score, which came after about seven minutes' play. A lobbed pass to Raymond presented Ganly with a chance of intercepting, which he quickly availed of, and, rounding Pelissier, he scored in a good position, but Stephenson failed to convert. Uninteresting forward play just inside the Irish half of the field followed, and Stewart was called upon on a couple of occasions and shaped confidently. Although the Irish backs still continued to get plenty of the ball, things were not going right with them, and first Ganly and then Stephenson dropped passes, but the latter made amends by kicking ahead and tackling Pelissier in possession.

AN UNEXPECTED TRY FOR IRELAND.

After Ganly had been well tackled on the left, another movement developed towards the opposite wing, and produced a score in a very unexpected manner. A pass was dropped and Clinch, to prevent the visitors breaking through, fly-kicked to touch. He, one French man and Arigho were about the only players who realised that the ball was not going to travel, and Clinch following up hard, booted the ball over the French line, where it stopped, and Arigho raced up and was awarded a try where he picked the ball up. Meanwhile the remainder of both teams seemed to be disinterested in the proceedings. Ganly took the kick but failed. So far there had only been one side in it, but there was a lack of snap about the exchanges, and the Frenchmen were shaping very poorly. Their backs frequently ran across and passed with the Irish backs watching them from a distance of 10 or more yards, and the brilliant piece of work which gave them their first score came as a "bolt from the blue." The opening was provided by Odbert knocking the ball forward into the hands of Bonamy, who made off down the centre of the field at a great pace, supported by a string of forwards and backs. Several transfers were made, and at the finish any one of about four players might have scored, but it was left to H. Behoteguy to cut inwards and ground the ball between the posts, and Verger easily added the extra points.

THE FRENCH TAKE THE LEAD.

Greatly heartened by this score the visiting backs brought off a few clever moves, and they were nearly in again, a forward pass saving the situation for Ireland. But it was only temporary, for in the next minute Ganly and Stewart both failed to pick up or kick to touch, when the French forwards came through in a rush, and Ribère dropped on the ball for a try, which Verger was unable to convert. Ireland set about recovering the lead in determined fashion, and long passes between Davy, Odbert and Ganly saw the last-named running strongly for the line, but he was well tackled by Pelissier. Then Stephenson, by handing-off two or three opponents made ground, and Arigho kicked the ball over the line, but was beaten in a race for the touch. Davy next cut right through to the French full-back, but he spoiled the opening by giving an impossible pass, which Stephenson failed to pick up off the ground, and France retained the lead to the interval.

Soon after the resumption, Davy taking a long pass from Sugden, went off on his own, but after getting some distance was hand-tripped. Play settled near the French 25, and kicking by Pellissier and Verger failed to gain any ground. Davy got a great touch inside the French 25, and from a line-out here the Irish backs got passing, but Stephenson failed to take a pass and let the French forwards through, but Stewart picked up and got a good touch. Davy again tried to cut out an opening, but finished up with a bad pass, and Clinch had to kick to touch. The Irish backs, with numerous opportunities, were generally too well covered to make ground. The tactics of the inside players left a lot to be desired, and their passing and handling were often at fault, and the wing men were, in consequence, seldom called upon.

PAYNE'S FINE DRIBBLE.

However, the pressure was bound to tell, and Ganly, as the result of a very clever dribbling run by Payne, got a try which placed Ireland one point in front, Stephenson failing with the kick. The half-way kick brought France no relief. Clinch broke away with the ball at his feet, and Lacazedieu, to stop him, threw the ball into touch at his own 25. Hereabouts, Ganly, in trying to beat an opponent, received a blow in the mouth which necessitated his temporary retirement, Pike being brought out of the pack to fill his place on the wing. Although in their own quarters the French backs were now getting a good share of the ball from the scrums, but their passing frequently broke down, sometimes as a result of bad handling, and at others on account of being tackled in possession by the quick-breaking Irish forwards, and play remained near their line. Several free kicks were awarded to Ireland in quick succession, but Pike, Stephenson and Ganly all made bad attempts to place goals. Sugden and Davy made several individual attempts to break through in the subsequent play, but all their efforts met with the same fate. At last the three-quarter line was brought into action, but Arigho failed to take Stephenson's pass, and thereby lost a good chance of scoring. Still Ireland camped in French territory, and a fine dribble away from a scrum by Bonamy was about the only occasion on which the visitors reached the half-way line for twenty minutes or more, but useful kicks by Ganly and Clinch soon left play again right on the French line. Here Davy made an effort to drop a goal from a favourable position, but failed badly. A. Behoteguy came into prominence with a clever dodging run, but he held on too long, and was "smothered" with the ball by three Irish forwards, and Ireland returned to the attack.

ARIGHO'S CLEVER TRY

From the best Irish movement of the match, in which Sugden, Davy, Odbert and Stephenson participated, Arigho got over for a great try at the corner. It was a fine effort on the part of the little Lansdowne man, who raced round Jardel, and showed both determination and speed in getting to the line with three or four opponents making desperate efforts to head him off. Stephenson failed with the kick, and Ireland thus held a lead of 4 points with about 5 minutes to go.

AN EXCITING ENDING.

As events proved this lead did not make Ireland's position secure. The Frenchmen still had a "dying kick" in them, and after Stewart had twice sent them back with fine kicks to touch, Jardel got possession, and racing past Arigho, kicked high towards the Irish posts. It was then a question of whether Stewart or two or three of the French forwards would get to it first, but Stewart by a great effort won the race, but he had to kick the ball dead from in play.

The referee ordered a scrum on the line, but before the ball was put in he blew his whistle for full-time. Result:—

FRANCE'S "HONOURABLE DEFEAT."

PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL.
PARIS, Sunday.

Ireland's victory over France in yesterday's Rugby international at Belfast is discussed with keen interest by the Paris newspapers to-day. In the opinion of the Matin, the Irish team had a clear enough victory, but the writer considers that the result would have been quite different had not Jardel's brilliant attacks in the last quarter of an hour been desperately frustrated by the Irish back, Stewart, who, it is suggested, had a certain amount of luck on his side.

"An honourable defeat" is the verdict of the Echo Des Sports, which adds that once again the Irishmen demonstrated their well-known vigorous style, but declares that their game was frequently confused.

The Auto expresses the view that Ireland's win was due to her forwards, and that only the indomitable courage of the French team averted a severer defeat.

WANDERERS CONVINCING.

WEAK MONKSTOWN SIDE BEATEN.

As was natural with the counter-attraction of the International match on at Belfast, neither Monkstown nor Wanderers were at anything like full strength at Sydney Parade on Saturday, and of the teams that turned out Wanderers were easily the superior, winning on the decisive score of 3 goals and 2 tries (21 points) to nil.

To a certain degree in the loose scrummaging, Monkstown held their own, but in the close mauls they were mostly beaten for possession, so that it was but rarely that their backs, whatever their abilities, had any chance of combined movements. Wanderers, on the other hand, dominating the scrums, had plenty of chances for their backs, especially in the second half, when play was seldom far outside the home 25; and that they did not score oftener was due to a weakness in finish against a stubborn defence.

Harris, the scrum half, played a smart and enterprising game for the winners, and his partner, Vaughan, was very successful with his place-kicking. Shee and Keegan were the pick of the three-quarters. Morton, at full-back, fielded and kicked well, and Bam, Reilly and Ellis were noticeable in a hard-working pack. Pickeman, at the base of the Monkstown scrums, put in an amount of good work, and, with Brown and Williams in the three-quarter line, formed the pick of the home backs. O'Farrell, Mulhern and Ross-Todd were about the best of the forwards.

Within a couple of minutes of starting, Wanderers scored, Shee intercepting close on the home line and going over for a try, which Vaughan easily converted. Pickeman had an ineffectual penalty kick at goal for Monkstown a little later, and Harris, Shee and Peard put in some good runs for Wanderers; but for a long time there was scrummaging in midfield, assisted by kicking by the backs on either side, without any decided advantage accruing. Nearing the interval Murphy scored Wanderers' second try from a good round of passing, and then Peard added another, but Vaughan failed with both kicks.

Wanderers were completely on top in the second half. Harris got away from a midfield scrum in the first minute, and ran through for a capital score, while just on time Reilly scored from a loose rush, Vaughan adding the major points on each occasion. Result:—

Monkstown—Nil.

A SCRAMBLING MATCH.

PALMERSTON DEFEAT CLONTARF

A sodden and holding pitch at Clonskeagh on Saturday reduced the game between Palmerston and Clontarf to a moderate exhibition, Palmerston winning by a penalty goal and a try to nil. "Rooting and booting" would aptly describe the play, for back movements were rare, and it looked for a long period as if the issue would depend on the results of penalty kicks, for the solitary try of the contest was not obtained till the last few minutes.

Palmerston were without Bates, Hill and Thompson, while Wallens, F. O'Neill, Tyndall, Browne and Lawlor were absent from the visiting side. Palmerston started up-hill, and both sides attacked in turn. V. Kirwan, Wall, Cathcart and Faulkiner were prominent for the home side, as were Seymour, E. A. Roche, Mahony and Highton for Clontarf; and, following a good rush, Wall, from a free in front, easily landed a penalty goal for Palmerston ten minutes from the start. Montgomery, Mahony, Seymour and Buggy brought Clontarf to the attack, and Seymour, from a free at a difficult angle, was unlucky not to have equalised, as the ball rebounded high up from an upright. Palmerston touched down twice, and then Seymour missed another free. Nowlan, Langan, C. O'Neill and Mahony helped Clontarf to press, but V. Kirwan, Wall and Hendrick were sound in defence. In the second period Clontarf had a long spell of pressing, and Seymour just failed to land a penalty. Then Clontarf lost Highton, who retired hurt, and Palmerston gradually took over the attack. V. Kirwan, D. Hussey and Cathcart took Palmerston to the visitors' line, and after Wall had barely failed to drop a goal, and Faulkiner and Wall had only been pulled down in the nick of time, D. Hussey, Kean and Wall led up to Henchie's crossing for a try at the left, which Wall failed to improve on. V. Kirwan, at back for the winners, gave a sound display, his kicking and touch-finding being most valuable to his side. Hendrick and Faulkiner were the most enterprising of the three-quarters. Wall's kicking at out-half was of good length, and the best of the forwards were Kean, Cathcart, D. Hussey and Wilson. Doyle, at back for Clontarf, was safe; Buggy and Langan did best of the "threes"; Seymour worked hard at out-half, and Mahony, Ryan, C. O'Neill and Roche were the best of the forwards. Result:—

Palmerston—1 (penalty) goal 1 try (6 points).
Clontarf—Nil.

Teams:—

Palmerston—V. E. Kirwan; W. G. Connell, S. Henchie, V. Hendrick, R. T. Faulkiner; T. H. D. Wall, F. W. Moore; J. Kean, W. A. Ruddell, J. R. V. Wilson, J. C. Cathcart, F. R. Willis, D. Harkins, C. N. Kirwan, D. Hussey.

INTERNATIONAL RUGBY DANCE.

The forthcoming visit of Santos Casani and his partner, Miss Jose Lennard, to the Metropole on international Rugby night is being looked forward to with considerable interest. The fame of Santos Casani as an authority on dancing is widely recognised, and his demonstrations of the latest dances, apart from being a brilliant and entertaining performance, will prove to be of the highest educational value.

OLD WESLEY'S THREE POINTS WIN.

CLOSE GAME AT LANSDOWNE ROAD.

At Lansdowne road Old Wesley gained a well-deserved victory over Lansdowne by a try to nil. Both teams had to play many substitutes, but Lansdowne suffered more keenly in this respect; for they had to take the field without Davy, Pike, and Arigho—all engaged in the international—and also W. E. Crawford. Old Wesley were without the services of Ballagh, Beggs, and Massey.

The game was, however, a fine, fast, and open one, and play fluctuated in a most interesting manner, especially in the first half. In the second period Old Wesley had by far the better of the play, and it was only the splendid defence of the Lansdowne men that kept them out on several occasions.

McLarnon played a good game as full for the winners, and Young, Smith, and Willoughby were also prominent. Ruttle, Love, and Clegg were the most noticeable of a hard-working pack. Redmond, the Lansdowne full, had a trying time, but, though not very safe, he got through some awkward situations cleverly. Hogan, Crowe, Lightfoot, and O'Reilly were excellent, both in attack and defence, while Bermingham, McEnery, and Hanrahan were the pick of the forwards.

Play of an even nature marked the early stages of the game, when, from a kick by Redmond which failed to find touch, Smith gathered and went over at the corner for an unconverted try. Lansdowne backs had a few good passing movements, but they were unproductive.

In the second period Old Wesley kept up a sustained attack on the Lansdowne line, and Gray and Willoughby were nearly over. Lansdowne put up a great defence, and eventually O'Reilly cleared. Hogan, Crowe, and Lightfoot had a few good passing bouts, but they could not penetrate the defence. Result:—

Lansdowne—Nil.

Teams:—

Lansdowne—N. O'C. Redmond; E. J. Lightfoot, G. P. Hogan, M. Crowe, P. McPhillips; T. A. O'Reilly, T. J. Moran; J. C. Bermingham, F. Conroy, J. McEnery, C. Digges, M. Dunne, B. F. Hanrahan, H. Ludendorf, E. Heard.

LIMERICK TEAM'S SUCCESS.

BOHEMIANS SURPRISE BLACKROCK.

The Munster Cup-holders, Limerick Bohemians, brought their short metropolitan tour to a successful conclusion on Saturday, when at Williamstown they defeated Blackrock College by two tries (six points) to nil. It was a keenly contested game, chiefly a duel between the forwards. As on Friday against Trinity, the Bohemian forwards were great in the loose, but in the set scrums they were inferior to the home lot, who got the ball almost every time. Blackrock had much the better of the play, and for more than three-fourths of the time were on the aggressive. Despite several strong efforts by Devenish, Stanley, McMullen and Fullen, they could not break through a very strong Bohemian defence, though the visitors' line had many narrow escapes.

J. W. Stokes, at full back, for the winners, proved a very sound tackler, and extricated his side from many a perilous position through clever kicking. H McMahon and O'Malley were the best of the middle line. Wellwood and Culhane both performed well at half, and forward Crean, P. J. Power and W. W. Stokes were the pick.

For Blackrock, who suffered the loss of their clever forward, Quillivan through injury early in the game, the most noticeable players were Devenish, Stanley, McMullen and Fullen (backs), and Keogh, Vaughan and Gleeson (forwards).

Blackrock College had much the better of the play in the first half, and it was nearing the interval before the Limerick side, thanks to a burst of their forwards, got down to the Blackrock end, and, following a bout of passing, O'Malley crossed for a try which was not converted.

The second period was also greatly in favour of the College, and for a long time the Bohemian defence was sorely tried. Then in the closing stages of the game an attack by the visitors culminated in Brown scoring a clever try after a good run. Result:—

Blackrock College—Nil.

The teams were:

Blackrock College—P. B. Kenny; L. D. McMullen, L. S. Stanley, R. Devenish, T. Kneafsey; F. Fullen, G. Gorevan; S. Keogh, M. Gleeson, T. Smith, M. Cogan, M. Vaughan, M. Burns, T. Quinlivan, E. Maguire.

Bohemians—J. W. Stokes; T. J. Brown, D. J. O'Malley, H. McMahon, D. J. McMahon; R. B. Wellwood, J. J. Culhane; T. F. Crean, E. D. Treacy, M. Maguire, W. W. Stokes, E. C. O'Neill, P. J. Power, M. J. Graham, J. Mullane.

DUBLIN TEAMS IN BELFAST.

A number of matches between Belfast and Dublin teams took place in the morning before the international match at Belfast. Teams representing Dublin Insurance Offices and Belfast Insurance Offices played at Bladon Drive in a steady downpour, the Northern side winning by 2 goals 4 tries (22 points) to nil. Scorers: J. A. Siggins (2), H. C. Hewitt, A. C. Maxwell, W. W. Reid, and J. C. Galloway. Siggins and Hewitt each converted one try. Dublin and Belfast Y.M.C.A. teams played a scoreless draw, and Malone 2nd defeated Imperial Tobacco Company (Dublin) by 16 points to 3.

MOTOR CYCLING.

THE M.C.U. CONFERENCE.

At the annual conference of the Ulster and Southern Centres of the Motor Cycle Union of Ireland, on Saturday last at Wynn's Hotel, Dublin, Mr. R. H. Wright, Chairman of the Ulster Centre of the Union, was elected President for the coming year. Mr. F. S. Johnston, of the Ulster Centre, was elected Honorary Secretary of the conference.

Most of the business was concerned with matters relating to the championships. Applications were received from the Ulster Centre for the fifty and hundred miles speed championships, and these were granted, the dates and venues to be approved by the Ulster Centre. The one mile, ten mile and twenty-five miles were allocated to the Southern Centre. The mile will be decided at Cork over a recently-opened stretch of concrete road, under the auspices of the Cork Club, and the ten and twenty-five miles will be decided under the auspices of the Dublin and District and Leinster Clubs, and will probably be held in the Phoenix Park on the 21st July and the 30th June, respectively.

The Cork and District Club was allocated the national reliability championship, and this will be held in conjunction with their twenty hours' reliability trial at Whitsuntide. In accordance with the practice of recent years, under which the event is decided in the territory of each centre in alternate years, this year's inter-centre team contest will be held in the area of the Southern Centre, and will be decided in conjunction with a reliability event.

The suggestion of the Ulster Centre that the over 500 c.c. class should be dropped was not favourably received, and was withdrawn.

A minimum entry of four was stipulated for all championships, but if the minimum entry is not received the holder, if entered, is to have the right to ride over, and, if he does so in the time limit, he can have his medal of the previous year endorsed with the new performance. Several suggestions as to the class of the awards that should be given in championships were made, but all were rejected.

On the motion of the Southern Centre delegates it was decided to constitute what was formerly known as the Championships Committee as a General Executive Committee of the Union, with power to deal with matters concerning the national and international relations of the Union, in addition to matters arising out of the championships. The Committee is to consist of three representatives of each of the centres, with the Honorary Secretary of the conference as an ex-officio member. This Committee will be entrusted with the task of selecting teams for international events, and a discussion at the conference suggests that it is likely that the Union will be represented in this year's international six days.

The personnel of the new General Executive Committee is as follows:—Representing the Ulster Centre—Messrs. R. H. Wright, R. McLardy and W. J. Chambers. Representing the Southern Centre—Messrs. T. W. Murphy, P. B. Hurse and R. S. Russell (Cork). Those who habitually take part in competitions are ineligible for elective membership. In selecting international teams the Committee is to pay due regard to the recommendations of the Centres.

As hon. secretary of the special committee appointed at the last conference to consider the status of the Union in international affairs, Mr. T. W. Murphy detailed the negotiations that had taken place with the Auto-Cycle Union and the subsequent admission of the Union to membership of the Fédération Internationale des Clubs Moto-cyclistes. General satisfaction was expressed at the fact that the long-sustained claim of the Union to be an autonomous self-governing body, deriving its powers from its affiliated clubs and not by delegation, had received international recognition.

Before the conference assembled the Ulster delegates were entertained to dinner by the Southern Centre, under the chairmanship of Mr. E. H. Hill, the outgoing president, who presided at the meeting until the election of his successor.

IRISH ROAD CLUB.

The annual general meeting of the Southern Centre of the Irish Road Club was held at the offices of the N.A. and C.A. last Saturday. Mr. Galavan was re-elected president, and the other officers are:—Vice-presidents—Messrs. R. Galway, G. Henderson, J. Meade, G. H. Ford, J. Clarke, M. S. Walshe, R. Cunningham and P. Cran; Hon. Secretary—J. Leedom; Racing Secretary—W. J. Finn; Delegate to the N.A. and C.A.—D. J. Galavan.

The reports of the honorary secretary and hon. treasurer were adopted. The presentation of prizes is to take place on the 11th February, and the opening run of the season on St. Patrick's Day to Dundalk. The twelve hours' time trial will be held on the August Bank holiday.

IRELAND V. ENGLAND.

THE TEAMS SELECTED.

CHANGE ON BOTH SIDES.

The Irish Selection Committee, meeting yesterday in Belfast, picked the team to play England at Lansdowne road on February 11. They made three changes on the side which defeated France, one in the back division and two amongst the forwards. That R. V. Odbert would be dropped from the side was obvious to any one who had seen the French match, and it was also obvious that H. W. Stephenson would be brought back into the three-quarter line. Ganly has again been moved into the centre, and the new line will be from left to right—J. E. Arigho, J. B. Ganly, G. V. Stephenson and H. W. Stephenson. In Saturday's game Arigho played on the right wing, but he is equally at home on the other side, and the new three-quarter line should have a strengthening effect on the side, especially if H. W. Stephenson, like his brother, shows signs of coming back to his best form. The two forwards to be left off are H. M'Vicker and T. Bramwell, and in their places two old internationals—W. F. Browne and S. J. Cagney—come on. There is, of course, a doubt about Browne being able to play, as he has been laid up for some weeks past. While agreeing that changes in the forward division were essential it might have been better if some new blood had been infused. There are a couple of young forwards in Dublin yet untried in international games, but who showed excellent form in the Leinster v. Ulster match. One is C. Carroll, of Bective, and the other R. B. Pike, of Trinity.

The team is an improvement on the last, and, compared to the fifteen defeated by England at Twickenham last year, contains six changes—J. W. Stewart, J. E. Arigho, H. W. Stephenson, G. R. Beamish, S. J. Cagney, and J. D. Clinch, replacing W. E. Crawford, D. J. Cussen, F. S. Hewitt, A. M. Buchanan, H. M'Vicker, and J. M'Vicker. With the exception of F. S. Hewitt, whose loss is an irreparable one, the changes on the side since last year cannot be said to have a weakening effect, provided the players are all fit and play up to their form, which is a doubtful matter in the case of a number of them. There are no new caps on the side.

The English team was also selected yesterday, and on it three changes have been made from the side which defeated Wales. All the backs have been retained, but the forwards—D. Turquand Young, T. Coulson, and T. M. Lawson have been dropped in favour of H. G. Periton, R. H. Sparkes, and F. D. Prentice, the two last-named players being new to international honours. Of the back division in last year's game only Seller and the two half-backs remain, the three-quarter line being a complete change. Of the forwards J. S. Tucker, K. J. Stark, E. Stanbury, R. Cove-Smith, and H. G. Periton alone played against Ireland at Twickenham twelve months ago.

GAELIC GAMES.

SAGGART TOURNAMENT.

DUBLIN DEFEAT KILDARE.

(BY PAT'O.)

The third meeting of Kildare and Dublin in the Saggart final yesterday, played on a heavy pitch, produced some good football. Kildare relied on the team which beat Kerry at Thurles; and Towers wisely retained eight of their own men, picking outstanding players for places from Clondalkin, O'Dwyers, Brian Borus, Rangers, and Skerries. As a result, the Clondalkin combination, strengthened at vital posts, was not disturbed, and local South County interest preserved. The weather cleared, following a wet morning, but the attendance when Father Sheahan, P.P., threw the ball in fell short of the previous figures.

The Hynam brothers cleared an early Dublin attack. Dublin returned, and Maddock saved a low ball in Kildare's posts. Murphy drove a long ball forward for Kildare, and Ryan opened their score with a point. Dublin relished the heavy conditions. They were the heavier side. Maguire and O'Toole used their weight well at midfield, and from a free kick O'Toole drove low, Hynam failing to stop the ball to Kildare's net. Dublin forced the pace, giving little time for Kildare's cleverness to develop. Kavanagh, Doran, and Hickey rushed in, and another ball was placed for O'Toole. The Balbriggan man again drove hard, and Hynam went down to the shot, but the greasy ball slipped through for Dublin's second goal. Kildare continued to play with great determination. Keats and Gill put in useful work, but the shooting was weak. Then Kildare had an innings. The Dempsey brothers combined well, and Johnson shot their second point. A third came through Callaghan before the half-way, and the game was still open:—

Kildare—3 points.

O'Toole and Maguire were well marked by the Dempsey brothers at midfield on resuming, but the greasy ball did not suit Kildare's game. They forced the game, and Dublin's last line was called on frequently. Kavanagh, Kelly, and Connor played steadily here, before Johnson's shot brought Kildare's fourth score. The finish was fast, and we saw the best football of the day at midfield. Dermot Murphy, playing right half for Kildare, was the outstanding player of the afternoon, in which both back lines showed up effectively, and no further scores were made. Dublin's goals were lucky, but their forwards missed many chances in the closing stages:—

Dublin—2 goals (6).

Stephen Donnelly, Crumlin, refereed.

LEINSTER COLLEGE COMPETITIONS.

At Croke Park, on Saturday, Glasnevin and O'Connell's made very promising openings. They were superior to Clondalkin and Belcamp Colleges, and both games were one-sided. Glasnevin's display was impressive, and the football by both O'Connell's teams was quite good. Results:—

Glasnevin—7 goals 6 points.

Clondalkin—Nil.

O'Connell's—2 goals 8 points.

LEINSTER COUNCIL MEETING.

Appeals from different counties occupied the Saturday evening's sittings of the Leinster Council, when eleven counties were represented. An appeal by Carlow County Committee against the Club was reversed. Westmeath Board's decision in favour of Moate was upheld, as was the ruling against the Fingal League. Two appeals from Wicklow and Dublin were withdrawn. Mr. Eamonn Fleming's favourable college report, sets of medals were presented by the Council to the winners in hurling and football, senior and junior, in the 1928 championships of the province.

A sum of £25 was voted to the Western Relief Fund organised by the G.A.A.; and, on a letter from Mr. P. D. Breen, Wexford, it was decided to invite views from the different counties on the future working of the National League.

The provincial championships will be played off in February, and the finals played for the Railway Cup on St. Patrick's Day, at Croke Park.

A KEEN STRUGGLE AT DROGHEDA.

Balbriggan O'Dwyers beat the Drogheda Wolfe Tones by 3-3 to 1-2 in a magnificent match in the Drogheda Athletic grounds yesterday. The Balbriggan victory, which was only obtained in the last few minutes, truly represents the trend of the play.

For the winners Knight played a splendid game, and Dowd and Farrell were also prominent. For the Wolfe Tone team, McKeown, Byrne and Sarsfield distinguished themselves.

CONVENTION AT CORK.

Over fifty clubs were represented at the annual Convention of the Cork County Gaelic Athletic Association in Cork yesterday. The reports showed that the income for the year was £2,191 and the expenditure £2,170 12/7, leaving a net balance of £21 7/5.

The result of the elections was declared as follows:—Chairman—Mr. S. McCarthy; Vice-Chairman—Mr. E. Fleming (by 129 votes to 39 for Mr. Kiernan and 32 for Mr. D. Kennedy); Treasurer—Mr. T. Long; Secretary—Mr. P. O'Keeffe; Registrar—Mr. A. Fitzgerald; Delegates to the Munster Council—Messrs. S. McCarthy, P. Aherne; to the Munster Convention—Messrs. S. McCarthy, P. O'Keeffe, E. Fleming, J. O'Regan, James Harrington; to the National Congress—Messrs. S. McCarthy, E. Fleming, J. Beckett, J. Harley, C. Sheehan, James Harrington (Blackrock), J. Kelleher (Mallow).

LIMERICK COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Mr. William P. Clifford presided at the annual convention of the Limerick County Gaelic Association. Messrs. Clifford and T. Humphreys were unanimously re-elected chairman and secretary for the coming year. Messrs. D. Flanagan and C. Brown (assistant secretary) and Mr. Casey (treasurer) were also re-elected. Messrs. William Gleeson and J. Roche will act on the Munster Council. The Rev. President of the Gaelic Athletic Association of Ireland, announced that, having held office for three years, he could not ...

HANDBALL.

D.M.G. CHAMPIONSHIP.

To give the public an opportunity of seeing the teams in opposition, the D.M.G. Handball Club Committee fixed up two matches in the alleys at the Castle yesterday. The first was between Guard C. Ryan (B District) and Guard M. Joyce (A District). It was in this game that Joyce in the second game, playing a ball close to the wall, injured his fingers and had to retire, and was not able to resume. Ryan was then leading by 19-13.

The second match was between Station Sergeant T. J. O'Reilly (A District) and Guard A. Finn (A District). The latter was very resourceful, and ran out the rubber by 21-6, 21-17, 21-15, 21-6.

St. Werburghs succeeded in taking the three points from D.M.G. in the Inter-Club Soft Ball League. Results:—T. C. Noring and G. Chalmers (St. Werburghs) defeated J. Cahill and E. Farrelly (D.M.G.)—21-9, 21-16. J. Curran and J. Conlan (St. Werburghs) defeated P. O'Connor and M. Regan (D.M.G.)—21-10, 21-15. G. Reynolds and F. Reynolds (St. Werburghs) defeated J. Keating and M. Geraghty (D.M.G.)—21-15, 21-15.

BOXING.

INTERNATIONAL BOUTS AT PORTOBELLO.

FLANAGAN'S VICTORY.

There was again a good attendance at Portobello Barracks last Saturday, when the tournament promoted by the Civic Guards was continued. International contests were the main feature, and once more home talent was well to the fore. A particularly interesting bout was that between G. Kelly, Irish Fly-Weight champion, and L. Douglas, the North of England Bantam-Weight champion, who is attached to the Edgehill B.C., at every stage of the contest. Kelly was the master of the victor, being his superior both in speed and ring-craft, and rarely have we seen the Irish champion to better advantage. He had the verdict in safe keeping long before the final round was entered on, and the margin of points in his favour was a big one.

Another fine contest was the heavy-weight bout between Guard M. Flanagan, the Irish champion, and Constable Titmuss, of the London Police. Flanagan was the faster and lost no time about establishing a good lead. In the third round he had Titmuss in a bad way, but try as he would he could not bring the fight to a close, and certainly the Londoner stood up splendidly to the fierce onslaughts. He "came back" gamely for the succeeding round, in which again Flanagan handed out some very heavy punishment. Both were tired in the last two rounds, but there was no doubt as to Flanagan's having won well on points.

Constables Oakes and Lewis, the former of London and the latter the Liverpool Police champion, who had been seen in action on the previous evening, again took the ring against Guard Murphy and Guard McAlinden respectively. In view of their exertions on Friday night the bouts in which these visitors were concerned were cut down to four rounds. Oakes and Lewis both had compensation for their earlier defeats, and each now placed a good win to his credit.

Those concerned in the promotion of the tournament are to be congratulated on the success achieved, the punctuality observed, and the smoothness and dispatch with which the work was carried out. Details:—

BANTAM-WEIGHT CONTESTS.

G. Kelly (North City) beat L. Douglas (Edgehill) very easily.

P. Cassidy (St. James's Gate) beat J. Ryder (Unity) on points.

FEATHER-WEIGHT CONTEST.

FLY-WEIGHT CONTEST.

J. Hughes (North City) beat P. Molloy (Metropolitan) on points.

WELTER-WEIGHT CONTEST.

P.C. Bone (London) beat F. Finn (St. Paul's). Bone finished very strongly and gained the verdict.

CRUISER-WEIGHT CONTESTS.

P.C. Oakes (London) beat Guard J. Murphy on points.

P.C. Lewis (Liverpool) beat Guard McAlinden. There was not a whole lot between them at the finish, but the balance was with Lewis, who was the more aggressive all through.

HEAVY-WEIGHT CONTESTS.

Guard M. Flanagan beat P.C. Titmuss (London). Flanagan was the aggressor in the first round, and sent his left to the face and also scored with the right. A sharp rally marked the opening of the second. Flanagan did well at close quarters, and then sent a couple of left hooks to the head, and followed up with his left to the same place. Titmuss sent his right to the head twice. Flanagan went after his man with right and lefts in the second, and had Titmuss weak, but was wild with an upper-cut. Titmuss recovered and was fighting back as the round ended. In the third Flanagan missed a vicious left swing, but sent that hand and the right to the head. Titmuss hustled Flanagan about the ring in the fourth, and scored to the body at close quarters. Flanagan again did good work with his left. There was a lot of clinching in the last round, in which both finished strongly. Flanagan won on points.

BOXING AT THE CURRAGH.

The gymnasium at the Curragh was well filled when eleven bouts for a challenge cup, between the Reception and Training Depôt and the 1st Brigade, represented by the 3rd and 11th Battalions, were staged. The Brigade won by 13 points to 9, winning 6 and drawing one of the eleven contests. In addition, there were several special contests.

CUP CONTESTS.

Maguire (R. and T.) beat McCormack (1st Brigade) on points; Douglas (1st Brigade) knocked out Walsh (R. and T.) in first round; O'Reilly (R. and T.) beat Stone (1st Brigade) on points; Sherry (R. and T.) beat Jelly (1st Brigade) on points; Murphy (R. and T.) beat O'Hara (1st Brigade) in first round; Cassidy (1st Brigade) beat Keating (R. and T.) on points; O'Toole (1st Brigade) beat Downey (R. and T.) on points; Maher (1st Brigade) beat Harrison (R. and T.) on points; Graham (R. and T.) and Hannon (1st Brigade) fought a draw; McDermott (1st Brigade) beat McEvoy (R. and T.), disqualified; Carroll (1st Brigade) beat Dempsey (R. and T.) on points.

SPECIAL CONTESTS.

Chase (R. and T.) beat Deans (Artillery) on points; Kidley (Beresford) and Murray (R. and T.) fought a draw; (Shaw (R. and T.) beat Maher (Beresford) in third round; McGuinness (1st Brigade) beat Uzell (Artillery) in the second round; Coyle (1st Brigade) knocked out Cullen (Beresford) in the fourth round; Kelly (Islandbridge) knocked out Driver Curtis (Artillery) in the first round; Howard (Beresford) beat Smiley (1st Brigade) in the second round); Ryan (1st Brigade) knocked out Pte. Moans (Artillery) in the first round; Kidley (Beresford) knocked out McFadden (Transport) in the second round; McQuaide (1st Brigade) knocked out Morris (R. and T.) in the second round; Brereton (R. and T.) beat Woods (1st Brigade) on points; Kinsella (A.M.C.) beat O'Brien (R. and T.) on points; Hayes (1st Brigade) beat Poole (R. and T.) on points; Purcell (1st Brigade) beat Storey (R. and T.) on points; Murray (R. and T.) beat Ford (1st Brigade) on points.

E. IZZARD DRAWS WITH C. PURDEY.

CAPE TOWN, Saturday.

In a 15-round light-weight bout here to-day the English boxer, Ernie Izzard, drew with Charlie Purdey, of New Zealand, after a fast and clever contest.

HOCKEY.

HEAVY SCORING AT TERENURE.

NINE FOR WANDERERS.

Pembroke Wanderers encountered rather poor opposition on National Bank's ground at Terenure last Saturday, and ran out easy winners by nine goals to nil.

In this game ground "advantage" was not really an advantage at all, for the pitch—nothing more nor less than a field of mud and slime—was all but unplayable; but with the sun and the slope in their favour in the second half one would have thought the home team capable of reducing the five goals deficit which then faced them, or, at any rate, of keeping the score down. Instead, they disimproved, if anything, and the Wanderers had no great difficulty in adding four goals to their total.

The visitors were without Spence, their right back, but his place was right well filled by Allen, a forward, and few chances came the way of National Bank. Those that were offered were frittered away by somewhat wild shooting, or were lost through the excellence of Hannon's goal-keeping.

National Bank started well—they always do—but, as in the past, their chief weaknesses, the inability of the forwards to strike up any sort of combination, and poor finishing, soon "let them down." Rossiter alone of the front line was in any way good. In defence, Swaine, as usual, had to bear the brunt of the fray, although one or two others did put in some good work at times.

Before the first half expired Martin (2), Hall (2) and McCormick had scored for the visitors. On the resumption, McCormick got his second goal. For a time then Pembroke were held up, but what the forwards failed to do was now accomplished by the half-backs. First Clancy scored, and then Little, the latter tricking several opponents in a neat run-through and finishing his effort with a clever shot. The forwards again came into their own, and before the final whistle went Martin put on the ninth goal, thus bringing off the hat-trick. Teams:—

Pembroke Wanderers—F. Hannon; J. Allen, O. O'Sullivan; H. Buttimere, C. Little, G. Clancy; A. L'Estrange, F. Hall, R. P. Martin, F. McCormick, W. McGuinness.

National Bank—F. D'Arcy; C. Maunsell, B. Collins; W. Smith, A. P. Swaine, S. Hewitt; F. Rossiter, B. Maunsell, R. Chadwick, D. Johnston, W. Rathbourne.

Umpires—Messrs. Scales and Martin.

FINE GOALKEEPING BY T. WHITNEY.

ROVERS WIN A FAST GAME AT TIVOLI TERRACE.

Despite the sodden pitch, a fine game was played at Tivoli terrace, between Three Rock Rovers and Kingstown Grammar School. The surface was cut up in the course of the game, but the pitch lasted wonderfully well. From start to finish the game was contested at a very fast pace. Rovers had easily the best of matters in the first period, and had a 2-0 lead at the interval. It was fortunate for Grammar School that T. Whitney, their goal-keeper, was in splendid form.

Rovers, on the run of the play, deserved their victory; the defence of Large and Boyd was very sound, and their half-line was well balanced. Their forwards adopted the hit hard and go-ahead game, which was suitable to the conditions, and were quick to take advantage of their opportunities.

Grammar School mainly used the short rushing style. Their forwards lacked dash, and were poor opposition for Rovers' defence.

The game opened in favour of Rovers, and they did most of the pressing in the first period. Their forwards were always on the mark, and would have scored on a couple of occasions, but for Whitney's great goalkeeping. Twice he saved shots from Medcalfe when scores seemed almost certain. Eyre opened Rovers' account after twenty minutes' play with a rather easy goal. Whitney had kicked clear when Eyre, who was nicely placed, received and shot into the net. This was quickly followed with another from Medcalfe, who hooked the ball high into the goal when unmarked. Grammar School were almost confined to their own half for the rest of this period.

In the second half Grammar School played a more determined game, but a bad slip on the part of their defence allowed Mahony through to register the third goal for Rovers. For a time their forwards kept the visiting defence busy, but they were weak and missed good chances, before Staples got through to reduce Rovers' lead with a fine shot. A sweeping run by Rovers' forwards resulted in Medcalfe scoring their fourth goal. Then came the best goal of the game, when Cheetham passed five opposing players and sent well out of Eustace's reach. Teams:—

Kingstown Grammar School.—T. Whitney; I. McFerran, I. Varian; L. Phillips, E. Winder, N. E. Felton; T. Staples, W. C. Ritchie, D. Jones, C. O. Cook (capt.), N. S. Cheetham.

Three Rock Rovers.—P. Eustace; R. U. Corbet, C. C. Large; G. Boyd, R. Brown, W. Campbell; S. Leonard, J. M. Eyre, G. F. Mahony, N. M. Medcalfe, J. Leonard.

Umpires—Messrs. C. Bruton and W. McGlennon.

MONKSTOWN LOSE BY THE ODD GOAL.

Railway Union, at home, maintained their chances of again winning the League competition by defeating Monkstown by 3-2. A shaky start by the visitors helped Railway; for within ten minutes C. Sully and V. Sully had scored. Both goals bordered on being "soft," especially the second, and Knight should have stopped them. Later he had to deal with much more difficult shots, and he got them away.

Railway Union continued to attack, following the early goals, and it seemed that Monkstown were going to go down by a heavy score. Better marking by Monkstown, however, kept them out.

When Railway did let Monkstown away the halves followed up well, and play was kept in the home half. Monkstown kept up the pressure, and Tyndall scored with a fast shot. This changed the outlook very much for Monkstown. They, like Railway Union, had numerous raids up to the interval, but no goal was forthcoming for either side.

The start of the second half saw Monkstown testing the opposing defence, but Browner and O'Donoghue were too sound, and Leopold was not troubled. Railway then had the balance of play, and from a corner V. Sully got in a shot which was unsavable—a rising shot into the top of the net.

Monkstown did not give up. They again attacked, and the home forwards had to fall back to assist the defence. Still, Legge managed to score about five minutes from the end. In the closing minutes Monkstown made a great effort to equalise. Halves and backs were right up to the circle, in which was the entire Railway team. Tyndall, McIlveen and Legge had shots, but the net was not found. Hennessy had brought the ball to the other end when the long whistle went.

The home backs were sound. Corscadden was the best of the halves. All the forwards were good, with V. Sully and Hennessy at their best.

Monkstown's defence was strong, if the opening period be excepted. McWeeney again gave a fine display at right half. Dormer showed a return to form in the attack, where Brewster and Gray, two schoolboys, were prominent. Teams:—

Railway Union—W. C. Leopold; K. N. Browner, M. C. O'Donoghue; J. Corscadden, W. Chiddick (capt.), R. Williams; T. Browner, C. Sully, V. Sully, H. Sully, W. E. Hennessy.

Monkstown—A. L. Knight; R. H. Towers, H. G. Darcus; P. D. McWeeney, H. G. C. Legge (capt.), Capt. W. P. Delamere; J. McIlveen, J. S. Brewster, G. Tyndall, E. E. Dormer, J. Gray.

CORINTHIANS V. DALKEY.

This match, listed for The Stiles, Clontarf, was declared off, it appears, on Saturday morning, as it was considered the ground would not be playable. The ground, however, was quite in playing order in the afternoon.

ULSTER SENIOR MATCHES POSTPONED.

Heavy rain on Friday night, following the bad weather earlier in the week, rendered many of the grounds in Ulster unplayable, and several matches had to be postponed. All the Senior games, including the Irish Cup ties, were off, as well as a couple of League games.

THE WELSH XI. TO PLAY SCOTLAND.

The following team to represent Wales against Scotland at Swansea on February 11 was chosen at Newport last Saturday:—K. C. Craig (Wrexham); G. P. Lampard-Vachell (Hampstead), H. R. Clarke (Chepstow); R. E. M'Donnell (Newport), Dr. C. H. Owen (Hightown), L. A. Sharpe (Old Kingstonians); F. C. R. Arnold (Hightown), H. O. P. Evans (Oxford University), J. H. Lewis (Mid-Surrey), M. D. A. Evans (Cardiff College), and J. Theophilus (Tulse Hill).

TO-DAY'S FIXTURE.

Dublin University v. Glasgow University (ladies), College Park, 3.0.

THE LADIES' INTER-UNIVERSITY MATCH.

The match between Glasgow University and Dublin University will be played to-day in the College Park at 3 o'clock. The following will play for Dublin University:—V. M'Lean; K. Johnston, G. Scott; H. Moffet, J. M'Donogh, N. Watson; R. Patten, A. M'Neilly, R. Thompson, M. Cameron, M. Wray.

FOURTH TEST MATCH.

JOHANNESBURG, Saturday.

The fourth Test Match of the M.C.C. tour began here this morning in overcast and cool weather. England made no alterations in the team which did duty for them in the Durban Test game, but in the South African side J. P. Duminy and A. E. Hall, both of the Transvaal, replaced A. L. Ochse (Eastern Province) and I. J. Siedle (Natal).

Deane again beat Stanyforth in the toss, and decided to send the Englishmen in to bat first on a fast wicket, probably because the outlook suggested the possibility of rain later on.

Holmes, who opened with Sutcliffe, was bowled by Bissett at 6, but Sutcliffe and Tyldesley brought the score to 83 before Tyldesley was out lbw. to the same bowler for an excellent 42. Sutcliffe was bowled next over by Hall. Wyatt subsequently contributed an invaluable 56, and at close of play the score stood at 233 for seven wickets. Score:—

GOLF.

A RUB OF THE GREEN.

There was a curious incident at Addington last Saturday, where Cambridge University met the home club. G. Illingworth, the Light Blues' captain, badly pulled his drive to the fifth hole. His ball struck Mr. J. R. Abercrombie, the proprietor of the course, and split his finger. A search for the ball was made, and it was found in Mr. Abercrombie's jacket pocket, into which it had ricochetted after hitting his hand. The rules of golf lay down that "if a ball in motion be stopped or deflected by any agency outside the match, or by a fore-caddie, it is a rub of the green, and the ball shall be played from the spot where it lies."

Thus the ball was placed where Mr. Abercrombie had been standing and Illingworth played his next shot.

BOY AMATEUR TURNS PROFESSIONAL.

H. B. Rhodes (Sheffield), who reached the semi-final stage of the Boy's Golf Championship last year, has accepted an appointment as assistant to George Duncan at Wentworth, and will take the place of George Dow, Duncan's old assistant, who has become professional at Monte Carlo.

LACROSSE.

THE PIONEER CLUB.

There will be no practice at Trinity Hall to-day.

The death took place in Northampton Hospital yesterday of Alfred Watson, a bill inspector at Northampton Opera House, who fell down a staircase on Saturday and fractured his skull. Sixty-five years of age, he had for nearly half a century been engaged in various capacities at the Opera House, and had met a great number of theatrical celebrities.

ASSOCIATION.

A ROBUST GAME AT SHELBOURNE PARK.

BOHEMIANS WIN BY 4-1.

For twenty minutes in their Free State Shield game with Shelbourne, at Ringsend on last Saturday, Bohemians overplayed the home side, and worked out a clear lead of four goals. A few minutes later Shelbourne reduced the arrears. Then the scoring stopped.

Contrary to expectations, the game was not of the class which usually results when these sides meet. It was spoiled by over robust methods, and stoppages were frequent.

Dennis, Bohemians' inside right, was injured, and had to retire. It was thought he had sustained a broken leg, but only the thigh muscle was injured.

Following the rain the ground was slippery, and to a great extent was responsible for many infringements. At the same time the referee allowed too much latitude, and players on both sides were inclined to take advantage of that.

On the run of the play Bohemians were much the better, and should have won by a bigger margin. In all departments they had the advantage, the work of the forwards being well executed, while they were aided by good half-backs, who overshadowed the Shelbourne quintette. The failure of the latter, particularly in the second half, lost them many chances of getting to grips with the Dalymount side, who were too speedy, and swung the ball about to good purpose.

The rapidity with which Bohemians scored completely upset the home side's game, and, though they played better subsequently, they never settled down. Their chief weakness was at half-back. The line never combined effectively, and the individual efforts were futile.

Bohemians' backs were thoroughly sound, the halves and the fulls tackling and clearing with excellent judgment. McMahon, at centre half, distributed the play well, and, with McIlroy and Thomas, as a rule, held the Shelbourne forwards. There was little comparison between the sides. In the closing half Shelbourne played much better, but the ill-timed efforts at combination by the inside forwards lost many good openings.

White secured Bohemians' lead after ten minutes, previous to which Walsh had saved a couple of good shots from Dennis. The latter added the second inside a few minutes and White the third, and McMahon scored the fourth from a penalty. Shelbourne were awarded a penalty, which McMillan converted. In the closing half McClery and McIlvenny missed good openings, and, though Cannon was called on frequently, none of the shots was outside his compass.

Bohemians—Captain H. Cannon; J. Robinson, J. McCarthy; J. McIlroy, J. McMahon, R. Thomas; J. Bermingham, W. Dennis, J. White, C. Robinson, P. Kavanagh.

ONE-SIDED VICTORY FOR THE ROVERS.

JACOBS' BACKS FAIL IN THE SECOND HALF.

At Milltown yesterday Shamrock Rovers gained an easy victory in their Shield match with Jacobs by 5 goals to 1. It was a more or less one-sided game, the Rutland avenue backs breaking down in the second half.

After a level opening half the sides were equal at the interval, each having scored once, but from that to the finish Rovers had matters much their own way. Jacobs were well served by their half-backs and fulls, but the middle line received little assistance from the forwards. In the early stages Luke Kelly, at centre half, made good openings for his wing forwards, but the latter repeatedly hung on to the ball too long. The Rovers' backs controlled the play for the greater portion of the second half, and occasional breaks through varied matters; but the forwards lacked finish.

After fifteen minutes Fagan gave Rovers the lead, which they held until just on the interval, when Tucker equalised. Early in the second half Luke Kelly regained the lead for Rovers, and then Campbell (2) and Golding added goals.

POINTS FOR DUNDALK.

ST. JAMES'S GATE BEATEN BY THREE GOALS.

Dundalk had a deserved victory at St. James's Park yesterday. It was a game that was bright and tame in turn. St. James's Gate were without Clarke and Booth, whose places were filled by Mooney and Dowling. Dundalk introduced a new full-back, McCandless, who has earned a reputation in Northern Ireland.

Though the score may suggest that St. James's Gate were beaten easily, it was not a one-sided game; in fact, the losers had as much of the play. The home forwards, while often dangerous, could do little from lack of weight and inches against a hefty defence that took no risks.

The visiting team were the cleverer, but their forwards were at fault in the early stages in holding on to the ball on a soft pitch, to the advantage of the opposing defenders. Mathieson, in particular, seemed to think that the home defence could be beaten single-handed, and it was well for his club that he discovered in the second period that such efforts were not conducive to success. Dundalk gained the upper hand when their forwards adopted an open game that was infinitely more effective.

There was little difference between the opposing defences, but Dundalk generally possessed more football ability. St. James's Gate were first to score, Dowling securing a clever goal. Following this Barrett missed a penalty for the visitors, Coleman saving a terrific drive. Carroll equalised for Dundalk with a brilliant individual effort, dribbling the ball a distance before scoring. Mathieson gave the visitors the lead, and the remaining scores came from Barrett (a penalty) and Carroll.

Dundalk have a clever forward line, all of whom played well, apart from their inclination to finesse. Mathieson was the inspiration of the line. Jordan and Emerson were sound in defence. Clarke was too often in the role of a third full-back. Barrett was the best full-back on the field, and he was well supported by M'Candless. Bradley was a sound goalkeeper.

The losers' strength lay in their defence, and Coleman played well, though beaten on four occasions. Murphy defended with skill. M'Kay and Heaney were clever in collaboration with their forwards, of whom Dowling, Murray and Jordan were most prominent.

Dundalk—Bradley; M'Candless, Barrett; Clarke, Jordan, Emerson; Withers, Kane, Carroll, Mathieson, Toman.

St. James's Gate—Coleman; Murphy, Behan; M'Kay, Heaney, Mooney; Jordan, Farrell, Dowling, Murray, Ennis.

STRANDVILLE TAKEN BY SURPRISE.

A BELATED RALLY BY VICKERS.

After being postponed twice owing to water-logged grounds, the match between Strandville and Vickers in the first round of the Leinster Senior Cup was decided last Saturday at Richmond road, when the more fancied Strandville were beaten by 3-1. A surprise rally by Vickers in the last twenty minutes gave them victory.

Ball control was impossible on the sticky ground, but the game was stubbornly contested. Vickers were the first to score (Newman). O'Connor made a good attempt to save, but he was unable to hold the heavy, greasy ball. The play fluctuated evenly. Simpson sent in a hard shot, but M'Gibney was on the alert. Strandville were then awarded two free kicks, but no use was made of them. Strandville pressed near the interval, and Fitzgerald was impeded. Monks made no mistake with the penalty kick.

For a long spell in the second half it was either team's game. Vickers, however, nearing the end asserted themselves, and Delaney scored. Just on time, following good play between Rigby and Newman, M'Grath added the third goal.

Teams:—

Vickers—M'Gibney; Ryan, Hawkins; Kennedy, Rigney, Mackin; Smith, M'Grath, Delaney, Keehan, Newman.

Strandville—O'Connor; Mackin, Stoole; Simpson, Whelan, Crawford; H. Simpson, Fitzgerald, Monks, M'Grane, Bates.

A TYPICAL CUP TIE.

DRUMCONDRA FOR THE SEMI-FINAL.

By a decisive win (4-1) over Bray Unknowns at Tolka Park yesterday, before the largest crowd that ever packed itself into the enclosure, Drumcondra, the holders of the trophy, succeeded, on the second attempt, in qualifying to meet Fordsons at Cork in the semi-final of the Free State Cup.

There was not much between the teams at the outset, but after McCarney, although he was closely watched, had scored twice, the issue was never in doubt.

The visitors flattered at times, and Rogers, the former Bohemian forward, made great efforts to get through, but found Grace, Moore, Kelly, and O'Callaghan, the Drumcondra goalkeeper, very hard to beat.

The second half, like the first, was stubbornly fought out, and a fast pace maintained, but the balance of the play was in favour of the home side. Doyle, the ex-Shelbourne player, scored the best goal of the match with a great shot from the wing, which entered the corner of the net. Leonard, who gave a masterly display throughout, had no chance. During an attack by Bray Unknowns they were awarded a free kick just outside the penalty area, Newman scoring with a powerful shot that left O'Callaghan standing. The visitors then pressed and forced a couple of corners, but the Drumcondra defence held out. The home team were not done with yet. Doyle sent across a well-timed centre, which Swan intercepted, and put his side further ahead. Towards the end the pace slackened, and thus ended a typical cup tie, Drumcondra being deserving victors.

Bray Unknowns—Leonard; McFarlane, Hoey; Kane, Newman, Carroll; Browne, Cahill, Rogers, Sloane, Byrne.

SENIOR LEAGUE MATCH AT BRAY

Bray Unknowns were victors in their Leinster League match with Edenville last Saturday. The home team lost many chances of scoring through fumbling among the forwards; Cuddy on several occasions shooting high or wide. The visitors' defence was not really tested in the first half, although Unknowns were constantly attacking. Following a nice passing movement by the Edenville forwards, Burroughs scored the first goal for the visitors. Five minutes later Unknowns succeeded in getting past the visitors' defence, Davis sending in a fast shot from close range. For the rest of the first half Unknowns were on the defensive, Kinsella playing a great game. Again and again he defeated the Edenville forwards.

The home team scored three times in the beginning of the second half—Smith, Cuddy and Davy. Murray, who seemed off form in the first half, recovered in the second, and kept the game among the forwards. Nearing the end the visitors were continually shooting at the Unknowns goal, and Doyle finally succeeded in getting past Kinsella. Murray then got away from midfield, and scored the last goal, leaving the home team winners by 5 goals to 2.

FORTY GOALS SCORED IN IRISH LEAGUE.

Forty goals were scored in the seven Irish League matches, 32 falling to six winning teams, the other game—that between Cliftonville and Queen's Island—being drawn. Nine were scored at Portadown, who beat Ards 7-2; and Larne, playing at home, defeated Barn by 7-1. Houston, the Larne centre, scored five, and performed the "hat trick." Stewart also had a "hat trick" in his four goals for Bangor, who got the better of Glenavon by 5-1. Newry Town had a good win over Glentoran, whom they routed by 6 to 1, while Linfield, at Coleraine, had revenge for their Cup defeat, and won 4-1. Celtic accounted for Distillery at Grosvenor Park, and now only require one point from their last two games to be champions for the third successive season.

GREYHOUND SALE SEQUEL.

ALLEGED FORGED PEDIGREES FROM IRELAND

It is alleged that two dogs, brought over from Ireland and sold by auction, had forged pedigree certificates. The result is that the new owners, who are two Scotsmen, cannot enter their dogs for racing on any of the greyhound tracks.

It is stated that the Secretary of the Irish Greyhound Studbook has intimated that he cannot transfer the registration of these dogs, as no such pedigrees are known to him.

Mr. Nicoll, manager of the Strathmore Auction Company, Glasgow, who conducted the sale, has stated that on the day of the sale two men arrived from Ireland with two dogs and asked him to include them in the catalogue.

The dogs were sold—one for eleven guineas and the other for about double that amount.

The pedigree certificates were inspected by the two new owners after the sale, and they instructed him to pay over the money.

A few days later the new owners forwarded their pedigree certificates to Mr. Morris of the Irish Greyhound Studbook for transfer. He replied to the effect that no such pedigrees were known.

GREYHOUND SALE IN LONDON.

IRISH DOGS FETCH GOOD PRICES.

Excellent prices were realised at the sixth greyhound sale of the season, held at Aldridge's Repository, London, on Saturday afternoon, fifty-six dogs being sold for an aggregate of £2,162, an average of £38 12/-. This brings the total up to date to £13,013 for 355 dogs, an average of just over £36 13/-.

The top price of 190 guineas on Saturday was made by an Irish-bred bitch, Moselle Cup (1921). She is a fawn by Jamie—Miss Cinderella, litter sister to Mutton Cutlet, who was probably the fastest of his day, and is now a very successful sire in Ireland. She is in whelp to De Novo, and was bought by Mr. Harold Wright from Brig.-Gen. R. M'Calmont.

Three figures was also reached by Mr. George Barney's red or fawn dog, Gogetem Boy (1924), by Skeets—Vicious Ada, the winner of several races on the White City track, London. He was purchased by Captain E. A. V. Stanley for 107 gns.

Five saplings by Beaded Jock—Linguist II., sent up by Mr. John Holliday, of Carlisle, were sold for 230 gns. Four first season dogs from Lord Dalmeny's Mentmore kennels, by De Novo—Dog Rose, realised 130 gns. Three saplings by Beaded Jock—Lucky Lass, owned by Mr. P. L. Holmes, of Ipswich, made 168 gns.; and eleven saplings sent up by Mr. M. C. Frood, from Annan, Dumfriesshire, realised 425 gns.

Mr. J. A. Devers, of Enniskillen, received 55 gns. from Mr. B. G. Revell for the brood bitch Beaded Doris, which he purchased at the Barbican, London, on March 21, 1925, from Mr. H. Charles for 30 gns. She ran once on the track at Belfast last season, winning her race.

Among the other Irish dogs sold were:—Mr. Harry Allen's (Moy, Co. Tyrone) Whisperer, bd. d. (1925), by Go Canny—Golden Charm (Mr. Renwick), 17½ gns.; O'Dorney Lass, bd. b. (1924), by Jedderfield—Poor Noise (Capt. Salmon), 15½ gns.; Coleshill Rebel, bk. and w. b. (1925), by Honeydhu—Morning Star XVI. (Mr. Welsh), 15½ gns. Mr. J. A. Dever's (Enniskillen) Down Mail, w. and bd. d. (1926), by Dress Circle—Beaded Doris (Mr. B. G. Revell), 48 gns.; Beaded Doris, bd. b. (1924), by Matrimony—Beaded Lady (Mr. Revell), 55 gns. Mr. James Grew's (Portadown, Armagh) Telegraph Tool, bd. d. (1925), by Seagoe Turn—Magical Maid (Mr. Welsh), 19 gns.; Tender Time, bd. d., litter brother to the last named (Mr. Welsh), 30 gns.; Total Terror, f. d. (1924), by Decisive Display—Bann Lass (Mr. Lawe), 38 gns.; Trapeze, bd. d. (1925), by Treaty Stone II.—Move One (Mr. Gibbons), 38 gns.; White Match, w. and f. b. (1925), by Rotter—Hasty Match (Mr. Renwick), 25 gns.; Warning Blast, bd. d. sapling (March), by Decisive Display—Trained Tillie (Mr. Brammitt), 10½ gns. Capt. Salmon's Lack Penny, f. and w. brood bitch, by Cawran Hill—Demure Lass, in whelp to Handsome Klinker (Mr. Rawlingson), 50 gns. Messrs. Skinner's Railway Bridge, w. and bd. d. (1924), by Christmas Number—Wise Lassie (Mr. Cohan), 33 gns.; Captured Raider, bd. d. (1926), by First Capture—Compromise (Mr. Wright), 29 gns.

SALE AT GLASGOW.

The Strathmore Auction Company, Limited, held another of their monthly sales of greyhounds at Coatbridge Auction Mart, Glasgow, on last Friday. There were 60 dogs catalogued, including noted track winners at Glasgow, Edinburgh, Liverpool, and Belfast; also winners at coursing meetings in Scotland and Ireland. The attendance of racing owners and breeders from a wide radius was very large. Owing to the uncertainty regarding betting on greyhound racing, purchasers seemed determined to procure their dogs at lower prices. Consequently bidding was rather slow, but for really high-class dogs there was the keenest competition, and many of the lots changed hands. Prices are expected to improve by the next sale, when more tracks will be ready for racing in the spring.

The following were the principal prices:—Belvedere Boy (winner at Celtic Park, Belfast, and of the Earl of Granard Coursing Cup), 65 guineas; Gala Boy, withdrawn at 65 guineas; Willow Pattern, withdrawn at 60 guineas; Held On, 30 guineas; O'Dorney Girl, 26 guineas; Perra Lass, 25 guineas; Roy Barton, 15 guineas; Neds Point, 14 guineas.

POLLUTED WATER.

RATHKEALE'S CAUTIOUS WHISKEY DRINKERS.

In moving, at a meeting of the Limerick County Council last Saturday, that a loan of £8,000 should be applied for in connection with a water scheme for Rathkeale, Mr. Madden pointed out that three nurses had lost their lives in devotion to duty consequent on outbreaks of typhoid and diphtheria, the cause of which had been attributed by doctors to defective sewage and polluted water. During these epidemics people were afraid to venture into this town, and when persons called for a "half-whiskey" they were afraid to put water into it "for fear of pollution." (Laughter.)

The resolution was adopted.

It was also agreed to apply for a loan of £16,000 for a water supply for Newcastle West.

U.S. MARKETS.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, Saturday.

Stocks at the opening were irregular, and efforts to continue the rise in manipulated shares were abandoned, as evidence of enormous selling orders for both accounts appeared. More consideration seemingly was given to the proposed higher discount charges by the Federal Reserve Regional Institutions and the tightening of acceptance and time money rates. A belief that the policy of the Federal Reserve Board is regulating credit conditions through the sales of Government Securities would become more effective influenced selling by conservative interests, who were also disturbed by the prominence and violence of the rise in some Specialities this month. Greene Cananea Copper declined 6 points, and many others 1 to 3. There was a late extensive accumulation in Colorado Fuel and Iron, but the market closed heavy. Government Bonds easy; Railroad Bonds easy. The day's sales totalled 1,445,000 shares.

"ASHGROVE," NEWRY.

T. P. LEDLIE, Esq., Deceased.
EXECUTORS' SALE OF FAMILY RESIDENCE & LANDS, WITH IMMEDIATE POSSESSION.
TO BE SOLD BY PUBLIC AUCTION,
At the Dwellinghouse,
On WEDNESDAY, 8th FEBRUARY, 1928,
At Eleven o'clock.

All that extensive, substantial, and superior Dwellinghouse, known as "ASHGROVE," Newry, together with the Land attached, containing 43 acres 3 roods 34 perches, Statute Measure, or thereabouts, in the Townland of Drumcashellone, within a few minutes' walk from the Town of Newry. The larger portion of the Land is held for ever under Landed Estates Court Conveyance, and 6 acres are held under Lease for an unexpired term of 500 years, and a small portion containing 3 roods 24 perches, Statute Measure, or thereabouts, is held as a yearly tenancy under the Trustees of the Earl of Kilmorey. The entire yearly rent for all the premises amounts to only £4 8s. 5d.

The Residence, Conservatory, Vineries, and Fern-houses are constructed of chiselled granite of a most substantial nature, and the Dwellinghouse contains 3 large reception rooms, 5 main bedrooms, 2 maids' rooms, bathroom (h. and c.), lavatory, kitchen, scullery, dairy, etc. The conservatory, vineries, etc., are close to and approached from the house. Gas is supplied from the Town of Newry, and there is an excellent and abundant water supply.

The Out-Buildings are extensive, comprising large byre, stables, loose box, harness room, coach-house, garage, etc. There are Vegetable and Fruit Gardens, and the grounds attached to the house are artistically laid out. The Lands are in a high state of fertility, and, being situate just outside the town boundary, offer a rare opportunity for letting purposes; are well fenced and watered, and the entire property, being nicely elevated, gives a most picturesque view of the surrounding country and mountains. There are four small Houses on the lands, which produce about £30 yearly.

Immediately after the Sale of the House, the Sale of the entire Household Furnishings and Effects will take place, fuller details of which will be found in separate posters.

OLD STYLE.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Gardening Correspondent says:—

"Sow! Four seeds in a row;

We were further advised by old Tom Tusser, in his "Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry," published in 1575, to "Sow Peas and Beans on the wane of the moon, for who soweth them sooner soweth too soone." Doubtless good advice, although we have but small faith in lunar influences; but Bacon, he who was Lord High Chancellor when James I. was King, in telling us there ought to be "things in beautie for all moneths of the yeare," inspires us to an effort to have useful vegetables for all "moneths of the yeare."

SEASONABLE HINTS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent writes:—

The inclement weather we have had was very severe on the adult stock, especially hens that were over their moult only a short time. These were consequently retarded in commencing to lay, and, as the chief breeding pens are composed of second-year birds, breeding operations may be delayed. To bring them on to laying condition some may be disposed to force them with spices and extra stimulants, but this is not wise, as forcing measures of any kind interfere with fertility. Give them plenty of warm housing, protection from cold winds, and plain, nourishing food, with not more than about 5 per cent. of fish-meal or meat-meal.

The report that Sebele, paramount chief in the Bechuanaland Protectorate, had died at the age of 19, following an operation, now appears to be incorrect. It appears that the native who died was also named Sebele, but was only a relative of the chief, who is 36 years old.

Mr. C. F. Johnstone, manager of the Bank of Ireland branch, Mountmellick, was the recipient of a presentation from his many friends in Mountmellick and district on the occasion of his departure, on promotion, to Mullingar. The presentation consisted of a valuable and massive solid silver salver, tea and coffee service.
